NEXT + ATTRACTION

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 19th.

THE MADISON SQUARE THEATRE SUCCESS,

J. A. N. E

Manager Roote begs to announce that Miss Kitty Cheatham, late of the Daly's Theatre Company of New York, London and Paris, in that "Queen of Comedies," JANE, supported by the principal New York Cast, including Mr. Robert Cotton in his original character of "William," under the direction of Mr. Charles Frohman of New York, will be the attraction at this Theatre next Thursday evening. The engagement is limited to one night.

The delightful fame of this charming little play and praises that have been unhesitatingly sung of it by word of mouth, as well as in public print, would make further announcement needless, yet it seems proper to recall for a moment the interesting incidents that distinguish the American career of "Jane."

The comedy had attained the "mature age" of nearly 400 consecutive performances in London, England, before its suitability for American audiences was appreciated.

It remained for Mr. Charles Frohman to readily discern this fact while abroad two seasons ago. He returned to the States with the control of the play, though without any definite idea what special use to make of it. It was not long after his arrival in New York that Mr. Frohman had the opportunity to present it at the Madison Square Theatre and scored there a marvelous run for the piece.

Briefly told, Mr. Frohman saw the ideal comedy in "Jane," and since has presented it in the principal cities of the Union. His triumph was an immediate one everywhere.

"CHUMS," one of the popular "curtain-raisers" which is to precede "Jane," bears the stamp of popular recognition as a dramatic gem.
