Editorial

Our pulpits are our work clothes. Each of us live some kind of a sermon every day.

OLD UTILITIES REGAINING PRESTIGE

IT IS encouraging to note in recent times a disposition to again utilize for public service institutions which in the days of our fathers contributed not a little to pioneer life and which were finally discarded as old-fashioned and primitive.

In the development of hydro energy, for instance, the waterways of this country, which in the early days provided power for the operating of saw and grist-mills and other useful purposes, and which were in too many cases supplanted by expensive steam plants, have been made the means of promoting undertakings which were not so long ago considered impractical. Throughout our own valley today electricity is furnishing light and power, and making rural life easier and pleasanter, not so much because of any new invention as in consequence of the restoration of methods utilized in the long ago.

And now the windmill, which not so long ago was regarded as a useful device for many purposes in this country, is coming back. England is taking the lead in the effort to harness the windmill for creating electric current for the purpose of lighting the homes and villages, and the doing of many "odd jobs" that will make the English countryside all the merrier.

In our mania for speed and power we are apt to forget the simpler methods and fail to utilize the smaller economies. It is well that England, in this time when the world's great need is more intense than ever before, has recognized the utility of the humble windmill, and will harness it up to turn out cheaper living, less tiresome labor and brighter evenings for her people. Other countries may well follow.

YOUR OWN TOWN

YOUR own town is where your home is, where your business is situated, where your vote is cast, where your children are educated, where your neighbors dwell, and where your life, or the greater part of it, is spent.

It has a right to your loyalty. It supports you and you must support it. Your town wants your friendship—not partisanship; co-operation—not dissent; sympathy—not criticism; intelligent support—not indifference.

Your town supplies you with law and order, trade, friends, education, recreation, and the rights of a freeborn Canadian. You should believe in your town and work for it.

You will always find people who are willing to condemn their own town, their own country, and the world in general. You will also hear people say that the world is a funny place to live in, and that it is going to the dogs. On the other hand you will hear people say that the world is all right, but the people that live in it are all wrong, and we believe there is a great deal in this.

Compare our lives in Canada today with those of our forefathers fifty years ago. In those days there were few railroads, no motor cars, no telephones, no lighting plants, no radio, nor a thousand other things that make life worth living today.

In spite of the fact that conditions are not as good as we would like them to be, Canada is a good place to live in, and your town is the best town in Canada.

LET'S STOP THE DRUNKEN AUTO DRIVER

THE IMPOSITION of a fine—even a heavy one—means very little to the ordinary offender who persists in driving a motor car while under the influence of intoxicants. A jail sentence is more likely to prove efficacious, but even that may be forgotten in the course of time. The most likely method of correcting this menace to public safety, in our opinion, would be the cancellation of the driver's license until such time as he may be able to establish that there is no likelihood of further offence. Capital punishment may have many weak points but its carrying out makes evident that there will not be any possibility of a repetition of the crime. We would not go so far in the case of a drunken automobile driver, but the public safety justifies extreme methods where necessary.

The car driver who operates his machine while incapable because of drink is perhaps the greatest menace of the present age. We have them in this section and they are becoming more and more common throughout the country. While those in authority remain inactive a tragedy is liable to occur any day. THE ACADIAN has no desire to restrict any person's privilege, but it is full time that the roads were made safe for respectable people.

A DAY IN JUNE

THE WORLD we live in has two divisions—outdoor and indoor. And the people in it may be roughly classified as outdoor or indoor people with outdoor or indoor minds.

We who live more and more indoors, who work indoors and play indoors and worship indoors, have need from time to time to get out into the open. "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills," sang an ancient poet, "from whence cometh my help."

This chance is ours today. As of old, there is always something new and prophetic in the coming of June. No man, unless he be utterly dead of soul, but feels a new thrill of life and a quickening of the pulse, as he witnesses the renewal of the year.

Since time began this lesson has touched the heart of mankind with new hope. If God so clothe the grass of the field, which today is, and tomorrow is cast into the oven, will He not much more, and by a mightier ministry, renew the drab spirit of man?

COMPULSORY AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE

AUTOMOBILE owners in the State of California will be compelled to carry insurance, according to reports of proposed legislation in that state. Such a measure has much to commend it. Not infrequently a driver, who is the cause of an accident in which the other suffers heavy loss, is financially worthless and it is quite useless for the injured one to attempt to recover damages. With compulsory insurance the injured one would be able to obtain some compensation.

