Mrs. Muggins—I admire your husband's taste; he dresses so quietly. Mrs. Buggins—Humph! You should have heard him this morning when he couldn't find his collar button!

Velvet Skin, Soft and Clear. What one or two applications of Dr. Chase's Ointment will do for rough, inflamed and irritated skin is almost as wonderful as the complete cure of eczema by its persistent use.

She was an heiress and he was poor, but otherwise honest. "How much do you love me, dear?" she asked, after a manner of her sex. "I love you," he replied in a tone replete with candor, "for all you are worth."

"Woman is considered the weaker vessel," she remarked, "and yet—" "Well?" he queried as she hesitated.

"And yet," she continued, "man is the stronger brook." "Now," said the vicar, "can anyone tell me what a lie is?" Immediately a small hand shot up.

"Well, my little man?" "Please sir, a lie is an abomination unto everyone, but a very pleasant help in time of trouble." He—Do you think Styles and his wife live happily?

She—I'm sure of it. He—Well, she always seems to look uncomfortable when she's with him. She—That's not her husband that makes her look that way. It's her boots.

"Lady," began the wanderer, "kin I chop some wood for you?" "No, thank you," replied the up-to-date housewife. "We cook and heat entirely by electricity."

"Nothin' I kin do to git a bit to eat?" "Yes. If you care to peel the shocks from the electric wires I'll allow you to eat the currents."—Harper's Weekly.

An old physician of the last generation was noted for his brusque manner and old-fashioned methods. One time a lady called him in to treat her baby who was slightly ailing.

But, doctor, protested the young mother, castor oil is such an old-fashioned remedy. Madam, replied the doctor, babies are old-fashioned things.

Piles. To prove to you that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain cure for all kinds of hemorrhoids, see the testimonials in the daily press and ask your neighbors what they think of it.

A Well Known Man. MRS. J. L. LAMBERT CO. LIMITED. DEAR SIR—I can recommend your MRS. J. L. LAMBERT'S Ointment for hemorrhoids and piles, as I have used it for both with excellent results.

When Moore Sang.

In singing his own songs Moore altered the arrangement of the air and sang the first part of each verse twice over at the beginning instead of a refrain at the end.

His voice, of infinite modulation but of small compass, rose clear and thrilling to its highest pitch as he sang: Go ask your dearest whether His arms should hold such frail hands And hearts as ours together.

His song was an inspired recitative, and he seemed to improvise as he ran his fingers over the notes, and as the tide of the night came over him it was poured forth in harmonious cadences of exquisite variety.

THE PREVALENCE OF ECZEMA. The prevalence of Eczema is due in every case to the presence of humors and poisonous acids in the blood.

It is a waste of time to employ ointment or washes. No lasting benefit can be had from doctoring the skin when the cause lies in the blood.

Rich, pure blood will bring new life to the skin—will surely restore beauty and richness of complexion. Ferrozene is the best treatment.

So rich and nourishing does Ferrozene make the blood so cool and healthy, that the sores are healed—itchiness is soothed away—every trace of eczema poison removed.

Well, my little man, said the minister, kindly, I am glad to see you coming regularly to the Sunday school.

"Yes, I do, indeed," replied the "little man" earnestly. "You see, mamma says she can't trust me, and she always locks the pantry door, so I'm trying hard to be a good boy so that she'll leave it open as she used to do."

WHO SHE WAS

SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF LYDIA E. PINKHAM

And a True Story of How the Vegetable Compound Had Its Birth and How the "Panic of '73" Caused It to be Offered for Public Sale in Drug Stores.

This remarkable woman, whose maiden name was Eaton, was born in Lynn, Mass., February 10, 1819, coming from a good old Quaker family. For some years she taught school, and became known as a woman of an alert and cheerful, combined forces to restore the family fortune.

Lydia E. Pinkham

The Pinkhams had no money, and little credit. Their first laboratory was the kitchen, where roots and herbs were steeped on the stove, gradually filling a gross of bottles.

In 1877, by combined efforts the family had saved enough money to commence newspaper advertising and from that time the growth and success of the enterprise were assured.

With Lydia E. Pinkham worked her daughter-in-law, the present Mrs. Pinkham. She was carefully instructed in all her husband's knowledge, and for years she assisted her in her vast correspondence.

To her hands naturally fell the direction of the work when its originator passed away. For nearly twenty-five years she has continued it, and nothing she has done has ever failed.

Such is the history of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from simple roots and herbs, the one great remedy for women's ailments, and the fitting monument to the noble woman whose name it bears.

The Man of Toil. Man of Toil, wouldst thou be free? Lend thine ear to Reason's call. There's folly in the drunkard's glee—There's madness in the midnight brawl.

