farm and Household.

Level Culture.

At the beginning of farm life, in January. order to learn the most improved methods I employed a first-class farland. He persisted in a mode of cultivation precisely the reverse of what I had been used to see-allowing the mangels and sugar beets, the corn, potatoes, peas, beans, cucumbers, melons, tomatoes, cabbages, etc., to go without any hilling up. The man-gels and sugar beets stood high above the ground, the bulbous parts exposed to the sun, many of the mangels falling over and growing crooked .-The part of the cucumbers above ground which I insisted was rather a root than stem, and should be surrounded by earth was left entirely exposed to the sun. I thought the sun would parch the roots, and they would break or be injured when they should fall from the upright to a horizontal position.

The Englishman would have his way, but agreed I should treat some of each sort of plants my own way. So a few of all sorts were hilled up, and fully as well worked in other respects as his during the season. For a few weeks mine grew as well as his, and the cucumbers, peas, etc., bloomed as early. After one gathering of cucumbers, peas, etc., and the dry season set in, mine perished, while his continued to bloom and bear, and so of the melons. My potatoes made about half a crop of small tubers dug from dry hills. His yielded bounteously of large ones, dug from moist earth at the same time i the same field. So with the mangels, sugar beets, etc. The hilled peas, beans, etc., fired early in the season and succumbed to the drought. Without this experience, if one had said that hilling up growing plants trary to experience because they did plants and cultivated the soil as levelly as possible.—American Farmer.

To think that such a sweet, to the living, life-giving warmth of the living, life-giving warmth of the living. At least such has been my experience and the results of my ob; servation. In a rather wide range of observation, East and West, I loams of Kansas, not to forget the sandy loams of Delaware and Mary-umber of maiden aunts, had all tried among all classes of people as one of the flavour, the fairest quality and richest color; while the trees arrive at good old age in the highest health good old age and vigour. Light soils are naturally well drained; they are soon warmed by the sun's rays, and retain their warmth for a long period; they respond immediately to the application of manure and are thus made rich. For these reasons I would choose a light loam wherein to plant fruit trees, with a fair proportion of gravel in it derived from limestone or micaceous rocks if possible."

Boys Make Men.

When you see a ragged urchin Standing Wistful in the street. With torn cap and kneeless trousers, Dirty face and bare red feet, Pass not by the child unheeding; Smile upon him. Mark me, when He's grown old he'll not forget it; For remember-boys make men.

Have you ever seen a grandsire, With his eyes aglow with joy, Bring to mind some act of kindness Something said to him, a boy? Or relate some slight or coldness

With a brow all clouded, when

He recalled some heart too thoughtless

To remember boys make meu? Let us try to add some pleasure To the life of every boy; For each child needs tender interes In its sorrow and its joy. Call your boys home by its brightness, They avoid the household when