THE FLYING HENS

RESIDENTS who are interested in beautifying their premises report that they are sadly handicapped in their work by the presence of stray fowls. While we are great poultry boosters we do not believe in allowing the chicken to trespass on our neighbors. Chickens do not belong in gardens or in flower beds, and owners should have due respect for the rights of their neighbors. The hen is a great institution but only when under control.

Answer to Last Week's Puzzle

A TRADE AT HOME FABLE

Once upon a time there was a certain woman in Smallville who complained that a certain article of merchandise cost a few cents more from the home merchant than from the merchant in Bigtown. Whereupon the woman went to Bigtown to make certain purchases. She found that while she had saved a few cents here and there, she had lost many dollars through more expensive purchases, and came home sadder and poorer, but wiser. What with transportation expense, innocent but costly temptations—the little things—which are held out for the gullible, had she left whereupon to base any claim for trading away?

So it now happens that this good woman trades at home where she can get right down to genuine values and close business contact with the home merchant on such matters as refunds, exchanges, try-ons, guarantees and repairs, besides the convenience of charge accounts and extension of credit when ever justified and wherever worthy; and plus all this, home pride and community spirit.

Along with trade at home, why not print at home?

BOYS AND BASEBALL

Persons who are not much past middle age remember with what comparatively slight equipment they took part in games that now seem to require a somewhat elaborate outfit. Take baseball, for example; if among the boys of the neighborhood a ball and a bat were procurable, nothing else was necessary. To be sure, there were some boys who had got their mothers to cut off the fingers of old gloves, kid gloves usually, which fitted their hands tightly, and who deduced themselves with the belief that by wearing these homemade "mitts" they suffered less pain from the sting of hard-thrown balls than did those whose hands were uncovered. The boys who were daring enough to "catch behind the bat" were never provided with either mask or chest protector, and why there are not more damaged countenances and injured spleens among the present middle-aged generation than appears to be the case it is hard to understand. Gnarled and knobby and bent fingers are probably more numerous now than they will be twenty years hence, for the modern devices for protecting the hands in baseball are not only adequate but seem to be employed even by the gamins who play the game in the sand lots. As for spiked shoes, to prevent the players from slipping and turning his ankle, or padded trousers, to protect his thighs when he slid to base, they were unknown in the good old days. Mothers had to be even busier and fiercer with the needle than they are now.

Under modern conditions baseball is played with greater skill than it used to be; and no one can regret that the liability to painful injury has been diminished. Even with the most complete equipment it cannot be made any more than football—a game for mollycoddlers.—Youths' Companion.

"Mother," said a little boy after coming from a walk, "I've seen man who makes horses."
"Are you sure," asked his mother.
"Yes," he replied. "He had a horse nearly finished when I saw him; he was just nailing on his back feet."

NEWSPAPER PUBLICITY WINS

H. L. Leeper, postmaster in Yakima, Wash., is ready to admit that there is about as much difference between newspaper publicity and word-of-mouth publicity gained from bulletin boards and posted notices, as there is between daylight and darkness, according to The Yakima Republic.

For several weeks recently Mr. Leeper had notices posted to the effect that bids were desired for the operation of the Yakima-Toppenish star mail route. Days and days went by with no one applying for the job. As the final date on which the bids had to be at Washington, D.C., approached, and no enquiries had been received yet, he decided to give out the notice as a news story.

The story was given three or four lines in The Republic and since its publication the postmaster has received more than twenty calls. "And that isn't the half of it," he says, "for they are still coming".—Ex.

MIXED HIS PHYSIOLOGY

The following remarkable statement was included in the examination paper turned in by a boy:

"The human body is divided into three parts—the head, the chest and the stomach. The head contains the eyes and brain, if any. The chest contains the lungs and a piece of liver. The stomach is devoted to the bowels of which there are five, a, e, i, o, u, and sometimes w and y."

IN SAFE KEEPING

"Come, Willie," said his mother, "do not be selfish. Let your little brother play with your marbles a while."
"But," protested Willie, "he means to keep them always."
"Oh, I think not."
"Yes, 'cause he's swallowed two of them already."
