The Reformed Episcopal Church.

The meeting in New York for the formation of a new church under the auspices of the seceding Episcopal Bishop, Dr. Cummins, was well attended by the laity, but the greatest number of presbyters present at any time is said to have been seven, in addition to the presiding Bishop. The latter read a long address, proclaiming wide toleration, and indicating the points of difference between the new church and the Protestant Episcopal church. The first general council of the new church was then organized, and the church itself constituted. The declaration of principles read by Bishop Cummins will be of interest, and we give it entire:—

I.

The Reformed Episcopal Church, holding the faith once delivered unto the saints, declares its belief in the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments as the word of God, and the sole rule of faith and practice; in the Creed "commonly called the Apostles' Creed;" in the divine institution of the sacrament of baptism and the Lord's Supper, and in the doctrine, of grace, substantially as they are set forth in the thirty-nine articles of religion.

II.

This Church recoguizes and adheres to Episcopacy, not as of Divine right, but as a very ancient and desirable form of Christianity.

III.

This Church, retaining a liturgy which shall not be imperative or repressive of freedom in prayer, accepts the Book of Common Prayer as it was revised, proposed and recommended for use by the General Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church, A. D., 1785, reserving full liberty to alter, abridge, enlarge and amend the same as may seem conducive to the edification of the people, "provided that the substance of the faith be kept entire."

IV.

The Church condemns and rejects the following erroneous and strange doctrines as contrary to God's Word:—

First—That the Church of Christ exists only in the order or form of ecclesiastical polity.

Second—That Christian ministers are priests in another sense than that in which all believers are a "royal priesthood."

Third—That the Lord's Table is an altar on which an oblation of the body and blood of Christ is offered anew to the Father.

Fourth—That the presence of Christ in the Lord's Supper is a presence in the elements of bread and wine.

Fifth—That regeneration is inseparably connected with baptism.

This declaration was referred to a Committee who after examination of the principles reported the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we, whose names are appended to the call for this meeting as presented by the presiding Bishop, do here and now, in humble reliance upon Almighty God, organize ourselves into a Church, to be know by the style and title of 'The Reformed Episcopal Church,' in conformity with the foregoing declaration of principles, and with Rev. George David Cummins, D. D., as presiding Bishop.

And subsequently the following rules for the government of the Church until the meeting of the General Council were also adopted:

1. Ministers in good standing in other churches shall be received into this church on letters of dismission, without reordination, they sustaining a satisfactory examination on such points as may hereafter be determined, and subscribing to the doctrine, discipline, and worship of this Church.

2. All ordinations of Bishops and other ministers in the church shall be performed by one or more Bishops with the laying on of hands by the presbyters.

3. Communicants in good standing in other Evangelical Churches shall be received on presentation of a letter of dismissal, or other satisfactory evidence.

Wendell Phillips on Temperance and Labor.

Some of you regard temperance as a local, foolish fanaticism, but I look upon it as one of the permanent elements with which statesmanship is obliged to deal. The tendency of to-day is toward the formation of great cities; everything aggregates us into crowds. Everything that concerns the goverument of great cities is the first thought of the statesman. It is the problem of to-day, to govern these great cities, where wealth and brains are gathered together. Toryism in Europe asks us to show how to govern a great city, and we cannot do it. Not one of our cities can look back for 24 years and then show a model of successful government. I said I did not consider temperance a superficial vice. In this country the statesman had to deal with a race that from time immemorial has been, first, impatient of others" domination, and secondly, with the habit of showing their pleasure of conquest in intoxication. The means here are at every one's hand. Here the laborer can be drunk a week on the labor of one day. Take Boston, for example. Here there are 3,500 places where liquor is dispensed, each probably good for two voters; 7,000 votes are more than enough to decide any election there, and these must always be consulted in choosing any candidate. I believe in the possibility of republican government, but, I don't see how it is to succeed for these great cities, as Boston, have their officers nominated and elected by the grog shops.

This is the great obstacle to the republican government. New York was owned, until within three years, by less than 500 men; managed and pillaged by less than 500 men. They had a staff of 2,000 more. When election day came, one of these men would say to his satellites, "You go down to such a polling-place and make it so unpleasant to decent men that they won't vote." The satellite might demur on the ground that such action would send him to Sing Sing, but assurance of safety would make that right. He would want some one to help him, and he must find a man so poor that he was ready to be sold, and this man, so demoralized, would be taken to the grog-shop of some man, possibly in training for an Alderman, and kept there until in a condition to do this bidding. Now you can't rest a ballot-box upon a drunken community. New York represents the crowning experiment of self-government in this country, but life and property are not so safe in its streets to-day under a magistracy born of the people, as in Paris or London, under a magistracy born of the upper classes. New England says it has found a remedy in Prohibition; you say it is useless. Then we ask you, What do you propose? It is the great, crying need of these loci of wealth and intellectual life.

