CHARACTER VITAL IN ALL EDUCATION

J. G. Althouse, Former School Principal Here, Addresses Secondary Teachers.

EIGHTY ATTEND

J. G. Althouse, formerly a pupil of the London Central collegiate, now head master of the University schools, Toronto, speaking last night to the London secondary schools teachers' federation, declared that character building was a more important part of secondary school edu-cation than the "mere acquisition of knowledge."

knowledge."

More than eighty members of the federation attended this, the third annual, banquet, which was held in Smallman & Ingram's dining rooms.

T. W. Oates, president of the federation, presided, and several members of the old and new school board were guests of the evening. Mayor Wenige, also a guest of the evening remarked also a guest of the evening, remarked that in spite of three previous invi-tations this was the first time he had been able to attend. He assured members that he could be counted upon to stand behind any sound scheme of better facilities for secondary education in the city

Campbell Speaks.

Bryden Campbell, retiring chair-man of the board, in a brief address explained the changes which will be made effective in the administration of the school board after the first of the year. These changes, the result various recommendations made by Or. Horace L. Brittain of the Citizens' Research Institute of Canada, would, he hoped, bring about a saving in the expenditures of the board and would, he maintained, result in con-siderable saving of labor and ease in execution of the board's policies in the future.

Mr. Althouse, discussing the present condition of secondary education in Ontario, stated that there were two distinct trends apparent today. was the insistent demand by was the eagerness on the part of most teachers to have full control of the school in order to demonstrate

Payment By Results.

'As a result of this trend we have come to consider the payment-by-results idea," he said. "It has been tried in certain cases in the province. Perhaps it was the Increased salaries which had something to do with it. The boards felt that they had hired experts to do the work and, as all good businessmen, were inclined to leave the carrying out of the work

"Then there are two distinct sides of education. There is the acquisition of knowledge and there is the building up of character. It is easy to test out the efficiency of a school in the first case. There are plenty of examinations to do that. But how are you going to make a test of the second part? Time alone can truly prove the value of a school or a master in the building of character.

Sportsmanship Test. est which be the reward of such efforts.

you have a school where character is being built on a sound foundation. I think the public should realize that the public should realize the public should r portant side of any educational effort.

"When it does, any friction now existing between school boards and principals will disappear. The public will then know exactly what is the aim of secondary education, will know what to expect from it, and will, I hope, recognize the test of true sportsmanship when it is made evident. The finest product of a secondary school is a man or weman who can lose a game without rancor and win in modesty. The spirit of the school should be that esprit de corps which spells 'play the game.' It is the spirit which teaches the individual to submerge himself for the benefit of the team. It is the bottom and foundation of all worth-while education, and is today the most needed single thing in the educational system in Ontario."

LIBERAL CLUB ELECTIONS WILL CONTINUE TODAY

Voting in the elections of the London Liberal club will continue today. The voting hours are from two to five in the afternoon and from seven to nine in the evening.

Courtesy and service, a willingness to do a little bit more than is absolutely necessary have won for us friends and business. Our competition in the great fight for business has been clean and wholesome, and those who have been maxing it in the open have been making it possible to render a service that improves with each day. I refer to those outside the traffic department. This proved impossible as there was a terrific gale blowing on the lake. The season at Dover and Maitland does not finish until Dec. 30.

The reason for this is that the season in Pennsylvania and New York finishes the end of December, and hence the fishermen on the Canadian shore opposite have to comply with these laws.

In Ohio, which is across from Port Stanley, the season closes on Dec. 15, thus tugs at Port Stanley stop fishing on the same date.

Practically all the herring caught at the present time are used for smoking purposes, the cured fish being sent to all parts of the continent.

Fishermen at Port Stanley say that they have never experienced such a quiet fishing season.
