

Queens Decides To Play Regina In Toronto If They Win

WIN FROM TIGERS WILL MEAN TITLE GAME IN TORONTO

Kingston Gridders Vote To Play in Queen City If Victors.

BENGAL CREW INTACT

Canadian Press Despatch.
Kingston, Nov. 22.—All of Queen's senior players, except Delahay, were out this afternoon for a final workout with the Royal Military College intermediate team. "Red" McKelvey and Mundell were out with the tricolor squad. McKelvey has had a special boot made to protect his toe which he broke in the game here between Queens and Varsity. Art Anglin, a former member of the T. S. team, was out with Queens, and will likely take the place of Delahay, who will not be able to play because of his injured arm.

At Queen's today it was stated it is almost certain that providing Queens defeat Hamilton Tigers, the Dominion rugby final with Regina will be played in Toronto. The athletic board of control decided to allow the members of Queen's senior team to decide whether the game will be played in Kingston or Toronto. The players voted in favor of Toronto, as they state they can play better football there.

In view of the fact that Queens and Hamilton Tigers could not agree on the matter of a referee and judge of play for the game Saturday it was decided to allow the C. R. U. to make the selection. According to the rules of that body the president, Percy Roberts, Montreal, will do the selecting. Hamilton was under the impression that R. Hewitson, Toronto, who is secretary, would choose the officials.

TIGER LINE-UP INTACT.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Hamilton, Nov. 22.—The Hamilton Tigers, champions of the Big Four and conquerors of the O. R. F. U. champions, the Hamilton Rowing Club, had their last practice this evening before leaving for Kingston to tackle the champions of the Inter-Collegiate Union, Queens.

The team will leave Friday and go as far as Belleville, where they will spend the night, going on to Kingston in the morning. The Tigers will put exactly the same men on the field as they did when they won the Big Four championship from the Argos.

It is realized that the Queen's back division, Leadley and Bastions, are a pair hard to beat. They have all kinds of speed, brains and experience. They outshine the Tiger back division in their ability to kick field goals. Any time they are within 35 or 40 yards of the opponents' line they have a good chance to ring up three points. The Tigers' backs have been a dismal failure in that respect. In other respects they compare more favorably with their rivals. They all have had "sure hands" during the whole season, and Gibb has shown ability to kick for distance and to place his kicks. He is useful at line plunging and end run also. From here it promises to be a great battle between teams evenly matched.

JUNIORS WIN CAGE TILT

Special to The Advertiser.
St. Thomas, Nov. 22.—St. Thomas Collegiate rugby team defeated London C. I. by 16 to 0 at the Athletic Grounds this afternoon in an exhibition.

In the second quarter Medcalf and Hunter were sent off for fighting. Following a singular end run by Scott, the locals went through for the last score in the game, a touch, which was unconverted.

The 1st quarter was played in the twilight, considerably handicapping both teams.

DUNDEE TO TRY FOR LOST CHAMPIONSHIP

Will Meet Jack Bernstein in New York Benefit Ring Show.

Associated Press Despatch.
New York, Nov. 22.—Johnny Dundee, world's featherweight champion, and Jack Bernstein of Yonkers, junior lightweight title-holder, have been matched for a fifteen-round contest, the main attraction of an all-star show at Madison Square Garden on Dec. 17 for the benefit of a newspaper Christmas fund.

Bernstein's 130-pound, title, which he won from Dundee in May, will be the only crown at stake. It will be Dundee's first appearance in a New York ring since he won the featherweight championship from Eugene Criqui of France last July.

In one of the preliminary bouts Sonny Smith, Montreal, bantamweight, will meet "Cannonball Eddie" Martin of Brooklyn.

The Panorama of Baseball

ANOTHER MAN WHO DID A NEW THING IN BASEBALL.

