

"Standing almost in the centre of the view, which was a fascination to all, is a slender pine tree, the lovely proportions of which arrest the attention, even while admiring the great granite pile a quarter of a mile behind it."—See article on page 24.