The majority present seemed in favor of the idea, which will be brought up and decided at the next quarterly meeting, held Oct. 11th.

Barry Wilson, son of LeBaron Wilson, who has been chief electrician of the Nickel Theatre during the past two years, has been given a position with the Canadian Westinghouse Electrical Co. at Hamilton, Ont., and leaves tonight to enter upon his new duties. BACHELORS GIVE BALL TO PARIS HOSTESSES

Most Brilliant Event of a Brilliant Season Attracts Aristocracy of Capital

PARIS, July 13--The most brilliant event of a brilliant season was the Bachelors' Ball given last night in honor of the Paris hostesses who during the winter have dispensed hospitality to all the women who were dressed as birds or insects, while the men wore red, mauve and green dress suits.

Gorgeous butterflies in shimmering blues and greens flitted here and there, and magnificent peacocks--or should one say peashers?--were numerous. The Duchesse d'Uzes made a beautiful blue butterfly, while the Princess Leburg Birstein and Miss Gould, daughter of George Gould, looked charming as golden specimens. Mile. de St. Sauver was a stately bird, and the Baronne Henri de Rothschild, came disguised as a magpie. Her husband's name was put on a card, as usual, while the Vicomtesse A. de Contades appeared in the somber plumage of a crow. Other aristocratic women were attired as dragon flies, bees and beetles. Mrs. Tuxis and Miss Baxter were delightful couples of bees. The Comtesse de Lewis, in dull brown and black made a striking contrast as a bat. Mrs. Bache, a handsome American woman, as Chantrelle, was most admired. Her hairdresser was surrounded by brilliant "feathers" of silk and satin of varied colors. The gay assembly danced till 5 o'clock. Prince Antoine of Orleans-Braganza was among those present. After supper the Duchesse d'Uzes distributed the numbers of a lottery, the winner of which Mme. Noailles, is entitled to a hat from a fashionable milliner. The collon favors were presented by the Princess de la Tour d'Auvergne, Mrs. Perry Belmont, Mrs. Moore and other women. The dance was led in animated style by M. Andre de Fouquieres.

SMOKE DEADLY FOE OF HISTORIC ABBEY

Westminster, One of London's Nobliest Structures, Being Steadily Pulverized.

LONDON, July 13--Sir William Richmond, B. A., told the annual meeting of the Coal Smoke Abatement Society at the Royal United Service Institution yesterday that Westminster Abbey had suffered from more rapid decay in the last hundred years than in all the previous centuries of its existence. Repairs executed only from twenty to twenty-five years ago were decayed more or less. Work executed only fourteen years ago was in a bad state, and that done in 1701 showed signs of being reduced to a friable mass to a considerable depth below the surface. Sir William quoted from the report on the Abbey prepared by Dr. Owens, who said: "The chief cause of the destruction of the stonework has been shown to be the presence in the air of sulphuric acid; the stone is converted into sulphate of lime; in the process of its formation this disintegrates the building by expansion. The connection between smoke and stone decay appears to be inevitable gases emitted from the smoke particles."

Dr. Owens produced a piece of stone which he had taken from the parapet of the Abbey and crumbled it between his fingers. It had only been there about a quarter of a century. The Abbey was decayed all over, he said. Most of the outer stone had been renewed, the stone used in the old structure having been replaced. He had, however, come across places where the old original stone still remained, and this was eaten away to a depth of about nine inches. It was only by continual renewals that the building had been kept standing at all.