In all the manufacturing districts of this country you can count 200,000 laboring men. They have, being obliged to work, say 14 hours each day, no mental or physical strength to qualify themselves as voters. Suppose I see a tired workman going to his home, and wishing to instruct him about the sal ry grab, or the Spanish war, or the Alabama question, should say to to him, "Would you like to read these 200 pages of Sumner on the Alabama claims, or this juicy extract from Butler on the Bank-ing question?" The man says, "Let me sleep or drink." In some great national, critical moment, when a few votes will turn the balance, these 200,000 votes will come in. These men have no understanding of these problems. The moment you begin to have such a permanent class the Republic will end. To-day, brains do not go to Congress; they are gathering into the great industries. Only their second lieutenants go to Congress. But brains have always governed this country. Scott of Harrisburg has $450,000,000 under his hands, and as he moves from San Francisco to his Eastern lunching place, every sweep of his garments knocks down a Legislature.

Unraveling a Mystery.

BOSTON, Dec. 8.

The Britton mystery seems likely to be unraveled at last. About a month ago S. A. Britton, a broker, doing business at No. 61 Devonshire st., was found in his office insensible and bleeding profusely from wounds in his head. It was at first thought that his injuries would prove fatal, but he has since fully recovered He has persistently refused to tell the name of his assailant on various grounds, and the case has caused so much scandal that the Assistant District-Attorney presented it to the Grand Jury. Mr. Britton still refused to testify on the ground that it would criminate himself; and the doctors on the ground that they were protected by their profession. Grave rumors of a confession made by Mr. Britton when lying on what he supposed to be his death-bed have arisen, and led to a vigorous prosecution of the case. The investigation before the Grand Jury being continued to-day, Drs. Arnold and Ordway were again summoned, and as before refused to testify on the old ground that they were not obliged by law to divulge the secrets which they had learned during professional attendance. The District-Attorney took a different view, and, to settle the point at once, had them brought before Judge Aldrich in the Superior Court. He ruled that they must testify. Dr. Ordway asked for further time, which was granted, but Dr. Arnold gave evidence which has resulted in the arrest of Mr. Britton's assailant, and of Mr. Britton himself on the charge of perjury. He was admitted to bail in $5,000. He will be arraigned to-morrow before the Municipal Court.

Bloodless Surgical Operation.

Perhaps one of the greatest discoveries of the present generation in surgery is that of rendering the most terrible and prolonged operations absolutely painless. Only inferior to this in importance is a recent discovery by Esmarch, whereby operations of every kind upon the extremities are rendered perfectly bloodless. In the Kingston General Hospital an important operation was performed upon a young woman who had been laid up for a year and a half with disease of the bones of the ankle joint A piece of (half inch gas) india rubber tubing, four feet long, was taken. The ends of this tubing were fastened together, then three or four turns were very tightly passed round the foot, commencing at the toes like a bandage. The winding on of the upper coil was continued, while the lower coil was now being uncovered in the same order, until the three coils reached just below the knee, where they were fastened. The leg was perfectly bloodless, and it remained so during the whole of the operation. There was not a single drop of blood lost from first to last, although this operation had always been accompanied by much hemorrhage, the amount of which is only known to the surgeon.

Sir Samuel Baker delivered a lecture in London, Monday night, on his recent expedition in Africa. He had a large and brilliant audience, which applauded him with enthusiasm. Among the distinguished persons present were the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Edinburgh.

Boston being distracted by an embarrassment of riches in the way of candidates for the office of Alderman, and the principle upon which that portly place should be bestowed being greatly discussed, a newspaper correspondent happily solves the problem by subjecting aspirants to the test of the following question: "Is the candidate a gentleman you would make the executor of your estate, with the proviso in your will that bonds should not be required?"

We knew, when they began to make women justices of the peace in Wyoming, that matters would speedily become mixed and miscellaneous. Just fancy a Rhadamantha forced to try her own husband for the misdemeanor of drunkenness, and worse, to pronounce him "guilty," and to fine him: and worse still, to pay the fine herself, to prevent her lord and master from going to jail! Where she held the court we are not informed, but it is just possible that the poor man was arraigned, tried, convicted and sentenced before he got out of bed in the morning.

The two chromos presented to subscribers of The Aldine for 1874 are beautiful and unusual works of art—faithful copies of actual paintings in oil made by the celebrated artist, Thomas Moran, from studies of nature. These chromos represent scenes characteristic of the East and the West: the White Mountains of New Hampshire, and the Cliffs of Green River in Wyoming Territory. The view in the White Mountains gives the beholder a grand and sublime scene of the most famous region in New England. In pleasing contrast with the blue clouds, and cool heights of the White Mountains, we have in the Cliffs of Green River a golden, sun-bathed landscape, with a sky full of glory. A grand red sandstone rock, or butte, rises like a ruined castle from one side of the river, reflecting all the brilliant hues of the sky, which are also produced in the water. The picture is exceedingly brilliant. The foreground of this picture is very rich, and the study of trees is delicate and natural. These two representative landscapes are every way worthy of the great art journal of America—The Aldine
