Germans Tell of Plot to Blow Up Steamers.

New York, October 25.—Robert Fay, a lieutenant in the German army, and his brother-in-law, Walter L. Scholz, who were arrested yesterday while testing explosives near Grantwood, N. J., were arraigned to-day before a justice of the peace at Weehawken, N. J., on charges of conspiracy, and held without bail for examination to-morrow.

The arraignment of the two men disclosed the fact that a third man, Paul Daech, had been arrested early to-day at his home in Jersey City. Daech was also arraigned with Fay and Scholz, and held without bail. Fay admitted to-day that he came here last April, through an arrangement with the German secret service for the purpose of blowing up or delaying steamers sailing from this country with arms and ammunition for the Allies.

Fay declared, however, that while he had been here he had acted independently of the German Embassy, or other German agents here. He added that he had told Captain Von Papen, military attache, and Captain K. Boy-Ed, naval attache of the German Embassy, of his plans, but said that both men told him not to interfere with steamers sailing from American ports or American ammunition plants. Fay said that while serving in the field with the German army he invented a device for blowing up ships.

French Caused Great Havoc.

He gave out a statement to the newspapers, as follows:

"My only object, when I came to this country, was to interfere with the enormous shipments of artillery ammunition to the Allies. Being a manufacturer myself, and knowing that any ordinary damage that may be done to a factory may be repaired within a few hours, I decided it was useless to bother with ammunition plants. Therefore the intimations that I have been connected with various explosions or accidents that have occurred in such plants in the United States is entirely wrong.

"I am not a college man, but I hold the diploma of an efficient engineer from an American correspondence school. I am interested in a plant that is manufacturing small machinery.

"I was serving with my regiment in the Champagne district, and saw the terrible havoc and loss caused by the French artillery fire.

"During my spare time I had invented a device to explode mines by doing away with the electrical wiring. In this way I was able to overcome the effect of dampness or water on the wires. I applied to the colonel of my regiment and he decided to give me a chance.

Sent to United States.

"He put me in touch with the secret service office, and one of the agents arranged for my passage to the United States. I came here on the steamship Rotterdam, arriving, I believe, on April 23 last. I had no trouble in getting into the country."

Fay said that he and Scholz had conducted a large number of experiments with his mine device along the Hudson River, but declared that Daech was in no way implicated. The man said that although Fay did not appear to be a German name, Robert Fay was his correct name, and that he was listed under that name in his regiment. He also said that he was a German, and denied that his father had been an Englishman. Fay said he was well supplied with money when he arrived here, and therefore was able to act on his own responsibility.

Use It in Canada.

"When the German secret service arranged for my trip to the United States they left the advisability of using my device to the judgment of German military and naval authorities in this country," Fay said. "Both Captain Von Papen and Captain Boy-Ed strongly refused to make any use of my device in this country, but said that its use in Canada would depend upon developments."

Lieutenant Fay explained how he planned to attach a mine carrying his device to the sterns of ammunition-laden vessels sailing from New York. By properly arranging the device, he calculated, the mine would be exploded when the steamer was about half a day out.

Fay declined to say whether he had attempted to attach mines to any ships in this harbor, but he declared that he had not attached loaded mines to any vessels. He said he had been ready since early in July to carry out his mine planting campaign and waited here, hoping the German military and naval attaches would change their minds about accepting his offer.
