SANITARY QUALITIES OF THE VINE.
Prof. Bouchardat attributes to the vine powerful sanitary properties. He asserts the wherever it is cultivated to any considerable extent there is a very sensible diminution of intermittents. The virtue is attributed a time action of the vine on the effluvia what cause fevers. cause fevers.

MORE USES FOR CARBOLIC ACID.—As cording to the London's Lancet " the used carbolic acid has been found specially effective in all that class of local festering, pustaliating diseases of the skin which are at occ so common and so difficult to cure, they as c'ude all kinds of pustules, boils and as buncles, sycosis, pustular ache, and festeng fingworm; such strumous sores, especially at the neck, as come under the care of the physician; also phthis is in its second and that stages, and cases of bronchitis accompanied with more or less purulent expectoration it is found, however, that, in order to be efficacious, the carbolic acid must be brough into contact with the part to be acted on the "Lancet" says that in many case where the acid has been found ineffective the failure has been due to a neglect to insmit this contact. this contact.

the failure has been due to a neglect to mism this contact.

SUDDEN CHECKING OF PERSTIRATION.—
A Boston merchant, in "lending a hand" on board one of his ships on a windy dr, found himself at the end of an hour and half, pretty well exhausted and perspiring freely. He sat down to rest, and engaging in conversation, time passed faster than he was aware of. In attempting to rise, he found he was unable to do so without assistance. He was taken home and put to bed where he remained two years, and for a tog time afterward could only hobble about with the sid of a crutch. Less exposures that this have in constitutions not so vigorous resulted in inflammation of the lungs—"pactor and inflammation of the lungs—"pactor causing tedious rheumatisms, to be a source of torture for a lifetime. Multited of lives would be saved every year, and annalizable amount of human suffering work he prevented, if parents would begin to explain to their children, at the age of three of lour years, the danger which altends cooling off too quickly after exercise, and the importance of not standing still after exercise, a work; or play, or of restaining exposed to the wind, or of sitting at an open wirdow or door, or of pulling off any garment, errothe hat or bornet, while insteat.
