Mr. Gibson (Hamilton) moved the second reading of his bill, to prevent the taking or killing of deer while in the water, and to provide for the licensing of deer-hunting by sportsmen, with or without dogs. In doing so he deplored the terrible slaughter of deer by pot-hunters. In one year, so he had been informed, as many as 10,000 deer had been mercilessly massacred in the lakes, rivers and streams of the province by parties with boats, and even yachts, as their movable vantage points.

PRIVILEGES OF A PHYSICIAN

Then, all I can say is," replied Justice Hawkins, with some heat "that it will make me very careful in the selection of my medical man."

Later, in charging the jury on this point, the judge said that the theory that it was always the duty of a physician to inform the public prosecutor when he suspected that a crime had been committed was simply monstrous.

A GRAVE SITUATION.

WAR IN THE TRANSVAAL ALMOST A CERTAINTY

If the British Desire to Retain Their Position and Influence There - The Beers Prepared For a Conflict-Thousands of Germans Flecking to the Country to Aid Them.

London, March 28.-The Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, recently de-manded of President Kruger, of the Transvaal, that he immediately accept or reject the invitation of Mr. Chamberlain to visit London for the purpose of settling the questions that have arisen between Great Britain and the South African Republic. In response to this demand, President Kruger has telegraphed that the decision does not rest with him, but with the Volksraad, the Parliament of the Republic, and that the latter will only assent to his going to London on condition that the Anglo-Boer Convention of 1884 be so amended that the full independence of the Transvaal will be recognized, and guaranteed by Great Britain and the other powers. Mr. Chamberlain declined last night to tell the House of Commons how the negotiations stood at present, but within the ministerial circle, the gravity of the position is known. A high official stated that Mr. Chamberlain had, from the outset of the negotiations, distrusted President Kruger, and had not failed to draw accurate conclusions from his delayed acceptance of the invitation to visit England. Mr Chamberlain still hopes, however, to obtain a pacific settlement of the questions at issue without President Kruger coming here, and without acceding to a revision of the convention. amended that the full independence dependency authoritative letters from Cape Colony, in which it was said that a war against the Transvaal would mean a civil war, the British against the Dutch facing each other from Pretoria to Cape Town. The conquest of the Dutch would require as many troops as were sent to the Crimea. It is not known accurately at the War Office what the strength of the Boer force alone is that is now ready to take the field. Within three months 2500 Germans are estimated to have entered the Transvaal as immigrants, and these are known to be obtaining Transvaal money. The force of Zulus, irained and commanded by Boer and German officers, is estimated to number 60,000. Though their tribal fidelity to the Boers is doubtful, they can be trusted to fight against the British. Viewing the whole situation, including the troubles in Egypt and elsewhere, the English people are not likely to approve the gigantic task of conquaring the Transvaal, yet they must face that or the alternative of a declaration of independence from the Transvaal, the Orange Free State and probably Cape Colony, which would form the United States of South Africa.
