His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson personally, and on behalf of the Association, thanked the soldiers for their magnificent gift. No one would have blamed the Volunteers had they used this money for the purchase of "smokes," but they freely decided to pass it over to the Ladies' Fund and their act was most commendable. British Win 3 Out Of 4 Naval Fights

And Germans in Various Engagements Have Lost Five Out Of Nine Armored Cruisers. During the present war numerous German warships have been destroyed in isolated engagements, but there have been only four naval engagements of capital importance. Of these the British have won three, the record being as follows: 1. Heligoland (August, 28)—The battle-cruiser squadron, consisting of the Lion (flagship), Queen Mary, Princess Royal and New Zealand, under Rear-Admiral Sir David Beatty, supported by light cruisers and destroyers, sank three German cruisers, the Mainz, Koeln, and Ariadne, and injured others in the Bight of Heligoland without losing a ship. The British lost 23 killed and 38 wounded. The German loss was unknown. 2. Coronel, off Chilli coast (November 1)—The German ships Scharnhorst, Gneisenau, Dresden, and Leipzig, under Admiral Von Spee, engaged the British ships Good Hope (flagship), Glasgow, and Monmouth, under Rear-Admiral Sir Christopher Cradock. The Good Hope and Monmouth were sunk; the Glasgow damaged. The British loss was about 1,450. 3. Falkland Islands (December 8)—The British battleship Canopus, battle-cruisers Invincible and Inflexible, and cruisers Cornwall, Camaroon, Bristol, and Glasgow, under Vice-Admiral Sir Frederick Sturdee, engaged the German ships Scharnhorst, Gneisenau, Leipzig, Nurnberg, and Dresden, under Admiral Von Spee. The first three German ships were sunk in the engagement and the Nurnberg a day or so later. The British loss was eight killed and four wounded, and the German loss about two thousand. 4. North Sea (January 24)—The British battle cruisers Lion, Tiger, Princess Royal, New Zealand and Indomitable, under Sir David Beatty, intercepted the German battle cruisers Derfflinger, Seydlitz, and Moltke, and the armored cruiser Blucher. A running fight ensued. The Blucher was sunk and two of the battle cruisers badly damaged. The British loss was slight, but about six hundred Germans sank with the Blucher. Out of the German's total of nine armored cruisers the following are now sunk: Blucher, 15,500 tons, North Sea. Gneisenau, 11,500 tons Falkland Islands. Scharnhorst, 11,500 tons, Falkland Islands. Yorek, 9,350 tons, blown up in North Sea by German mine. Friedrich Kari, 8,851 tons. Out of the nine, the following four are still afloat. Fuerst Bismarck, 10,570 tons. Hood, 9,350 tons. Prinz Adalbert, 8,851 tons. Prinz Heinrich, 8,760 tons.
