One of the attractions at July 4th celebration at Port Huron was a prize of $50 to any couple who would be married publicly on the track there. A man and woman, who gave their names as Thomos Barr and Jame Seymour, of Chatham, appeared to win the prize, and the ceremony was performed by Justice Robeson, who kissed the bride at the close. It has since transpired that the parties have kissed the bride at the close. It has since transpired that the parties have been married some time, and live at Sarnia, the man being a second hand dealer there, and have children of their own. The Port Huron people are wonderfully worked up over the fraud practiced upon them. But it serves them right.

A GERMAN VIEW.

ERMAN, July 31.—Public interest has een divided during the past week between he France-Siam trouble and the Russel terman tariff war. Important as is the ederal Council's summary action agains been divided during the past week between the Franco-Slam trouble and the Russo-German tariff war. Important as is the Federal Council's summary action against Russia, it has hardly reached in public opinion the plane of high international politics occupied by the Siamese question. The result of Great Britain's intervention is regarded as having rare significance for the future grouping of the European great powers. For once the German editors acknowledge the British Government has pulled its chestnuts out of the fire without the aid of the Austrian or the Italian catepaw. By so doing they believe the great self-contained naval power of the northeast has been drawn irrevocably from her position of independence and assumed indifference to cast her weight with one or the other constitutional alliances. The critical nature of the negotiations between France and Great Britain as to Siamese blockade was not known generally in Berlin until yesterday. Probably in no other capital did the people learn with as much surprise that the Earl of Rosebery had made war the penalty of France's circumpaint of the result of
