

AILLES ADVANCING STEADILY IN THE WEST IN FACE OF SUPERIOR RESISTANCE BY ENEMY

FUGITIVE RAIDERS SCATTER MINES IN THEIR WAKE TO PREVENT PURSUIT

Special Cable to The Standard.
London, Dec. 16.—All infantry and artillery units in England have been called out at the coast stations. Trenches on the coast are fully manned. Several towns have been notified to cut off all gas in anticipation of an attack. Inhabitants of Tynemouth were ordered to remain indoors this evening; seaplanes have been sent out to patrol the Northumberland coast and to give warning of any attempt to land German troops.

FUGITIVES SCATTERING MINES TO PREVENT PURSUIT.

Three German cruisers are reported to have been seen off Hartlepool early today. The British destroyers on patrol duty in these waters suddenly encountered the enemy's warships only eight miles off Hartlepool. The cruisers immediately opened fire. The result of the engagement is not known.

The German cruisers fleeing from the British after the bombardment of the coast towns are reported this evening to have scattered mines in their wake to prevent pursuit.

The cruisers which bombarded Scarborough were first engaged by four British torpedo boat destroyers which steamed up rapidly to meet them just as they were drawing off shore.

Forty-seven persons were killed and many were wounded by the German bombardment of Hartlepool today. The Cannonde which was terrific in character lasted forty minutes. The weather was so foggy that the hostile ships could not be seen.

Thirty persons were killed in Hartlepool proper and seventeen in the old town section. Many were wounded in West Hartlepool. Four storage gas tanks were destroyed and the city tonight is in darkness.

BURSTING SHELLS BLEW CRATERS IN STREETS.

One house was struck by three shells and all the occupants, a man, his wife and their six children were killed.

The authorities announced tonight that eighteen men, women and children were killed in the bombardment at Scarborough.

Seaton Carew, two miles and a half southwest of Hartlepool, was also damaged by the bombardment.

The authorities at West Hartlepool had been warned that an attack might be made along the coast at some time and the coast defences and fortresses there were prepared.

In the engagement between the fortress and the German cruisers great damage was done to the town. Bursting shells blew great craters in the streets.

GERMAN RAIDERS MAKE ESCAPE IN HEAVY MIST

A wave of intense anger has spread over England because of the attack, and bitter denunciation is heard everywhere of a policy which permits the shelling of undefended towns. The fortress at the mouth of the Tees is supposed to give some protection to the important shipping base of Hartlepool, but Witley and Scarborough are open to the enemy as is Atlantic City, on the New Jersey coast.

Scarborough, with its old castle on a high hill, the big Casino with a high tower, and the row of pretentious hotels on the waterfront, presents a shining mark for target practice. Few visitors were at the hotels because of the cold weather, but one invalid is known to have been wounded, and was taken away on a stretcher.

HOW WERE MINES AND PATROLS EVADED.

In a direct line the mouth of the Tees is about 350 miles from Heligoland, the important German naval base in the North Sea. The British Admiralty says the German ships were among their fastest. They chose a night when a thick mist prevailed to reach the English coast, and must have left their base at least two hours before dark, and as they started to return about 9 o'clock there still remained about seven hours of daylight for the pursuit, which, however, was rendered almost impossible by the fog.

How the German evaded all the mines and patrols remains somewhat of a mystery, although experts recall that in manoeuvres British ships performed the same feat in the comparatively small space between England and the Scilly Islands, which, however, was not mined.

The Admiralty report announces that such demonstrations are not difficult to accomplish, but the population generally cherishes so great a confidence in the protection of the British navy that the inhabitants of the coast towns made no serious preparations to meet a bombardment.

PEOPLE HAD NO THOUGHT OF RAID.

Except for the working people, the English are apt to be late risers during the short winter days. The bombardment by the German cruisers occurred between 8 and 9 o'clock, and many people were at breakfast; others were on their way to work, or were opening their shops.

The booming of heavy guns off the three towns drew hundreds of people to the beaches. They had no thought of a German raid, but when shells came crashing over their heads and into the quiet streets, the people made a dash for shelter. Off shore the German guns did rapid work, the flashes coming incessantly, and the shells finding a mark among the buildings. Many of the residents took refuge in the cellars; others rushed from their homes.

