Sire C. Bagot.—We copy the following from the Montreal Weekly Transcript, of the 17th August:—

"His Excellency the Governor General and family left this city for Kingston on Sunday last, very much to the surprise and regret of a large class of persons, who consider the 4th Commandment binding on Governors and great men as well as on others. The motive alleged for this bad example is, that on any other day the conveyance of His Excellency would have interfered with that of the mails! A much more feasible reason is this:—His Excellency arrived in Montreal from Quebec, and was received without the slightest mark of congratulation from the citizens, and he did not like to leave the city in the same way. Notwithstanding this, we think His Excellency would have done better to wait until Monday, and have ordered a company or two of red-coats to salute him as he left the city; a goodly number of afficials would have joined in the salute."

In the propriety of these remarks, so far as respects the travelling on the Sunday, we fully concur. But we regret that a "feasible reason," such as that alleged, should be given for His Excellency's departure on the Sunday. We believe it to be too true that His Excellency is becoming personally unpopular, from his supposed acquiescence in the late most reprehensible appointments; but we would entreat the loyalists not to impute all that has been hitherto done to His Excellency's free-will, but to consider the novelty and difficulty of his position.

It is also shown that the "Constitutional Reform Society of Upper Canada," contained among its members the leaders of the rebellion, and that the now Hon. Mr. Hincks was their Secretary. So much the Church argues against the loyalty of the gentleman: the next points are his political inconsistency and depravity. These are conclusively made out from the columns of the Examiner, of which Mr. Hincks was Editor, and instances of it read to the somewhat scattered multitude, at various times and places, which served considerably advancement of Chatham, have recently built a large and advancement of Chatham, have recently built a large and advancement of Chatham, have recently built a large and advancement of Chatham, have recently built a large and advancement of Chatham, have recently built a large and advancement of Chatham, have recently built a large and advancement of Chatham, have recently built a large and to allay their excited feelings:—

Akbar Khan claims that Dost Mahomed be sent back, and that we evacuate the country, leaving an agent at Cabul in exchange for the English captives.

The army, it was thought, would not leave the place until they moved to Cabul, there to meet Gen. Nott from Candahar. The Khyber Pass was being re-occupied by the Afreedes, and the whole road to Cabul stockaded and defended by all the obstructions the enemy could oppose.

Their first act of depredation was committed on Wednesday morning, by plundering Mr. Barnett's store-house, at the quarry, of twelve barrels of pork and two barrels of flour, which they distributed among some seventy shanties, that have been built between this village and the mountain locks—a distance of about two miles. Saturday, August 20. We have given above, a simple statement of the most material facts, as they occurred—purposely omitting a multitude of minor ones, but which were not less aggravating or annoying, to those who had to suffer from the absence of a protecting power against such lawless outrages. The inhabitants of this village, and for many miles around, are now, at the moment of writing, and have been since Monday last, completely under the power of the rioters, who are patroling in all directions, with as nuch impudence and insolence as victorious brigands in a sacked town; but fortunately, no lives, as yet, have been lost, or blood shed, from the simple fact, that no resistance has been made.

THE CASE OF NELSON HACKETT .- The circumstances attending the delivery of this person to the authorities of Arkansas, having been brought up in the House of Commons in England, and having merely elicited the fact that his surrender had been made in a legal manner by the proper authorities in Canada, the next question which suggests itself is, whether our Governor in Council have or have not been imposed upon by Governor in Council have or have not been imposed upon by the official documents produced by the slave agent, in support of the charge alleged against the supposed delinquent. Of course it is impossible for us, without possessing the facilities necessary for acquainting ourself more intimately with the subject, to answer this question satisfactorily. However, in the absence of the explanations which we before said had been offered to us by the Sheriff, through his Deputy, we have no hesitation in letting the public know all we have been able to gather from individuals in our own neighbourhood. individuals in our own neighbourhood.

Nelson Hackett was arrested in the town of Chatham, and Nelson Hackett was arrested in the fown of Chatham, and committed to the custody of the Sheriff, by James Read, and Thomas McCrae, Esquires, on the 7th of September, 1841.

