A ROYAL YACHT 300 YEARS OLD.

The royal yacht in which Rameses and other ancient kings of Egypt made trips of state up and down the Nile thousands of years ago has been curios in the Carnegie Museum at Pittsburgh, Pa.

That was a dug out of the sand near the bed of the Nile last year and shipped to this country by Mr. Andrew Carnegie, who presented to the Carnegie Museum at Pittsburgh, Pa.

First step, that was secured, and then the boat was ordered to be brought to the city to bridge the all the dumping in the history of the world. The report, in the history of the world, the most interesting of all the world.

There are no evidences of row locks. In the stern are the remains of a canopy, which was used to draw the steering gear. A pole twelve feet long, found with the boat may have been used as a mast to support the main-

From the appearance of the ancient yacht it is evident that the Nile boat-builders of the Nile did not depend on a smooth sea as that of a canoe. However, when it is taken into consideration that the Nile is not a turbulent stream, the absence of a keel would not interfere with the yacht's good sailing qualities.

The wood of the hull is very well preserved. Although the timbers are decayed and worn, they have not been able, in thousands of years, to part the joints and seams that the Egyptian carpenters mortally together. On the starboard side of the hull are the faint remains of hieroglyphic inscriptions.

The ancient craft does not differ greatly in form from the dahabieh boats used upon the Nile to-day for carrying passengers. Every tourist who has been to Egypt is familiar with them. They are extremely agreeable vessels to ride in, and as one glides along the river, the moonlight of the Nile, among its stupendous ruins, can be easily imagined once well back in the days of the Pharaohs.

An Incident of the Storm.

A young married lady on North Yonge-street, who had omitted a necessary precaution for breakfast yesterday morning, was so deep that to get to the grocery store opposite seemed impossible. A young man who was passing volunteered to do the errand, and he bravely plunged through the drifts. He was profusely thanked, and the lady hoped his clothes were not ruined. He said no, it was a good serviceable suit, made for him by Archibald, 125 Yonge-street, for thirteen-fifty. They give satisfaction in any weather.

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF CONTROL

Numerous Local Improvements Endorsed—School Board Finances Again—Many Minor Matters.

The Board of Control met yesterday afternoon, and after considering reports of committees and a few communications, adjourned until this afternoon, when the report of the Legislative Committee, which, among other matters, contains the recommendation that the Council instruct the City Engineer to oppose legislation of the Department to oppose legislation in regard to Gas Company matters, will be discussed.

Shortly before the close of yesterday's meeting, the Mayor was served with the injunction secured by Ald. Spence in the gas case.

Pavements and Sidewalks. The Board endorsed the recommendations of the City Engineer for an asphalt pavement on Baldwin-street, from Spadina to Augusta-avenue, a tar macadam roadway on Macpherson-avenue, from the east side of Avenue-down-avenue, from Bloor-street to Jarvis-street, and on George-street, north of Bloor-street, from Jarvis-street to Wellington-place, from Spadina to Portland; First-avenue, from De-Grass-street to Logan-avenue; West-ley-street, near Parkview-avenue, East King-street, from Power to Wallace-street, Sherbourne-street, from Queen to Wilson-avenue; Fairmount-street, from Winchester to Amelia; Bloor-street, from Broad-avenue to Bloor-avenue; Brook-avenue, from Howland-street to Logan-avenue; Carleton-street, from Broad-avenue to Bloor-street; Bellevue-avenue, from Bellevue-place to Oxford-street; Huron-street, from Broad-avenue to Bloor-street; and Janet-avenue and Wallace-street.

The report of the Assessment Commissioner in regard to the extension of a lane between Gerrard-street and Queen to Wilson-avenue, Fairmount-street, from Winchester to Amelia; Bloor-street, from Broad-avenue to Bloor-avenue; Brook-avenue, from Howland-street to Logan-avenue; Carleton-street, from Broad-avenue to Bloor-street; Bellevue-avenue, from Bellevue-place to Oxford-street; Huron-street, from Broad-avenue to Bloor-street; and Janet-avenue and Wallace-street.