No, this is not Tom Brown at Oxford, but a citizen of Brooklyn, who, way back in 1860, took his club—the Excelsiors—up New York State to play baseball, the first real baseball tour. His name is J. B. Leggett, and his name deserves to go by the side of Wright and his victorious Red Stockings of Cincinnati, for the streak of luck that followed Leggett was much like the streak that followed Wright, and the number of continuous victories much alike. And, similarly, they both suddenly met a turn in the tide of things and faced defeat.

Leggett was captain of the Excelsiors, and he took his team to Albany, where the tour began on June 30, 1860. Their exceptional streak of victories caused the whole state to show unbounded interest in the game, and it is recorded that Leggett was besieged with invitations to visit every point in the Empire State, so that those who had never seen the game might be initiated. Of course, this was out of the question. But Leggett found himself a baseball missionary. All around him, in localities that had never played, there sprang up ball teams that dreamed of the possibility of some day playing such good ball that they might face the Excelsiors of Brooklyn.

The same splendid record followed Leggett when he took his team into Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland, but soon after they met with one unexpected defeat, and that from a team in his own home town, Brooklyn. This was the old Atlantic.

Then came the second game to decide the championship between them, and rowdism raised its head to such an extent that Leggett withdrew his team—winning at the time—and consented to call it a draw. The rowdies who had come to root for the Atlantics spoiled a healthy rivalry between two teams from which fine ball could have been had. But the teams never met again. The contest has been brilliantly described by Spalding in his book, "America's National Game."

GIANTS, BROOKLYN WANT NEW BLOOD FOR 1924 SEASON

Boston Nationals Ready To Trade Any Players Except Pitchers.

CUBS STAND PAT

By JOHN B. FOSTER. Copyright.

New York, Nov. 22.—National League clubs of the Metropolitan district—the New York and Brooklyn teams—are ready to be ripped wide open for the coming season. It has already been told exclusively in these despatches that waivers have been asked on about half of the present Giant roster of players. Now Brooklyn joins the parade by announcing that any player of that team, except Grimes, Johnston and Vance, is of the market.

The Boston Nationals are ready to let anything go except pitchers, which seems to be the best commodity that Boston has. St. Louis has been fishing for trades for six weeks, but is trying to catch whale with minnow bait, and Philadelphia, sadly in need of pitching, doesn't know which way to turn to get it.

Hints at Trade.

One Philadelphia player has just surprised his friends by stating that he probably would go to the Giants with Hurlin and another player, probably Walker in a trade. Of course, he may have been making the wish father to the thought, but it appears that he is expecting a change.

The Cubs, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh will come nearer to being stand-patters than any other team of the National circuit. The Cubs can be strengthened, but they don't intend to be weakened. Cincinnati is aging, but hopes to hang on for one year more. The Pittsburghs will shift, but their shifts already are in formation. They have taken on youngsters, and are willing to trade some of their older hands.

May Seek Maranville.

Brooklyn has suggested that it might get in the race for Maranville, the Pittsburgh shortstop. If it did, Jimmy Johnston could be played at second, where he is as good as any going, but that would still leave Brooklyn fishing for a third baseman. Ruether, the Brooklyn pitcher, has been aching to get into a Giant uniform for three years. Last year, instead of reporting to his team at once, he hung around San Antonio, where the Giants were training until the Giant management would have been justified in chasing him off with a club.

When Brooklyn mentioned the players it would trade, Fournier was overlooked. He has a contract for another year. But players who have contracts can be traded provided they are not cut in pay.

WILL FIRPO FIGHT WILLS?

Tex Rickard Still Hopes To Match Two Heavies.

Associated Press Despatch.
New York, Nov. 22.—Tex Rickard has not given up plans to stage a match between Luis Firpo and Harry Wills in Buenos Aires next March or April, despite the negro's declaration that he would not fight in the Argentine, it was learned today. Rickard said he had put the Firpo-Wills negotiations temporarily in the background to give more attention to his winter program, but added that his representatives in the Ar-
