

GRAND LODGE EAST MEETS AT KINGSTON

Orangemen Have Made a Noble Response to Call, Says Grand Master.

HOPE FOR IRELAND

Grand Secretary's Report Says War Calls for Courage and Wisdom.

Kingston, Ont., June 5.—With upwards of four hundred delegates in attendance, the 14th annual convention of the Orange Grand Lodge of eastern Ontario opened at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the Orange Hall with Grand Master G. W. ...

A committee was appointed to strike the standing committees after the usual opening exercises over which the grand master delivered his address. "We are meeting in the history of Kingston (the Derry of Canada) said the grand master in opening, and I extend a very warm welcome to every member."

Speaking in reference to the true blue Orange Orphanage, the grand master said that 29 orphan boys had enlisted and out of that number three had paid the supreme sacrifice. "We trust that the final victory will be on the side of the allies. But fear that many lives will yet be lost before victory is obtained," said the grand master.

WAR SUMMARY

THE DAY'S EVENTS REVIEWED

Increasing success attended the defence of the French yesterday in the battle from the Marne to the Oise. The Germans made many further attempts to advance; the French repulsed them everywhere. The principal fighting continued on the allied left wing. The French on this wing checked a German attempt to cross the River Oise near Montalagone, and would fall into line with her proper quota of recruits for the prosecution of the war on the side of the allies.

Since the German advance in the Champagne has ended his press is expecting a new German attack, and many wisecracks are guessing at the points where the blow may fall. A look at the map shows a stretch of front, 35 miles long, between Rheims and the Argonne Forest, suitable for an offensive. The next sections of the line are in Lorraine. Powerful groups of French armies, however, protect these sections, and moreover, this part of the front comprises the strongly fortified eastern barriers of France with defences prepared long before the German advance.

Owing to his past failure to achieve a clear breaking thru of the allied front anywhere the enemy will probably try a new tactic. He may try to force another big salient or two so as to have a long stretch of new front for his attack. He counts upon the inability of the allies to erect strong defences on their new lines and may attempt to force them as he has done before by the driving of fresh salients so as to compel further local retreats. The French appear almost entirely to be using cavalry and machine gun troops to watch and resist the Germans, and are waiting for the German general staff to blunder to commit itself to some definite false military manoeuvre, and then will come the time for a counter-offensive, probably from Amiens.

Noisy Closets

Is there anything more annoying, more nerve racking, than that hiss hiss hiss that comes from a valve joint out of order? Some householders think it's too trifling for us to attend to—but it's not. Just phone us when anything gets out of order. Some of our cars and may be near by—perhaps on the next street. They'll fix that trouble for you in a jiffy.