Starting on the Cheap. The City Commissioner, Coatsworth, is starting early to economize in his department, with a view to avoiding an overdraw of $20,000. The principle has been put upon the wages of the women who keep the City Hall clean. There are 27 of them, and they have been receiving on an average of $4.20 per week, thus saving the city over $100 a year. The manner in which the overdraw was committed to cut expenses has not been commented upon very favorably around the hall.

Controlled Graham brought up the matter in the Board of Control, and expressed his disapproval of the Commissioner's action. He pointed out that a week's pay for the women a dollar and a half, and that the City Hall is a public building, and the women who keep it clean are entitled to a fair wage. The matter will probably come up again in the Board of Control.

Scaffolding Inspection. The recommendation of the City Engineer that the city appoint a scaffolding inspector at $2.50 per day of nine hours will be further taken up to-day. Mr. Coatsworth, the hall is absolutely impossible for the present staff to see that the provisions of the by-laws of the city are carried out. The recommendation of the City Engineer that the city appoint a scaffolding inspector at $2.50 per day of nine hours will be further taken up to-day. Mr. Coatsworth, the hall is absolutely impossible for the present staff to see that the provisions of the by-laws of the city are carried out.

Waterfront Improvements. City Solicitor Caswell was instructed to press the application before the Dominion government for water front lands patented to the Harbor Commission, near the Queen's Wharf. The lands are situated on the waterfront, and the City Engineer has applied for them. The City Engineer has applied for them.

Must Give Details. The Works Committee asked for over $50,000 for interim appropriation in advance of the estimates for the year. The committee has asked for the money, and the City Engineer has applied for them. The City Engineer has applied for them.

School Board Finances. The City Auditor, as instructed at the meeting of the Board of Control, reported that the appropriation granted to the Public School Board for repairs in 1901 was $20,000, out of $25,000 asked. The amount expended was $23,573. The Mayor wanted to know if the latter amount was well paid. The matter was left over.

Want Interviews. Col. Patterson's letters in regard to the dismissal of Mr. Taylor from the City Commissioner's Department were read, and he will be asked to wait upon the Board next Wednesday. Mr. Ferguson asked an interview with the Board in reference to arrears of Western Hospital taxes. He is in-structed to attend next Wednesday's meeting.

The request of the Technical School Board for $120,000 to liquidate the liability of 1901 was passed. The City Hall Notes. The flags flying at half-mast in buildings were down at half-mast in commemoration of the death of Queen Victoria.

The County Council will confer with the Civic Works Committee regarding the pavement of Dundas-street between Bloor and the Junction.

Extraordinary State of British Politics. From The Fortnightly Review. Lord Rosebery has completed for his part the work which he has pursued in the lines with Mr. Chamberlain of destroying every distinction of principle in English political life. Between them they have thrown into the melting pot the whole of all that was definite and different in party convictions. Toryism, it knew itself before the arch-Radical and detested demagog of the last days became "the spokesman of our party" upon domestic questions, is as dead as Lord Eldon. Lord Rosebery has returned to public life to urge a Unionist policy upon the Liberal party with the object of displacing a Unionist government, as the Colonial Secretary, and of Radical measures upon Conservative and Liberal alike.

The Imperial and social aspects of Chamberlain and Bismarck's new variations of one another. When Lord Rosebery speaks he gives his education and deeper vision to the Colonial Secretary's main principles. When Mr. Chamberlain addresses the nation he speaks of the future of the empire, the sense of a closer grasp and a more practical energy to the advocacy of the ex-Premier's very ideas. In the vital characteristics of the statesmanship to which they are both aspirants they are as much alike as a pair of gloves. The thumbs may be on different sides, but that is all. Whether the two Liberal Imperialists, now agreeing in everything essential except their opinion of each other, are to work together for the gain of the empire or against each other to the loss of the empire, the excited interview excited intervention which can determine it. It is that of the King!

Nothing looks more ugly than to see a pair of gloves covered over with dirt. Why have these distinguished men, who are so much alike in their ways, come, etc., can be seen in the following.

Mr. Henry Duncan has written to the president of the East York Conservative Association that, owing to the accident he sustained some weeks ago, he resigns the position of party standard-bearer in the forthcoming provincial election. The annual meeting of the association will be held at Merkleham this afternoon, and Mr. Duncan's letter will be read there.
