THE GROCERY MARKET

The following comment on the market

prunes. Danger from frost is pretty well over by April 20, and in another well over by April 20, and in another week's time the growers can judge whether this element must be reckoned with. The promising yield, however, has not tended to ease prices any, and the outlook seems to be that very high figures will prevail. This is due to the call for this fruit from European countries, and the fact that stocks in the hands of all distributors are small now, with indications that new crop goods will come on a market absolutely bare of supplies.

are actually very busy, increased business coming to hand the last week or tendays.

Turpentine is tending still higher and some factors show a slight advance this week. This has resulted in a narrowing of the range of quotations to the trade. Reports from the South all reveal bullish sentiments, stocks being reduced under the influence of an active demand and arrivals from the new crop still being practically nil.

Steam boilers and radiation have been revised downward again this week, the present scale of discounts being a reflection of the competitive figures established in United States markets and is, it is indicated, not attributable to market conditions. Round hot water boilers have not undergone any change from recent decline.

Bass escutcheon pins, brass steam goods, horse rasps, files, sash weights and cotton wrapping twine are all lines that have registered declines this week. Ingot