Man of Toil, wouldst thou be wise? The path of moral right explore; Pierce the human heart's disguise, And track its motive to the core. Creation's boundless beauties scan, Observe its wonders—search its laws;

Look on the vast harmonious plan And learn to love the Eternal Cause; Let Truth illumine thy dark soul—There is no wisdom in the bowl.

Man of Toil, wouldst thou be blest? Give thy sweet feeling play; Bring all that's noble to thy breast, Let generous deeds bid sorrow cease, Let gentler words thy lips employ, Scatter the seeds of love and peace.

And reap a harvest full of joy; Let Truth make glad the harassed soul—There are no blessings in the bowl. —Manchester Times.

The Testimony of a Naval Teetotaler. Lord Charles Beresford, a British naval man well known for his strong views in favor of total abstinence, in answering an interviewer recently as to how total abstinence agreed with him, replied: "Admirably. Never better in my life. In the old days if I took a 'nightcap' it was bound to make me drowsy and sleepy. Now that I touch nothing I am as clear as a bell. I am 60 years of age. I go to bed at 12.30, and get up again at 6 o'clock every morning. It makes all the difference to a man physically and mentally. Two or three years ago Judge Kenton told me the following incident in connection with his own early experience as a barrister: I was dining with a well-known physician one day and he pressed me to share a bottle of champagne with him. I cannot, I replied, I have to do some special work when I get home. 'Rubbish! It'll do you all the good in the world. What work is it you are compelled to do at this hour?' I have to draw up that statement of yours." My dear fellow, why on earth didn't you say so before. Not a drop of anything except lemonade or plain water shall you have in this house to-night, I can tell you. Last year, when Colonel Barrington Footie quitted the post he had filled so admirably as head of the Kneller-College training establishment of army bandmen, he told me that out of 180 of the young men he had induced no fewer than 170 of them to become total abstainers, and they are fitter in every way, and certainly more mentally active."

An Old Legend. There is an old legend of a man who sold his soul to the devil. The conditions were: For a certain number of years this man was to be a hell-desires gratified, at the expiration of which time his soul was to be forfeited.

When the time agreed upon had expired this man was unwilling to fulfil his part of the contract, and asked the devil upon what terms he could be released. The reply was: "If you will curse your God I will release you."

"No," said the man, "I cannot curse the Being whose nature is love. Give me something less fearfully wicked." "Then kill your father," replied the devil, "and you go free."

"No," answered the man; "that is too horrible to think of. I will not commit so great a crime. Are there no other conditions?" "One more," replied the devil; "you must go drunk."

"That is a very easy thing to do," the man answered. "I cannot kill my father, I will not curse my God, but I can get drunk," and when he became sober all will be well."

Accordingly he got drunk, and when in this condition chanced to meet his father, who appeared haggard, which so excited the ire of the drunkard and half-crazed man that he slew his father, cursed his God, that he fled.

Only a legend this particular case. But how true to the facts regarding the liquor curse!—Christian Globe.

Tells of Cure 30 Years of Piles

Mr. G. A. Swains, Copenhagen, Elgin Co., Ont., writes: "I have been afflicted with piles for more than thirty years and have tried various remedies. In most cases with very unsatisfactory results. None of them effected a permanent cure. Six months ago I decided to give Dr. Chase's Ointment a trial, and was surprised and delighted when the result was so good. My applications only were necessary when the trouble disappeared, and there has been no return thus far. I don't much care to have my name appear in print in connection with any patent medicine, still I would like to tell everyone who is afflicted as I was to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and if they do and don't find it to be all that is claimed for it I miss my guess. For many years I had severe itching on my arms and legs, especially during the winter months. The ointment drove it away like magic."

Dr. Chase's Ointment seems to be the only treatment obtainable which actually cures every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles; 60 cents a box at Dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

could not be taken into the church. The unfortunate man's death occurred immediately after he had left a licensed rum shop. When the rum-seller who sold the man drink dice will his body be permitted entrance into the church? Probably. Which in the greater sin—the poor wretch fellow who became drunk and was hurried to death, or the cold-blooded wretch who for the sake of a few cents' profit sold him the drink which caused his violent death? A drunken man is always blameworthy, but the man who takes advantage of his weakness and makes him drunk is immeasurably a worse man.

A Certain Cure for Group—Used for Ten Years without a Failure. Mr. W. C. But, a Star City, Ind., was merchant, is enthusiastic in his praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. His children have all been subject to croup and he has used this remedy for the past ten years, and though they must feel the croup, his wife and he always felt safe upon retiring when a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was in the house. His oldest child was subject to severe attacks of croup, but this remedy ever failed to effect a speedy cure. He has recommended it to friends and neighbors and all who have used it say that it is unequalled for croup and whooping cough. For sale at Raud's Drug Store.