REPORTS SAY TWO OF THE ENEMY'S CRUISERS WERE SUNK

London, Dec. 16.—A Central News despatch from Middlesbrough, Yorkshire, says that two of the German warships which bombarded the English coast were badly damaged and are believed to have sunk.

London, Dec. 16.—The Newcastle Evening Chronicle places the number of German cruisers which bombarded Hartlepool at three. It says that these cruisers were attacked almost immediately by four British destroyers.

Several entire rows of houses at Hartlepool were destroyed and the gas works were seriously damaged.

London, Dec. 16.—The Evening Standard's Hartlepool correspondent says of the German raid on the English coast: "Two German warships are believed to have been sunk. The captain of a ketch lying off Salburn says he saw three German ships engaged. One of them was blown up, another hoisted the Union Jack, and the third was still fighting."

London, Dec. 16.—The Evening Standard publishes a despatch from Scarborough saying that twelve persons were killed, and one hundred wounded, during the bombardment of that town today by German cruisers.

OTTAWA AUDIENCE REFUSES TO GIVE BOURASSA A HEARING

Nationalist Leader Storm Center in Theatre — Refused to Wave Union Jack and Near Riot Ensued — Audience Gave Him No Chance to Deliver His Speech.

Special to The Standard.
Ottawa, Ont., Dec. 16.—Henri Bourassa, the Nationalist leader, came to Ottawa tonight to make a speech. He found it impossible to deliver it. The Russell Theatre was packed from floor to ceiling with a crowd of nearly three thousand who refused to listen. For a while he talked to a reporter at a corner of the stage. Nobody knew what he was saying, and finally he quit after a dramatic flag incident in which he refused to wave the Union Jack.

The trouble began early. As the crowd was surging its way into the building one of the policemen lost his temper and brutally treated a young fellow. Seeing this a number of soldiers who are stationed here ready to do with the second contingent, rushed the police, the doors were smashed and the crowd fled comfortably in after that. There was some confusion finding seats for it was found that two hundred had been forced out. The audience was good humored and contented itself with singing patriotic songs. Dr. Freeland, chairman of the Nationalist League, came on the platform for the uproar became tremendous. For half an hour the Nationalist leader waited patiently for silence but the crowd never gave him a chance to begin.

The singing continued after he moved to a corner and began to address a reporter. He refused to stop when the audience tried him out by singing "God Save the King," and Bourassa kept on right through, although the whole audience rose to its feet.

Then Dr. Freeland, observing some Dragoons with the Union Jack, called down from the platform and requested it. They gave it up and he draped the table with it. This only provided an additional incentive for boisterous singing of patriotic airs, and the shouting began to grow.

The climax was reached when one of the soldiers jumped on the platform lifted the Union Jack from the table and held it out for Bourassa to wave. Bourassa refused and a great roar went up. A soldier in crutches limped in from the gallery, several more leapt upon the platform from the pit shouting to him to wave the flag.

Bourassa disappeared and the curtain went down. For an hour afterwards the crowd stayed singing songs and choruses.

but there was no disturbance other than noise. A significant feature of the proceedings was the starting of the song "O Canada" by Sam Genest, one of the leading French Canadian of Ottawa. Everybody joined in, but it served to show that the situation had assumed somewhat of a racial aspect. However, the singing was for the most part led by the soldiers.

Bourassa's subject was to have been "the duty of Canada at the present hour."

Mr. Bourassa after leaving the Russell Theatre proceeded to the Chateau Laurier where he delivered a speech to about fifty admirers standing in front of the Laurier statue.

Talking to newspaper men about his reception in Ottawa, Mr. Bourassa said: "It is what I might have expected from Prussian culture in Ontario."

Several street fights occurred later in the evening.

Washington, Dec. 16.—Despatches to the German embassy today from the office of the Ocean Accident and Guarantee Corporation was injured by smoke and water.

About thirty tenants of the Fraser building suffered loss, including Alexander restaurant.

GERMAN SHELLS WROUGHT HAVOC IN SCARBOROUGH

Several of Best Buildings in Town Badly Battered — Whole Row of Cottages Along Shore Razed to Ground — Majority of Houses Near Sea Vacant on Account of Off-Season, Otherwise Loss of Life Must Have Been Heavy.

London, Dec. 16.—The Press Association's Scarborough correspondent says of the attack on that town by German warships: "Havoc has been wrought throughout this town."

