United States Government, too, is going to stand by its supposed privileges under the treaty of 1818, and such is the condition of things, it will plead Newfoundland's cause with Great Britain. That is, the colony and the republic profess to suffer in common from French aggression and, therefore, an abiding sympathy is sure to obtain. Should the republic succeed in enforcing its alleged rights it will appear to the colonies in the future as a powerful ally. In the colonial mind the blame will attach to England and the merciful deliverer will be seen in the hands of a British colony from the heartless neglect of British rulers. This is a singular complication indeed, and it is not impossible that, with France harassing and the United States attacking, Newfoundland may be lost to the British Empire. But the French shore may be made a British shore and the French admiral and his boats driven into French waters before that is permitted.

Local poets may draw consolation from the fact that their troubles have been shared by those eminent in verse. Walt Whitman in his new book tells how certain of his well-known poets were rejected by Scribner's, Harper's and The Century.

M. G. Cameron said in his speech the other day that he knew "how Canadian politicians secured baronetries and became millionaires." That settles it. It will be Sir Malcolm Cameron, the millionaire Bank, inside a month.

Dominion Day. Canada should, and does, celebrate Dominion Day as the greatest of her holidays. Toronto, being the city that it is, has never done its comparative share in observing the day. It is a day of national importance, and it is a day of national importance, and it is a day of national importance.

THE COMMITTEE OF CRITICS. The Executive Committee of the City Engineer yesterday afternoon met at the City Engineer's office to consider the recommendation of the City Engineer that the City Engineer should be removed from his office.

The Battle of the Day. It is a Washington fashion to deny that any desire for extension of territory ever disturbs the peace and smooth contented minds of American statesmen. They profess to have attained that blissful condition of satisfied sovereignty wherever the United States flag flies, and a precise area of way, would be calamitously disturbed by the addition of a new backward in admitting that the United States would warmly welcome the incoming of Canada to the union if by her own choice she came. They add—always add—that while they feel strong enough to bring Canada in by force, yet to annex her by force and retain her by the right of might would not only rob the United States of its continental and civil advantages but would impair the very existence of the American union as it now is or then would be. So prevalent and so wide is the view that the United States is not a nation of the question, this being the case a put of the shrewd people intended to the peace of the nation. There is a conquest planned, but its battles are to be bloodless victories won in the custom houses along the border or achieved by the purchase of territory and the transfer of the invaders south forth such charges as thirty cents per bushel duty on barley and twenty cents per bushel duty on the gatlings pour out a stream of ad valorem taxation. Their strategic leaders claim that those among us who are wounded in the pocket will double up like broken twigs and be easily pressed into service by the invaders. In very truth they say, and the whole plan of campaign is based on the belief, that while Canada could not be conquered, and though temporarily overcome would struggle to rise again, yet she can be bought, and she can be bribed to any end. It is true that while Canada would not be bought with bayonet she cannot withstand a foreign shilling. Shall it be told abroad that if the advance scout of an invading army were to find a silver bullet overboard of the Canadian militia they would throw away their arms and desert the field in aversion of pursuit of the whistling pellet?

The latest turn of events in Newfoundland has been most favorable for the theatrical politicians at Washington, who have recently struck up a sympathy with Newfoundland. It has been paraded during all the trying history of the French shore squabble and has not helped to simplify settlement. A mutual sympathy was again created when the colony and the republic agreed upon a reciprocal treaty, which, on Canada protesting, England forbade as an illicit love. But the sympathetic union established between Washington and the neighboring colony is as nothing to what is now contemplated. Affairs were in a temporary settlement when the French refused American vessels the right to buy bait from English subjects in St. George's Bay, a privilege long enjoyed by mutual profit, and guaranteed the Americans (to say claim) under the treaty of 1813. This new assertion of supremacy by France, and previously made, has angered Newfoundlanders so that they threaten to undo the temporary settlement so recently arranged and revert to their normal condition of armed uprisings.