Mr. Abraham Unsworth was then Jailer of this District, and into his enstody Hackett was delivered. We are informed by Lord Stanley in the House of Commons, that the first application for Hackett's surrender, being unsupported by the requisite "forms" was refused. Consequently Hackett should, in our judgement, have been immediately set at liberty. But we find that he was kept in prison until the slave agent obtained those "forms," in the pursuit of which we have learned that he was directed by his legal adviser, Mr. Prince, to get a Bill of Indictment found against the prisoner. To make assurance doubly sure, he procured, as we believe, no less than eight Bills, besides a host of other documentary evidence. While all this was doing, the former jailer died, and the present gentleman was doing, the former janer died, and the present gentleman succeeded to the situation: but he never saw the commitment of Hackett: and if it had ever been in the hands of his predecessor, it must, assuredly, have been afterwards withdrawn, as it was not to be found among his other papers handed over to the new neumbent. So that the prisoner was kept in jail without even the authority of a commitment, and this, too, after the Govern-ment had refused to give him up, and when, therefore, there could be no sufficient reason for his further detention. By what authority, then, was he detained? Who took upon himself the responsibility of dispensing with the usual forms of law upon this occasion? It cannot surely be that the mere ipse dixit of the Sheriff or the Queen's Counsel was sufficient authority However, as we before stated, on the night of the 8th February last, at about ten o'clock, Hackett was removed from the jai in the presence of John Mercer Esquire, Deputy Sheriff, who, n the discharge of his duty, agreeably to the instructions of the in the discharge of his duty, agreeably to the instructions of the Governor in Council, surrendered him to Mr. Louis Davenport, the person appointed by the Arkansas authorities to receive him, and who has been heard to say that the principal inducement in getting Hackett back was, to deter other slaves from

In reply to Mr. Hawes's question, in the Commons, Lord Stanley is reported to have said that Hackett was charged with burglary and robbery." Now what does Mr. Davenport say? To ourself he said that he (Hackett) had committed a rape on the person of a young lady of respectability. That Hackett did steal a horse and a watch, when he absconded, no one pretends to deny, but the other and more flagrant crime, we do not believe to have been mentioned in the document from Arkansas. Mr. Davenportalse assured us that it had cost at least fifteen hundred dollars to get Hackett back; this we suppose was expended in feeing Counsel and Agent, and possibly, the immaculate Grand Jurors of Arkansas, for finding some of the Indictments. Can it for a moment be supposed that the love of justice is so predominant a feature in the character of the people of Arkansas, as to induce them to resort to so much trouble and expense for the sake of a mere horse thief? Assuredly not. The motive then that induced them to pursue Hackett was to show his fellow slaves that there was no security for them in Canada, and that if they ran away, they could and would be brought back.—Sandwich Herald.

A TRIP FROM LONDON TO THE WESTERN DISTRICT. (From the London Inquirer, 19th August.)

We never enjoyed ourself better than in the recent trip we made last week to the Western District. The drive to Chatham is really pleasant, and the roads are excellent; a circumstance that never fails to awaken feelings of delight in the heart of every lover of nature, when he beholds a beautiful harvest coming from the hands of a gracious and beneficent Creator. The weather, during the continuance of our trip, has been extremely fine, if we except an occasional thunder shower.— The crops at present are partially secure from further damage, and, after all the evil forebodings we heard in anticipation of bad ones, we consider, from what has falken under our own bad ones, we consider, from what has falken under our own observation, and the information we have gleaned from other observation, and the information we have gleaned from other sources, that the farmers will have an average crop, as well as that the farmers will have an average crop, as well as

The examination of the Home District Grammar School, which took place on Tuesday and Wednesday, last week, was an exhibition highly honourable to Mr. Crombie's diligence and talents as ateacher.—It was manifest that his pipals must have been put under a very laborious training, laborious on the part of the teacher, but admirably calculated to impress elementary instruction on the infinds of the young. Certainly, it is excited possible that a pupil, having once been thoroughly grounded in any department of education in this manner, should not be able to advance in it afterwards with great incidents.

manner, should not be able to advance in it afterwards with great facility and sluccess.

In the Classics, though the range of reading was not very extensive, the boys, in the highest Forms, not having advanced in the study of Latin and Greek, beyond Phadrus and Cornelins Nepos; and the Greek Delectus and Testainent, yet, in the application of the Grammatical rules of these languages, they seemed perfectly ready and conversant, omitting no information respecting the history and mythology of the ancients, that happened to be suggested by the words and phrases that occurred in translating. Mr. Crombie's system of instruction is certainly well calculated to produce the best species of scholarship.

The boys themselves seemed to be of a superior class, and one could hardly help admiring their deportment as much as their proficiency.
