CFS backs cuts

OTTAWA (CUP) — The Canadian Federation of Students, a national lobby group, has congratulated the federal government on its decision to no longer fund the Ministry of State for Youth.

In a March 5 press release, CFS chair Barb Donaldson said the ministry was useless, spending $20 million last year on cheer-leading and conferences for Tory youth.

The minister has not spoken for the concerns of young Canadians, Donaldson says, "At least the budget reflects this."

Asked outside the House of Commons if the ministry, not mentioned in spending estimates tabled recently, would survive, Secretary of State Benoit Bouchard said a decision would come by the end of the month.

"The financial operations of the government end on March 31. We will see at the beginning of April what will happen (to the ministry)," Bouchard says.

The national French television channel TVA reported last week that the government plans to abolish the Ministry of Youth on March 17, the day after the national Conservative convention.
