FINDS HAPPINESS IN CHARITY WORK

Little by little the gay world of Paris is beginning to learn the truth about the life led for the past six years by Eva Lavalliere, the celecently reported near death at the humble abode in Thuillieres, to which she retired for closer union with God. Only recently it was revealed that Lemaitre.

SERVED AS NURSE IN AFRICA

Mme. Lavalliere herself, following her renunciation of the world, served for several years as nurse and benefactress in the Arab villages of Tunisia. It was at the suggestion of Mgr. Lemaitre that she took up this work, a young and beautiful Italian princess volunteer-ing at the same time. Eight other omen followed their example and went to the confines of the desert. Unfortunately, heat and disease cut down their numbers and last winter Mme. Lavalliere, due to the ravages of disease, was forbidden to return.

The story of Mme. Lavalliere's changed mode of life has been the subject of much speculation by the Parisian press and along the boulevards. One newspaper gave out the report that it was due to grief over a lost lover.

The real fact seems to be that it was due to the influence of a saintly priest she met in a chateau at Touraine in 1917, just before a projected departure for America, where she was to tour the country.

Her conversion was prompted by an eloquent discourse of this priest, who dwelt on the destiny of man and the eternal hope inspired by religion. Last winter when the state of her health prevented her from returning to Africa, Mme.
