Chicago, Jan. 10.—War rumors got into our market, and the question of peace or war was determined in favor of peace by the wheat party.
The bulls see nothing in wheat on a peace basis, and the peace party recruited the bear party today. There is a good legitimate milling demand for our winter wheat, and our exports are very good. The condition of the new winter wheat is reported as the poorest at this time in many years. Its vitality is low. The seed bed was not good; the seed itself was not prime. A large proportion of the spring wheat production has found its way into winter wheat districts for local con-sumption, and it is difficult to see, with cash wheat here, in St. Louis, interests, and European peace seems as remote as it was three weeks ago, but the legitimate wheat situation seems to be sound at present prices, Ruthven, Ont." war or no war. We question whether wheat could not have shown fully more strength without these war rumors. The news from the Pacific coast is favorable to higher prices. The weather is dry there and the demand for Australia is a feature of the Pacific coast market. Wheat on the surface acts weak, but on any fair break we advise buying.

Corn receipts big, and expectations will continue so; prices weak and low-er, with light trade; covering of short tuff past few days leaves market with very little support.
Provisions opened weak, on realizing by longs, but offerings were well absorbed, and the market held steady for the balance of the day.

Mrs. Gibson was also put on the stand for the prosecution, but she could not give an accurate account of the row, as she was very much excited at the sight of her husband's wound. She said Gibson had a very violent temper, and frequently made threats, some of which she was afraid

Higgins claimed that he inflicted the wound merely by accident. He had drawn the knife to scare Gibson, and had raised his hand to ward off a blow which Gibson was about to give him with a chair. His arm glanced off, and the wound was the result. Higgins was discharged.

and His Wife. H. L. Brewer, the well-known artist, and his wife, have lived for over a year in a cottage on wheels, says the San Francisco Chronicle. Their movable residence is at present a lot in Alameda, where they are couched under a spreading oak, and where they intend to stay the coming win-

Their house is a result of Mr. Brewer's attempt to secure a place where he cloud work at his art and still be at liberty to go where he wished. The house was built in 1894, at a cost of about $500, and Mr. Brewer said recently that he had already made enough by the saving in rent and expenses to pay for it. The van is some what similar to those in use by gypsies, but is fitted up in much more comfortable style. It has one room 10 feet long, 41/2 feet wide and 6 feet 8 inches high, and in this space Mr. Brewer and his wife have lived, siept and eaten for the last year. At one end of the wagon, over the wheels, is a raised platform, and here is a pooket edition of a cooking stove, with a collection of chining pots and pans around it. Under the seat of the wagon is Mrs. Brewer's cupboard, and her table consists of the top of the big trunk, which contains the ward robe of the pair. The sleeping arrangements are, however, the greatest puzzle to the uninitiated. The bed consists of two big cushions laid out upon the floor of the wagon, and bedding is stored in a box under the wagon, reached by a trap door in its floor.

The little house has plenty of light, as it must have, for Mr. Brewer has it for his studio on occasions. The door is on the left side, between the wheels, and is made in two halves, so that either can be opened independently of the other. Beside the door there is a big plate glass window and several smaller windows. The whole contrivance, including two persons, the little stove and the big trunk, weighs less than 2,400 pounds, and can be taken anywhere by two horses Mrs. Brewer is no less enthusiastic about the traveling home than her husband. All last winter they were demiciled in the hills above Berkeley and never felt better in their lives. Last case arising out of a kick-and-punch August they started with their caravan row between two men, but it was the from Alameda. They went over the hills outcome of a dispute in which a one- to Centra Costs county and spent several legged boy of 18 years, a middle-aged months sketching in the valleys. Then man, a pocket-knife and an axe play- they went to Berkeley for the winter, and in the spring moved their residence farther up into the hills. This winter they expect to spend in Alameda, and in the spring they will start out for a tour of the state
