THE KRAMER ROTARY HARROW SOLVES THE PROBLEM

Modern scientific agriculture conclusively shows that there is no better way to conserve moisture than by cultivation. Where land is plowed and the rough furrows are allowed to remain exposed to the wind and weather, the soil becomes thoroughly dried out and as there is little or no connection between the top soil and the subsoil there is no chance for the moisture to work up from beneath. Here is where a KRAMER ROTARY HARROW attachment does the trick. Attached to your plow, it will enable you to summer fallow and harrow at the present time, leaving the land in such condition that all possible moisture is conserved. The one operation does two jobs with the same amount of time and labor as it takes to perform one.

Prof. Bedford, who has charge of the Field Husbandry Department of the Manitoba Agricultural College, strongly recommends harrowing immediately following plowing for this purpose.

The KRAMER ROTARY HARROW attachment is an implement that no Farmer can afford to be without. It permits the farmer to harrow while he plows, saving all the time and expense of harrowing and making the most perfect seed bed. It was the first implement of its kind to be placed on the market. It is the first implement of its kind today—years ahead of any other attachment. It has imitators, to be sure, what really good thing has not. Don't buy a substitute, but buy the real thing.
