PACIFIC RAILWAY.

This great undertaking is in financial troubles, and has appealed to the Government for assistance. The cause of the Syndicate's difficulties is easy to conjecture. The money markets of the world have not late been favorable to the floating of large speculative enterprises. The collapse of Villard, the President of the Northern Pacific, and the depreciation of stock to the financial condition of the Canada Pacific is not exceptional. Beyond this, there are potent advorse influences at work. Political influences in Canada have operated against the Syndicate. The Grand Trunk and the great American trans-continental lines, which are interested in the traffic of the North West, have everything to gain and the work was a go failed, as it eught to have cial troubles, and has appealed to eighteen months ago the Conservatrans-continental lines, which are interested in the traffic of the North West, have everything to gain and nothing to lose by a failure of the Syndicate. When these forces are united and working in the money market, to depress the Canada Pacific stock, it would be a wonder if the caredit of the Company was not stated and the conditions to the state of the caredit of the Company was not stated in the revenue of 1878 was insufficient by one and a half millions to meet the expenditure, and the Government had to borrow abroad this sum to meet the current expenditure of the country. This borrowing to meet ordinary expenditures savored so much of Turkish the caredit of the Company was not the credit of the Company was not speculation, with which the Government had nothing to do. One thing is certain; the road must go on. The future prosperity of Canada depends upon its completion. The Government has spent some 45 millions of dollars in the North-West, 26½ of which was for the Pacific Railway, 6 millions being paid last year. The revenue from paid last year. The revenue from

All that remains then is for the Government ant suit between miners and farmers in some ratio with the revenue, but through hose with immense force. The gravel thus dislodged eventually finds its way into the rivers and passengers and freight, as for the safety and protection of the ferry boats. The Government engineers have already fully reported cost and character of these works, and the committee armed with fullest information respecting them, recommended their construction. The Government having practically accepted the report and acted on it, it is called upon now to go further and make provision during the present seems to the secure and proper cannels. After having been in the courts for a long time, the matter has been finally settled in favor of the farmers and hydraulic.

THE ADDRESS.

The speeches of Mr. Blake and Sir John on the address, both somewhat cut down, will be found on first page. They are both pleasant reading. Throughout, Mr. Blake appears to have kept himself up to a bantering humorous gait, while Sir John, was Sir John still, full of the surface of the surf Jehn, was Sir John still, full of the old power of retort, saying kindly things and going straight to the merits of the question. On the ruin and disaster cry, Sir John was almost as happy as he was last year, when he likened Mr. Blake to an old Newcastle collier who, returning to England after a visit of seven years to the West Indies, was approaching the land and when he felt the familiar elect and storm and saw the familiar sleet and storm and saw the approach. familiar clouds, he out on his sou'-

This great undertaking is in finan-Gregory on Tuesday last, when in 1878, as follows:

A treatise on butter making has injured. There is a disposition on been published by the Government injured. There is a disposition on the part of the Grit press to regard the financial difficulty of the Company as a blunder of Sir John's Government, and in consequence a perfect howl of delight is echoed over the country. How the Government is responsible, we fail to know. It never guaranteed that capitalists would buy the stock or that it would command any certification in the graph of the that it would command any certain price in the market. This is a matter of trade and speculation, with which the Government had nothing to do. One The work is a most important one, ports, the increased revenue would

CUSTOMS.

The Customs department makes a remarkable exhibit of the economy exercised by the Government. It would be reasonable to suppose that fully the expenses are kept down, comparing 1878 with 1883:

The increased cost of collection has been only $42,718! But this is not half the story. The wise discretion and sound business princi-
