In the past few seasons there has been a revelation in the presentation of burlesque. Before that time it was practically confined to the cheaper class of vaudeville horses and the more refined class of show goers would not go. Hoyt happily conceived the idea of sketching a plot, a mere framework, embracing the cream of vaudeville horses and the more refined class of show goers would not go. Hoyt happily conceived the idea of sketching a plot, a mere framework, embracing the cream of vaudeville horses and the more refined class of show goers would not go. Hoyt happily conceived the idea of sketching a plot, a mere framework, embracing the cream of vaudeville was magical and his fortune assured. But, beyond this, it educated the public and elevated the standard of burlesque so it at present occupies a high place in the public and elevated the standard of burlesque, as do a great many of the farce comedy successes. Sam T. Jack has always presented burlesque pure and simple, and of his many companies his favorite Own Burlesque Company will be presented at the Bijou week of Monday, Dec. 4, with a daily martinee.
