MUSICAL INSTRUCTION

Conservatory Teaching Talks

ouncement in issue of Wed-nesday, August 25.)

The most important advantage of institutional instruction over private, is, that each teacher's standing is vouched for by musicians eminently capable to select. The Conservatory idea originated in the effort to pre-corruntion.

While there are instructors of un-uestioned ability not connected with chools, still it rests with each per-on when seeking the services of a rivate teacher to form his judgment a best he can on that person's fit-ess for his vocation. In a proper chool of music, no such dilemma hould occur.
