There has been some dissatisfaction in cream quarters because several of the ounds of the fistic discussion between washington Brown, the undefeated colored champion of Southeast Koote-nay, and William Jennings McKinley, bunched in the report published in paper. gloom, feeling sure that t that has ever taken place during the recent century was that on Monday night at the Pacific theatre in Rossland, when George Washington Brown stepped into the ring and fought a 20-round glove contest with William Jennings McKinley, the middleweight hero of the smelter town. At 9:53 p. m. George Washington Brown took his place in the corner of the ring. On his left leg he had the Stars and Stripes, while on his right the meteor flag of Engbackward over the ropes, closed his eyes and placed himself entirely and absolutely in the hands of his friends. The society editor of the Miner was heard to remark

K. barber shop supplied a satchelfull of nice, clean bath towels which came in very useful during the evening. The stage was stripped of all scenic effects and even the two 12-candle power bulbs were doused in order to add to the gloom. The elite of the city were there, bank managers, bunco men, card sharpers, sharks and suckers, the fessors therefrom. Mining exchange offi-cials, bulls, bears and boosters had seats of honor, while the horny fisted sons of the gabbro occupied prominent seats in the family circle. Never did the theatre L'Pacifique hold such an audience, never at least since the night that Little Egypt

George Washington Brown was alone in the ring for nearly ten minutes when the audience cried out "Where is the man from Trail?" "Bring on your dope man." "Is William drunk again?" etc. At 10:05, however, the great and only McKinley appeared on the scene and was received with considerable eclat. His sporting backer from Trail, with the Cane Nome overcoat. from Trail, with the Cape Nome overcoat and the Pyritic smelter countenance, yelled like one possessed and waving 5 ones in the smoky air offered five hundred even on McKinley. The five was promptly covered by an artist from Jack Bluntish's studio. Then another sport from the Trail dump offered another $200 on McKinley, waich was promptly covered by Professor Judd of the Ladies' Home Journal. Judd er leaned forward to one of our local mining magnates and in suppressed tones remarked: "George will certainly kill William in the first round." A bottle of brown stuff was handed to the referee who partook of the liquid copiously, after which both Judd and George were allowed Round 2—George rushed the fighting and exhibited his new turbing movement.

This designation of business men or Ashmal croft, who came down two days ago from the interior, yesterday interviewed Hon.

J. D. Prentice, and other members of the government who are now at Victoria, with a view to obtaining support to the plan for the building of a railway to Cariboo. Round 2—George rushed the fighting and exhibited his new turbine movement. He ducked his nut frequently and toyed with William's pompadour. Both fell on each other's neck and embraced. The society editor of the Miner leaned over to the magnate at this juncture and whispered: "I am afraid George is biting William on the vaccination mark." This topicated in the magnate at the project of the magnate at the juncture and whispered: "I am afraid George is biting William on the vaccination mark." This topicated the miner of the interior who will work with might and main when the Legislature sits to further this project. The deputation consisted of ex-Governor Hon. F. C. Cornwall, Dr. F. S. Reynolds, Dennis Murphy, St. P. P. for West Yale, Oliver Harvey, Stuart Henderson and H. L. Roberts. In an interview Dr. Reynolds said that they were down from the town of Ashcroft, to Round 3.—McKinley warted this round in John L. Sullivan's most effective style, that is with his awful eagle eye he walked around George three or four times, his right fin trembling vistury. All at once he let go his left and gave George his first fearful swat, landing behind the left ear. It was like a slug from a sandbagger in a back alley off Riverside avenue, Spokane, and George was rather surprised and blinked considerably. This aroused the black demon in George so he rushed and in his fury three McKinley into the ropes directly opposite Mr. Collis P. Chamberlin. Nothing racks the body more than a severe cough. If it is allowed to run for any length of time, it is very hard to get rid of, and often leads to that most dreaded of all diseases—consumption. Such a sufferer was Mr. Thomas Jinks of Prince Edward county. Mr. Jinks relates the fol lowing facts to a Picton Times reporte "I am sixty-seven years of age, and for the last twenty years I have had a bad cough. I was troubled with catarrh, which started in my head, but later spread to my stomach, leaving me a dyspeptic. For two years I was troubled with pains in the stomach, and was not able to raise my arms above my head without experiencing severe pains about my short ribs and stomach.
