

must be wrong with the institutions; the moral tone is too low; education, not to speak of co-education, is a failure, and the institutions should be closed by law. If the subjects taught, and the mode of teaching are not suitable to both sexes, the fault lies with the teacher: he should step down and out, and make way for a man whose moral character, love of humanity, and sound common-sense fit him for one of the most sacred positions in the world. The morality, the teaching, the sacredness of college halls should stand second to only one place—the church. Let the professors be men, or women, who hold their office as sacred as that of the Christian minister, and we have no fear. If such persons are not at present filling these positions, a reform is needed, and that at once.

MT. ALISON.—The new “Memorial Hall” of this Eastern institution is approaching completion. A cut in the Halifax Mail presents to us a handsome, three-storey building, of red sandstone, surmounted by a tower. This building, when completed, will cost about $25,000, and will be a lasting monument, marking an era in the advance of the education of the East, as well as that of Mount Alison University. The first graduating class numbered two, in the year 1863. Since then eighty-nine degrees have been conferred in arts—one on a lady. Seven honorary degrees have been donated. The funds of the College have lately been increased by a donation of $10,000 from a friend of the institution.

MANITOBA.—A new Medical College has been established in the City of Winnipeg, which will be in affiliation with the Provincial University. Lectures commenced on November 15th. The course is to continue four years, under the guidance of Drs. Jones, Ferguson, Blanchard, Codd, and other professional men. The phenomenal city is bound to keep up its reputation. The minds of its inhabitants seem to be returning to a proper level: all interest is no longer centered in corner lots and the fortunes of the present moment: the future welfare is being looked to, and the enlightenment of the rising generation. The Methodists of Manitoba intend to establish
