Yet this is whitherward the empire tends and this direction of its course and important questions they have had on board, flies thirty-one miles in an to meet and solve in the development er closed circuit, and second, that it reof their own country, they have also been forced to consider and deal with life another aeroplanist accomplishes been forced to consider and deal with If another aeroplanist accomplishes them from an imperial standpoint and this same feat within four months of in connection with imperial affairs. This of itself is a great gain. Canada has passed from dependence to practical independence, and even The Leeds and Grenville Independent the period of tutelage is nearing its end. Her lead is being followed by the T. W. Ralph; vice-president, J. H. end. Her lead is being followed by the other self-governing British states, and the motherland herself has risen to a treasurer, G. W. Chapman; directors, and is readily accepting the new age. Wonderful as has been the advance since the first Dominion Day it would attained were allowed to obscure the mistakes and errors of the past or to lessen the feeling of responsibility for the great problems that yet await solution. Canadians have reason to be proud of the progress they have made, and because they have succeeded in turning the course of the empire along the only line that promises stability and permanence. That, however, does not mean less but more responsibility, both for the character of the nation they are building and the place they are to take in the counsels of the empire. If Canada has done much she might have done more and done it better. Yet, because of that much, more will be asked and expected from her. In Canadian home politics there is as yet not a little of the sordid and repulsive and a lack of the moral courage that will not sacrifice high principle to party interests. The fault does not lie with the conscience of the people, which is sound at heart, and in that lies the hope of the Dominion.

COMPULSORY SCHOOL ATTENDANCE From a statement issued by the British Board of Education some interesting information can be gleaned regarding the ages at which compulsory education ceases in various British states and foreign countries. School attendance, it appears, is not compul-

AT OSGOODE HALL

David McDonald has issued a writ against the London Guarantee and Accident Co., claiming $10,000 and interest, upon a bond given by the guarantee company to guarantee the good conduct of Douglas B. Findlay, book-keeper for McDonald.

Proceedings have been begun by Gordon, Mackay & Co., against W. C. Kidd of Listowel, to recover $1184.13 on an overdue promissory note.

In the stated case of the King against Louis Beboning, the court was asked if Beboning, who was convicted by Police Magistrate Price of Manitoulin on a charge of stealing a quantity of hay, was properly convicted. Beboning was allowed by the magistrate to go on suspended sentence. The court decides in favor of the crown and affirms the conviction.

Cornelius O'Leary, arialway conductor of Ottawa, in July, 1906, was killed by being run down by a street car while crossing a bridge. His widow recovered $1500 damages and costs. The company's appeal direct to the court of appeal has been dismissed with costs. Chief Justice Moss and Justice Osler affirming the decision, while Justices Garrow and Maclaren were for allowing the appeal.

The appeal of the City of Port Arthur from the judgment of Judge Clute finding in favor of Arlo Wells for $2000 has been allowed and the action dismissed with costs. Wells was injured getting off a street car.

The action of Gunley against Hamilton was for breach of warranty in regard to a horse. Judge Teetzel, at the trial at Hamilton, gave judgment for the plaintiff for $1500. The court of appeal has now dismissed the defendant's appeal with costs. Justice Meredith dissented.

The Michigan Central Railroad Coloses its appeal in the action brought against it by William M. Curtis, a brakeman of Niagara-on-the-Lake, for damages for injuries. Curtis, who lost a leg, will have a new trial.

While walking on a flat car near New Liskeard, in June, 1905, on the construction of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, H. O. Warren was thrown under the wheels and killed. His widow sued Contractor A. R. Macdonell for damages and was awarded $1400 and costs. Macdonell's appeal to the court of appeal has been dismised with costs, Judge Meredith favoring a new trial.

The divisional court dismissed the appeal from the judgment of Chancellor Boyd, dismissing the action of Lamont against Wenger, tried at Brampton, to have a certain contract of sale set aside. The court of appeal now gives judgment for the plaintiff for

The court of appeal has upheld the ecnviction of Robert Brown, pastor of the Chinese Church, for illegal performance of marriages. Justice Meredith declares that:

"If the question is whether several persons can, by meeting together and resolving that they be known as a new church, constitute a church or religious denomination, with power to duly ordain or appoint clergymen or ministers within the meaning of the marriage Editor World: In to-day's issue of The Toronto World you ask "Whose is the hidden hand that prevents the annexation of the suburbs of Toronto to the city?" and "What is their object?"

To a number in West Toronto the object is clear and the Toronto the Toronto World you ask "Whose is the meaning of the marriage act, it can, in my opinion, be answered only in the regular churches and religious denominations, and duly ordained and appointed clergymen and ministers are not of such mushroom-like growth. Justice Osler says: "Assuming a church or denomination can be created or grow up like Jonah's gourd, in a night, as did the First Chinese Christian Church in Toronto, it does not appear to have possessed any rites or ceremonies, according to which a minister or clergyman could be ordained or appointed."

JULY SALE

Thursday Starts the Great Upheaval of Summer Merchandise.

If there's a more abused word in the commercial language than the word "bargain," it is the word "sale." Many so-called "sales" just mean advertising "noise."

This store's sales are, and always have been, unique in as much as they always carry out the meaning of the word to the uttermost.

THE JULY SALE means that for months we have been making careful preparation to offer you values that will make the month a twenty-six day carnival, of every-day money-saving—a sale that will beat any former July sale ANY way and

THE JULY SALE means that thousands of our factory helpers and our 2000 fast electric sewing machines have been steadily working full steam ahead through the quietest months in the manufacturing season, to get ready for the mountains of garments to supply the demand promised by the price inducements. And that work means that while the highest wages have been paid to the workers, and painstaking thoroughness has entered into every phase of the making, not a cent has been wasted that could be

THE JULY SALE means lower prices than ever to you, because we bought that way. Our buyers, always warmly welcomed in the markets of the world, because of big buying and prompt cash payments, were received this year with positive joy because some of the big American stores in the clutch of tight money were buying nothing or very little. Our appetite for goods was undiminished, our desire for big value keener than ever-result: money-saving un-
