Allan Liners Arrive in Port.

The R. M. S. Carthaginian arrived in port at noon yesterday from Liverpool, which port she left 8 days ago. Throughout the voyage strong head winds were continuous. Dense fog was met off the coast on Friday and progress was impeded considerably. The ship brought 16 bags and 5 baskets of mail matter, 506 tons of cargo and the following passengers: Sir E. P. and Lady Morris, W. H. Greene, Hon. E. R. Bowring, Victor Prince, Horace Wardle, Mrs. M. Mayers, Rev. M. J. Clarke, J. E. Fox, Messrs. Goodridge (2), Miss E. Goodridge, Miss Scott, Dr. W. S. Syne, L. Hughes, B. P. Ayre, Mrs. D. W. Prowse, Mrs. M. G. Winter, Miss Goodridge, A. Holst, Mrs. Holst, Miss M. Parker, S. Ryland, Mrs. Ryland, child and maid, Dr. Macpherson, Mrs. Macpherson and two children, Miss Kendall, Miss Macpherson, 11 intermediate and 6 steerage.

The R. M. S. Pomeranian reached port early this morning after a fine run from Philadelphia bringing 600 tons of cargo. She is anchored in the stream owing to the pier being occupied by the Carthaginian.

A Common Weakness.

Old Biddad and I are neighbors and oft when the day is through and done are our divers labors, we argue an hour or two. And thus, in our pleasant tit-tit we thrash out a hundred themes, jump on the pomes of Milton, he says that those pomes are screams. I spend quite a while contending the Giants will rake things in; he labors away defending the P. rates, and says they'll win. We spend many hours discussing the nebulae thingumbob, with never a bit of fussing, and never a sore heart throb. We spend the long eve debating, and then, when the orgy ends, to home and to bed go skating, the best kind of chums and friends. But gone is our friendly manner when politics is the theme, when under some statesman's banner, we gird up our lungs and scream! Discussing some party matter that makes not a bit of odds, we stir up a bug-house clatter, and argue with bricks and clods. My lily white nose is broken, my collarbone's in a sling, for Biddad, some words I spoken, resented like everything; an Biddad is blue with bruises since we had our last debate; I argued wit fists and shoes, but couldn't convince the skate.

LONDON, July 14.
England is experiencing a heat wave, the hottest in London since September of last year. Weather experts prophecy that the heat wave will last for several days. On account of the heat the judges of the law courts sat without wigs, an almost unprecedented occurrence.

BISLEY, ENGLAND, July 14.
Corporal Mortimer, of Quebec, made a world's record, winning the first prize of $150 on Saturday, at the competition for four prizes amounting to $350. At a distance of 1,200 yards, in fifteen shots Mortimer's score was 73, consisting of 11 centrals, 3 bull's eyes and a magpie. He tied with Henry, of the Irish Royal Artillery. Shooting off, Mortimer secured 2 centrals and an inner, thus beating his opponent. England won the Elcho challenge shield, open to teams of eight, representing England and Scotland, at 900, 1,000 and 1,100 yards fifteen shots each. In the English aggregate of 1,687, Jones put together a score of 222, using the Ross rifle.

STOCKHOLM, July 14.
South Africa won the Marathon race to-day, also second place, by a secure lead. The winner was F. K. McCarthy a Transvaal policeman. Gitsch, a compatriot, was second; and several hundred yards behind, an American, Stobino, came third.

Special Evening Telegram.

LONDON, July 14.
Chancellor David Lloyd George was assaulted by a male suffragette while he was entering Kensington Theatre, where he made a speech. The man suddenly bolted up from behind a pillar and gave the Chancellor a push which felled him to the ground. The man was arrested. The Chancellor was uninjured.

Decoration Day.

Yesterday morning thousands of citizens interested assembled at St. Carmel Cemetery, bearing floral offerings to bedeck the graves of departed relatives and friends. The grounds were splendidly prepared. At 10:30 Mass was celebrated by Rev. Dr. Kitchen, after which the rev. gentleman ascended a newly made small portable pulpit and delivered a very learned and touching discourse on the Resurrection, exhorting his congregation to lead pure and holy lives. Patriotic references were made to the sudden death of the late Fr. Curran and the large number of our people who met watery graves in the ill-fated vessels during the past winter. At the conclusion Dr. Kitchen, accompanied by the Committee, were entertained at the cottage of Mr. Jas. Keena. The voluntary collection toward the maintenance of the cemetery was a record one. The management sincerely thank the people for the substantial collection and trust that years go by the same generosity will continue for the upkeep of God's acre.

Found Starving.

Mrs. Thomas Curran, whose husband is a seaman on the Lake Simcoe, now on her way here, lives in the upper part of a small house at the foot of Casey Street, the lower portion of which is tenanted by Kung Wah, a Chinese laundryman. It has been known for some time that the woman was mentally affected, and as she had not been seen for two days, neighbors became anxious about her. Saturday night, and Mrs. Martin, and other finding the door locked and the place in darkness, knocked repeatedly but could get no answer. Mr. John Ryan, who keeps a grocery nearby, then found Head Const. Sheppard and Constable Nugent on New Gower Street, and these going to the house, forced the door and procuring a light entered the house. There was neither food, light or fuel there, and the woman, who seemed to be very ill, lay in bed with her three young children near her. Two of these are boys and the other a little girl. An infant, 9 months old, was at the breast but could get no sustenance from the mother, who with her hapless offspring had been starving for two days. Dr. Campbell was summoned, prescribed for the unfortunate and gave an order for groceries, &c., for the family. Soon the neighbors had a cheery fire in the grate and the four were given food, which they wanted so badly. The little ones were furnished with the hunger and ate with avidity what had been given them. A woman was employed to look after the family Saturday night and last night, and to-day steps will be taken to put the poor creature in the care of those competent to deal with such cases. Had the matter not been made known for another 24 hours the woman and children no doubt would have succumbed.
