Trains Collide; Fourteen Dead.

Special to Evening Telegram. LOS ANGELES, To-Day. Fourteen persons are dead as a result of a wreck at Vineyard Station last night when two Pacific electric trains collided. The number of injured is said to exceed a hundred and fifty. Several of these are in a precarious condition.

A True Story.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir— Sir Edward looks blue, and he feels it too. Sure, I saw him mope round at the sports. To his jaw there's a droop, on his shoulders a stoop. And he's generally all out of sorts, just by way of a feeler, I braced up to a healer. That did duty for Edward in the days that are past. Can you tell me my duffer, what ails the old bluffer? Sir Edward, if you notice he's awfully downcast? Oh! let me alone, he's as dead as a stone. Sure we're quietly waiting to bury him now. He's been tolling for years and left many in tears. And now we're determined that Morris must go. Oh! 'tis sad to his heart from the boodie to part. Which he's worshipped so fondly for years; But most truly 'tis said that an end will be made To all things in this vale of tears. Oh! the friends that he footed and the heeled he schooled. If, together, would make a big crew; But they've run and gone clear like the snows of last year. And his followers now are but few. Of course, he's got tied to a crew that's untied. In his methods of promise and bluff; Their game has been boodie, they've acted the noodle. Elected, their game has been rough. But their race it is run, and their day it is done. No matter how much they may blow. For the old Tory game is ever the same. And now they must bundle and go. Then here's to the new, the loyal and true. We'll elect in November, for sure; So good-bye, Morris, dear, your going will cheer. For we've found your rule hard to endure.

When I finished this letter, I felt 'twould be better To read it first in Committee. And when I got through, Be the Mortals, 'twill do! Was the verdict they passed on the ditty. Yours truly, CHURLEY. St. John's, July 9th, '13.

Being Square.

Disaster waits for all fresh skates who go their course un-falsely; it surely pays, through all our days, to treat of it r. neighbours squarely. So in a crooked deal may make you feel a while that you're a winner; but back 'twill fly and black your eye as sure as you're a sinner. You may get rich in bonds and rich by cheats and steals extensive, but when you're old you'll count your gold and think it too expensive. Of wholesome joys old wealthy boys are seldom found with knowledge; and so they hump around and dump their coin on church or college. So in your youth cleave to the truth, be honest and God fearing; old Croesus sighs when needles' eyes are mentioned in his hearing. 'Twere better much to be in Dutch with banks and clearing houses than have a pile that's gained by guile, by swindles, tricks and chicanes. The crooked game give you a fame by which you'll eye be haunted; yes, that renown will hold you down until you're dead and planted. What is more sad than some old lad, some prince of fortune builders, who'll hunt and chase to find a place where he may dump his gold-ers? Does he gain bliss or peace by this, by all his fierce endeavour? The people hate the poor old skate, me-funks, as much as ever. Get all the yen you can, young men, go for them blithely, rarely, but play the game, in God his name, and treat your neighbours squarely.
