

place in Tanzania, with the programme designed to reflect the maximum of efficiency and economy. Some 50 Canadian advisory and training personnel will proceed to Tanzania under the programme.

The air force programme is expected to make a significant contribution to the effectiveness of the Tanzanian defence forces. The Canadian contribution will complement the advisory and training assistance which Canada is already extending to the Tanzanian Army. About 30 Canadian forces personnel are currently in Tanzania in connection with the army programme. Eleven Tanzanians received army officer training in Canada last year and 17 more are expected in Canada this month.

Implementation of the Canadian offer will start immediately. By the end of September, up to 25 Tanzanian air wing personnel will be training in Canada and it is expected that the movement of Canadian advisers to Tanzania will begin within the next few weeks.

The Secretary of State for External Affairs expressed the hope that this form of Canadian assistance would prove useful to ^{the} Tanzanian Government in maintaining the conditions of security and stability which favour economic and social progress.
