

HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

Pleasant Evening Reveries dedicated to tired Mothers as they join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

HERE'S A DADDY'S SONG
"Must all thy songs be mother songs,
My baby boy?
Do poets write no other songs,
That father's name employ?
Then I'll right the monstrous wrong;
Come, boy, and hear thy daddy's song.
But first a toss high in the air,
To hear his merry shout
And then a tickle here and there,
To bring the dimples out,
And then a romp upon the bed,
Oh, precious little tattle head!
Now, then, wee barefoot boy, take care!
Run swiftly o'er the floor,
And father'll be a brain-beat,
And growl and roar and yawn!
Why, bless us boy, what flimsy stuff!
Daddy's song is rag time enough.
There now of play we've had our fill,
'Tis bedtime, I know,
(How very bright his eyes are still
"Hush, baby mine, by-law"
Come, come, you little rascal you,
Daddy had enough of peek-a-boo!
Hush, hush, my boy, to sleep with thee!
(I wish his mamma'd come!)
Thy father'll turn into a bee
If longer he must hum.
Ah, well, to lull a child to rest,
A mother's song, perchance, is best.

There should live in the depths of every human heart one warm and sunny spot where nestle the images of earthly love and sweet remembrances of childhood home. The memory of those first impressions made upon the baby's mind and heart will live forever. Oh, how fleeting are days of childhood. Dear mothers, shall you permit yourselves to be "cumbered about much serving" that the rich garden of your child's soul will lie neglected with foul weeds choking out all worthy and beautiful growth?

DEFINITIONS OF HOME.
Home—A world of strife shut out and a world of love shut in.
Home—A place where the small are great and the great are small.
Home—The father's kingdom, the mother's world and the child's paradise.
Home—The place where we grumble the most and are treated the best.
Home—The centre of our affections around which our heart's best wishes twine.
Home—The place where the stomach gets three meals a day and our hearts a thousand.
Home—The only place on earth where the faults and failings of humanity are hidden under the sweet mantle of charity.

One has only to use his brains a little to discover the various machines which might be installed in the farm home at a comparatively small expense, and which would go a long way toward making life on the farm lighter for the women and more attractive for the children. "It is a fact that farms run on a modern basis pay larger dividends. Farms so run not only keep the children

Midsummer Examinations

In view of the unavoidable interruptions to school work which have taken place during the current half year the holding of the Midsummer examinations for 1919 will be deferred in each case for a fortnight in accordance with the following scheme:—

Junior High School Entrance. July 2
Junior Pub School Graduation June 30
Lower School. July 2
Middle School. July 11
Pass Matriculation. July 2
Upper School and Honor Mat. June 30

With the foregoing provisions and those made in the Regulations for the conduct of these examinations, the ill effects upon the school work of the aforesaid interruptions may be reasonably well overcome. And, further, as Easter next year will be nearly three weeks later than in 1918, it is unnecessary to amend the Farm Regulations which were issued last September, except to provide that the teacher's examination may be deferred until the week following the Easter holidays.

Advertising Never Paid Better

An advertising man of excellent observance ability calls attention to his experience that it is 50 per cent easier now to interest people by advertising than ever before. There is intense interest in the papers now. Never before have the newspapers been read so eagerly and attentively as now—an interest that owing to the extraordinary conditions through which we pass naturally also extends to the advertising pages. But these are not only read, but read with confidence, for the public has learned in the last few years that publishers have ceased to keep the advertising pages open to all who pay the price out give careful attention to keeping out the undesirable and fraudulent advertisement.

Even Old Shoes Have Value

The old boots and shoes that are cast into the dustbin have considerable value. They are soaked in water to remove the dirt, all the nails and threads are picked out and the leather is reduced to a thick pulp, from which wall papers, screens, etc., are made. The finer the original quality of leather the better it makes the bronze and old gold of the designs which make these hangings things of beauty. Bookbinders and framemakers also know the value of this pulp, and carriage builders press it into sheets which are invaluable for the roofs of the most luxurious vehicles.

at home, but keep them interested in their home, in the farm and the farm work.
Farmers who feel that there is something wrong with their farm and who begin to see their children become restless—a sort of constant yearning to get away—will find a solution to the whole problem of keeping the family together in brightening up the home and giving it an air of modernity.

Not only is this applicable to the farmer, but to the resident of the small town as well. The rising generation are not wont to be so contented with life as were their fathers and mothers. They must have certain things which, though easily within the reach of their parents, are oftentimes overlooked, only to be discovered after it is too late. The country home may be made as attractive as any other, more attractive, comfortable and healthful in fact. To make it so is to solve the problem of keeping the boys and girls on the farm and in the home town.

MODERNITY ON THE FARM.

To a certain extent the cities are absorbed from blame for luring the boy from the farm and the more or less stable existence of the tiller of the soil to the uncertain lot of the city laborer or clerk. According to arguments advanced by those who have made a study of the small town and country development, the blame for the desertion of the land by the young must rest largely with the parents—with the farmers themselves.