"The Grand Hotel, a fine building perched on the cliff head and well known to thousands of persons who have visited Scarborough, was one of the main targets. It was severely damaged. The gable end of the Town Hall on the cliff was blown off, and a corner of the Royal Hotel, a fine building near the centre of the town was carried away."

The Balmoral Hotel, in the west end of the city, received a shell through the roof. The Savina Bank near the Grand Hotel was demolished and the contents of an adjoining house were scattered into the streets. A whole row of cottages was razed to the ground.

But for the fact that it is the off-season and a majority of the houses along the waterfront are unoccupied, the loss of life must have been heavy.

Hartlepool, Dec. 16.—It is reported here that a flotilla of British torpedo boat destroyers early this morning encountered three German cruisers eight miles off the English coast. The cruisers immediately opened fire. Tynemouth to be attacked?

London, Dec. 16.—The Newcastle Evening Chronicle, according to a despatch reaching London this evening says there is a probability of a hostile attack on Tynemouth, in Northumberland, at the mouth of the Tyne, and about twenty-five miles north of Hartlepool.

The city of Tynemouth, a popular resort in the north, with a population of about 25,000 people, has issued a notice declaring that the local emergency committee has been advised by the military authorities to have the gas in Tynemouth turned off at once for military reasons. The civil population have been advised to remain indoors, but if necessary to leave their dwellings they are advised to go in the direction of Newcastle, eight miles away.

London's Beauty Writers

Weekly Selections from Noted Beauty Experts Writing for the English Press. Simple and Effective Methods.

By OLGA AMBELL, Special Correspondent, London, Eng.

Each week in this department I will endeavor, by careful clipping from the London papers, to keep my Colonial readers abreast of the latest and best advice of the London beauty experts. Owing to the persistent demand most London newspapers and magazines make for the publication of my columns, I am enabled to give you a selection of the best of the London beauty experts' advice. Many of them now employ high salaries to advise and instruct in methods most efficient for enhancing or restoring beauty of face and figure. I append herewith a few clippings from leading English publications. Any of the ingredients mentioned could be obtained from Canadian chemists or druggists, so I am told. Look out for more hints each week. I shall endeavor to keep right up to date.

Pretty Eyebrows and Lashes.
Nothing makes more difference in a person's appearance and fortunately it is easy to help Nature in this particular. Ordinary mangle is quite extraordinary in its power to increase growth, softness and beauty of eyebrows and lashes. Rub a little of the mangle daily into the eyebrows with finger tip and apply to lash roots with thumb and forefinger.

Powder Harms to Dry Skin.
The possession of a dry skin should never use face powder. Powders not only cause dryness themselves, but many contain irritants which scratch the skin and add in forming wrinkles. It is far better to use simple lotion made by dissolving a ounce of ordinary clematis in two table-spoonsful of water. They nearly all beneficial for the skin and imparts a soft, peach-like bloom that is most captivating. It lasts a long time and its use cannot be detected, even under the brightest light of the ball room.

Removing Face Pimples.
Many women know how to remove superfluous hair in a way, but to banish it completely is quite another matter. As regards depilatories, I must say that there are very few good ones. They nearly all irritate the skin and do not give satisfactory relief. Powdered phenol is quite different. It acts in a wonderful manner and is designed not only to immediately remove the ugly hair, but also to permanently destroy the roots. It need only be mixed into a paste with water, applied directly to the hair growth, and then removed in two or three minutes.

Curl Hair to Stay Curled.
To curl the hair to stay curled, nothing equals plain liquid alumine. If a little be applied to the hair with a clean

A Color Preserving Shampoo.
Golden hair requires the most careful brushing and cleansing, and a solution of pure stannic makes a good shampoo for it. This will preserve the color, brilliancy and softness of the hair better than anything else. The stannic granules are preferred. As an ordinary package of shampoo it is an economical method in the long run. A teaspoonful of the clear shampoo be dissolved in a cup of hot water and the liquid should be rubbed well into the scalp a little at a time. A few drops of equal quantities for the darker shades of hair.

Is Your Hair Falling Out?
A simple lotion that can be made at home and which will positively force the hair to grow is within the reach of every body. It stops the hair from falling out, clears the scalp of dandruff, and leaves a cleansing sensation which is a sure sign of healthy action. Get from your druggist one ounce of borax and mix it with one-fourth pint of bay rum, add sufficient water to make one-half a pint. This quantity will last you several weeks, and is at the same time both effective and economical.
