Annual Collection

For Belvedere and Mount Carmel Cemeteries.

It is unnecessary to remind the people of this city of the anniversary of the Belvedere and Mount Carmel Cemeteries. Our people's care of the graves of the dead is one of the high-water marks of civilization. If you go into any community and desire to discover the status of its ethical culture, a visit to the resting places of the departed will furnish you with the key note. The graveyard proclaims the measure of reverence and gratitude that is in the hearts of the community. "This is a Christian community," the visitor will exclaim, their cemeteries show careful attention, the cultivation of God's Acre is not neglected. The temples of the dead are kept white and pure, and their last resting place is amid beautiful surroundings. We know this reverence and this gratitude are embedded in the brain and heart of our people, so beyond reminding them of the date set apart for these collections, which is on Sunday next, the 10th inst., at all the Masses in the churches of the city, it is unnecessary to proceed any further, and the collection on next Sunday for the Catholic Cemeteries will undoubtedly be a record one.

Too much praise cannot be extended to the energetic committees who devote their time and attention to this laudable object, and the courtesy and kindness extended to all classes by the competent caretakers merit the highest commendation. It is probable that during the summer months large numbers of Americans and Canadian naval men will visit our shores, and it goes without saying that amongst them will be found many Newfoundlanders or their descendants, who will be proud of the fact that the resting places of their ancestors have been carefully attended to by those they have left behind them in dear old Newfoundland, and will be a source of the greatest consolation to our fellow-countrymen, who have emigrated from our shores during the past half century. These expatriated Newfoundlanders are to be found in nearly every American and Canadian city from the Atlantic to the Pacific, as well as in the army and navy of the Great Republic.—Com.

VAIN LONGINGS.

WALT MASON

I'd like to be as slim and straight as when I was a middleweight. I wouldn't run so much to waist if sternly refused to taste the kinds of grub containing starch, and if on food I'd daily march, instead of riding down the street, while thinner people use their feet. It's easy to reduce one's fat—the doctors all agree on that, the doctors of a dozen schools; but when I've read their list of rules, I have a sad and soulful sigh, and call for porthouse and pie. Vain longings I have often felt, to wear a smaller, shorter belt, of double chins I would dispose, and once again behold my toes. I know I ought to live on rice, and divers yarbs just off the ice; I ought to walk ten miles a day, and with the hefty dumbbells play, and in a year, the doctors state, I would have lost a ton of weight. But one may pay too great a price for looking willowy and nice; the cost of beauty comes too high, when one must shun the gaudy pie, forsake the gravy and the roast, and live on tea and brick-hard toast. No prudent man of ample girth will for a figure trade the earth.

Your Boys and Girls.

If a child is two or more years old, the only effective means of weaning from the bottle is through hunger. The bottle should be taken away at once and entirely, and nothing allowed except milk from a cup until the child takes this willingly. Sometimes a child will go an entire day without food, occasionally as long as two days, but one should not be alarmed on this account and yield. This is a matter of the child's will and not of his digestion, and when once he has been conquered it is seldom that any further trouble is experienced.

Few mothers realize how to properly lift their children. When a young baby is to be lifted from its bed, the right hand should grasp the clothing below the feet, and the left hand should be slipped beneath the infant's body to its head. It is then raised upon the left arm. This method is the best because the entire spine is supported, and no undue pressure is made upon the chest or abdomen, as often happens if the baby is grasped around the body or under the arms.

Everyday Etiquette.

"What should I do when giving a person my name card to introduce her to someone else?" asked Alice. "Across the top of your card write: Introducing Miss Helen R. Smith." Put the card into a small envelope, which is left unsealed and addressed to the person to whom the introduction is to be made," instructed her mother.

Bread should never be put away in a cloth. The cloth absorbs the moisture and gives the bread an unpleasant taste.