The average farmer has until recently been interested in his crops, cattle, and a bank account more than he was in the comfort of his wife and children. With the city man it has been the reverse. The wife of the city mechanic, whose income was far smaller and immeasurably less secure than the income of the farmer, has for years been having hot and cold water in her kitchen, a bath tub in the house, and gas and electricity with which to cook, wash and iron. Her household work has been cut to a minimum. The wife of the farmer, in most cases, is still drudging away unnecessarily. Because of this drudgery and the want of a comfortable and consequently interesting, attractive home, the migration to the city has been unprecedented in recent years.

How much happier we would all be if we would attempt to build instead of tearing down; how much sweeter our lives would be, if we would encourage, by kind words, those of our fellowmen and fellowwomen who have fallen by the wayside; extend a helping hand, whisper words of encouragement in their ear, and lo! how much brighter our lives and theirs would be. Give no heed to the tattler and gossip, turn a deaf ear, and tell them that you are otherwise engaged, when you find them inclined to talk and very soon the tattlers will find their profession gone.

Helping a Brother

Brotherly love has seldom been more beautifully exemplified than the way in which Bro. Green helped his friend Brown over a rather difficult place the other day.

The Greens had called at the home of the Browns. Brown, not expecting the call, was absent from the domestic camp.

"Oh, Mr. Green," remarked Mrs. Brown during the conversation, "I want to ask you something. I was looking through my husband's desk this afternoon and found some of the queerest tickets you ever saw. One was marked 'Mudhorse, 8 to 1,' another was marked 'Getaway, 10 to 1,' and so on like that. What do you suppose they refer to?"

"That's an easy one, Mrs. Brown," was the smooth rejoinder of Green. "Your husband is probably making a study of archaeology."

"Archaeology!?" was the wondering rejoinder of Mrs. Brown. "Do you really think so? How very interesting!"

"Yes," responded Bro. Green, "those queer looking tickets you found are undoubtedly relics of a lost race."

A Christmas Thought and Wish

I am thinking of you to-day because it is Christmas, and I wish you happiness. And to-morrow, because I shall still wish you happiness; and so on, clear through the year. I may not be able to tell you about it every day, because I may be far away, or because both of us may be very busy, or perhaps because I cannot even afford to pay the postage on so many letters or find time to write them. But that makes no difference. The thought and the wish will be here just the same. In my work, in the business of my life, I mean to try not to be unfair to you or injure you in any way.

In my pleasure, if we can be together, I would like to share the fun with you. Whatever joy or success comes to you will make me glad. Without pretence, and in plain words, good will to you is what I mean.—Henry Van Dyke.

SASH A POPULAR ACCESSORY

Decorations New Worn Adds Materially to the Attractiveness and Promotes to Remain.

The sash of 1918-19 is a more sophisticated and alluring accessory than its predecessor of a decade or so ago, and it is adjusted to suit the fancy of the wearer or the artistic conception of the designer. Sometimes the bow is directly in the back, big and broad, like the obi of the maid of Old Japan. Again the loops will be placed at the right or the left side, a perky, jaunty arrangement of silk or satin, sometimes with one instead of two long ends and fringe-edged. Then there is the broad girdle, usually of the material, deftly maneuvered with ends terminating in tassels.

However it is introduced, the sash is a distinctive feature of the autumn frock. Even the tailored serge, fashioned severely, with high collar and long, tight sleeves, boasts a sash these days, at least one chic model does, the sash being of the material and terminating in a wide bow at the normal waistline in the back. Another use for the material sash is on the velvet frock, one example being an old rose velvet gown worn by a young girl in one of the new plays. It is a delightfully simple gown, one-piece, medium width skirt and wide girdle and broad bow of the velvet. A narrow band of kolinsky outlines the round neck and edges the modified kimono sleeves.

The sash, on the order of the sweater accessory, of medium width and finished with balls and tassels of silk, is still in vogue and it is particularly adapted to the trim little gown of tricotee or the equally supple wool scrim.

TO BUTTONHOLE FALL COAT

How Very Important Work May Be Done by Woman Who Is Doing Her Own Tailoring.

When a woman starts in tailoring she usually takes her finished product to a man tailor for a pressing and for the buttonholing. Now, a little practice according to the following suggestions, writes a correspondent, will enable any woman to make her own buttonholes by hand and to do it creditably, too.

Begin by marking off the place for the holes and their length, which is gauged by the button to be used, of course. Now, with a sharp knife cut your hole through material, lining and all. If it is inclined to fray, a row of machine-stitching around the line of marking before it is cut is a wise precaution, or wet the slit with a liquid gum. Lay strong threads if necessary, and work over these with the familiar buttonhole stitch, beginning at the inner end of the hole and letting the part of the stitch fall along the slit, of course. When the outer end of the buttonhole is reached the buttonhole stitches are taken a trifle tighter around the end and radiate so that they form a round hole where the shank of the button will lie. This can be further accomplished if the threads which are used as padding for the buttonholing are pulled up a bit when the hole is finished to straighten out the edge. This gives firmness and strength and prevents the hole from stretching after continued buttonholing. Close the hole with a straight bar of buttonhole strand or thread along the edge or two stitches across the inner end.

READY FOR THE MOTOR TRIP

Tan bolivia cloth is the material in this nobby, serviceable and comfortable motor coat. There is a long scarf collar which can be effectively draped about the neck. The cape is still in evidence. Picture illustrates a new mode.
