STEAMER DECK
FOR CIRCUS; ST.
JOHN MAN'S PLAN

Fred. Millican Evolves Unique
Big Scheme For World Tour
With Show

When F. S. Millican left his home here in 1890, he had an ambition to see the world from the windows of a locomotive cab. He went railroading and was a success at it. He was one of the youngest men ever put in charge of an engine on the I. C. R. He earned a splendid reputation with that line. He ran the engine that pulled the rails and ballast for the short line from Oxford to Pictou, N. S., and the first passenger train in Cape Breton was in his charge. He also had the honor of running one of the first elevated trains in Chicago.

He could not see as much of the planet as he wanted to see from the rails, so he quit them and went into the show business. He crossed the ocean, saw the lands beyond the sea, and found a sphere in the circus. Apparently even the circus could not go far enough to satisfy the wanderlust that Fred had developed. He is planning now, and a million and a half company has been organized to carry out the plan, to build a great 12,000 ton ship, call it Noah's Ark, stock it as a monster menagerie, aviary and aquarium, carry in it a troupe of acrobats and artists, and by means of a patent arrangement show a whole circus to 8,000 spectators at a time on a dock area 300 feet long by 125 feet across. All of this will be on a ship 525 feet long and with a beam of eighty feet. The arena plan is very interesting. At sea it is closed in so that the ark only will seem peculiar because, being driven by Diesel motors, she will have no funnel. There will then be no overhangs. When a show is to be given, the deck houses will be run out over the sides and supported on brackets, and balanced by water ballast, so that the ship will be perfectly rigid under all conditions. The details of the patent are not published, but it is said that they are very complete and practical. From keel to keelson the ship will be unique. The marine architects say it will be a great show in itself. She will be seaworthy to cross oceans, and at sea will have a draft of eighteen feet. With equal ease she will cross shallow bays, then having a draft of only fourteen feet, the difference being made by an adjustment of water ballast.

It is said that, in addition to the novelty of the idea, other advantages will be cheap water transportation, the exhibition of a whole show everywhere; by choosing routes looking to that end to be in commission all the year and always in summer sunshine, to open up a world of stands now unapproachable over the rails, and economies and novel acts of all kinds. The electrical displays will be on a super scale, and the comfort of spectators as perfect as they were in a box at a high-class opera.

Unlike the ark of old, this one is to be run to pay. It is hoped that the St. John man will find it all he expects in this way. He does it as he hoped he will remember St. John his benefactions. His ship will be built on this coast, and on her first tour will make St. John a port of call.

Mr. Millican is a son of James Millican, of St. John, so long prominent in railway circles.

Wholesalers Not to Sell Less Than
Gallon; Retailers No Bottles—
Theft of Coat in Street Car

George Allan was arraigned in the police court this morning on the charge of stealing a coat valued at $12, the property of L. Colwell, a street railway company conductor. The theft was alleged to have been committed on Saturday night between 5 and 6 o'clock. Conductor Colwell had placed his coat on a seat in the Douglas avenue car on which he was running, and a little after five o'clock when he went to look for the coat it was gone. Suspicion was directed against Allan, and he was taken into custody. The coat was found in his possession.

In court this morning he pleaded guilty, but said that he had been drinking and did not know what he was doing. His Honor told him that he was liable to be sent to Dorchester penitentiary for two years. He was remanded for sentence.

Two prisoners charged with drunkenness were fined $8 or thirty days in jail each. His Honor took occasion to remark that there was altogether too much bottle selling going on in the city now, and intimated that in the very near future the temperance people would endeavor to secure legislation whereby the wholesalers would not be allowed to sell less than a gallon of liquor, and the retailers would not be allowed to sell any liquor except for consumption on the premises.

Charles McCoppin, aged sixteen, charged with knocking in Sheriff street, and also with using profane language was fined $8.

Samuel Craig, who was arrested a few days ago on the charge of stealing a case of whiskey from Sand Point, was brought in and further remanded.

TAXES APPEAL AS TEST CASE

Matter of I. C. R. Employees Paying in Both City and County

George Lattimer, an employee of the I. C. R., who resides and pays taxes in the county, appeared before the city commissioners this morning to appeal against also paying city taxes, for which he is assessed. He said that his work is entirely outside of the city limits and offered to produce a certificate to that effect. The matter was taken under consideration, but the impression of the commissioners was that under the present law he was liable for city taxes and special legislation would be required to relieve him.

The case is of some interest, as it is understood that quite a large number of I. C. R. men are in the same position and are awaiting the result of Lattimer's appeal at a test case before taking action in their own account.
