PANDORA RANGE

HOLDS FIRE ALL NIGHT

The good housewife always feels like bestowing upon the Pandora a cheerful "good morning."

Why? Because the Pandora always has a nice bed of hot coals as a reward for checking off the dampers closely before retiring to rest.

In five minutes after turning on the drafts she will have a good, strong fire.

Should she sleep two or three hours longer than usual there will still be a fire ready for her.

The fire-box, flues and dampers are so scientifically arranged that the Pandora can be regulated to hold a fire from 24 to 36 hours.

Pandora owners never have their sleep disturbed with dreams of making a new fire in the morning.

HIS BRILLIANT CAREER

SIR MORTIMER DURAND'S RETIREMENT FROM WASHINGTON.

British Ambassador On Different Footing to the Representative of Any Other Foreign Power At the American Capital—Why He Retires—A Triumph At Kabul—The Best Man In Persia.

News of Sir Mortimer Durand's approaching retirement as British Ambassador at Washington has been received with sincere expressions of regret in all parts of the United States. The genuine liking he has inspired in those whom he has met officially or socially is reinforced by the respect with which he is regarded by the public. To say that he is the most popular of the Diplomatic Corps at Washington is only to say what might be expected in a British Ambassador, who is naturally on a different footing to the representative of any other foreign power at the American capital.

A Difficult Position.

This peculiar relation is well understood by "Ex-Attache," writing in the Chicago Tribune, when he says:

"Considering the peculiar relations that exist between the United States and Great Britain and the extraordinary complexity of the questions that are continually cropping up between the two nations, the post of British Ambassador at Washington may well be regarded as the most important office in the diplomatic service of King Edward. Its incumbent is required to fulfill the duties of his mission in such a manner as to promote harmony and good-will with the Government and people to whom he is accredited, without, however, sacrificing any of the interests confided to his care; to execute the instructions received from his chief, the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs in London, and to satisfy those British colonies which by reason of their proximity to the United States are bound to become from time to time involved in controversies with the latter. This is never an easy matter. For sometimes the interests of the colonies clash with those of the Mother Country, while at other times the colonies put forward pretensions and claims upon the United States which the Imperial Government in England does not feel disposed to endorse. Indeed, the British Ambassador at Washington is always exposed to the danger of being held up to obloquy in England's North American or West Indian dependencies for having neglected to champion with sufficient vigor issues which it has been impossible to reconcile with the views of the Foreign Office. One of the most thorny problems, in fact, confronting the Administration in London is the question whether popular sentiment in the colonies shall be contented at the expense of American good-will or whether the importance of retaining the latter shall be regarded as superior to all other considerations. It is this that renders the post of English Ambassador at Washington so difficult a one to fill. It is only men of altogether exceptional qualities that can be selected for the office."

Why He Retires.

He goes on to declare that Sir Mortimer Durand has admirably filled this difficult position. The writer does not discuss the reason for the retirement, evidently finding sufficient cause for the step in the two score years that Sir Mortimer has spent in diplomatic service. It is reported, nevertheless, that the Ambassador at Washington was not in accord with the British Foreign Office in the matter of the Newfoundland modus vivendi, and that his resignation marks his disapproval of the policy of his chiefs. If this rumor is without foundation it might be denied from London. If not, it is certain that the truth of the story will not be formally set forth for many years, that being the time that must elapse before confidential Government documents regarding international matters may be used for purposes of publication. By this rule the British Government ensures that any wounds caused by a controversy will have healed before the matter is once more forced on the attention of those whom it concerned.

A Triumph At Kabul.

Sir Mortimer Durand has been at Washington for three years, he having succeeded Sir Michael Herbert, who had shortly before followed the venerable Pauncefort. Durand was the choice of Lord Dufferin, who, as Viceroy in India, had come in close contact with him, and had, indeed, publicly testified to his regard for the delicate Kabul mission had been so satisfactorily negotiated. The Viceroy's tribute chiefly concerned those diplomatic qualities that the young envoy displayed, but a stronger recommendation to the general public was his courage under fire, which amounted to heroism, and earned for him the distinction of mention in despatches, an incident almost without precedent among Ambassadors.

It was in his dealings with the wily Shah and in checking the hostile influence of Russia that Sir Mortimer Durand made his real diplomatic reputation. That he was the best British diplomat who ever served in Persia is an opinion quite generally held, and to him is given credit for Britain's paramount influence in the Shah's court during his regime. Certainly, this prestige never was so high before or since the days of Durand.

Good Work At Washington.

He was, indeed, the first full-fledged Ambassador from England to be appointed to Washington, his predecessors in office having been chosen by the first rank upon appointment. During his incumbency there have been no great events to threaten the good feeling between the countries, and consequently there has been no call upon those higher qualities with which Sir Mortimer Durand is endowed. When it is said that he has so discharged his duties as to strengthen the cordial relations now existing, high praise is given—perhaps the highest that he would care to receive. His fine reputation makes the choice of a successor increasingly difficult, for a better man could hardly be chosen.

Dear Chum: I am enjoying my visit with grandma and grandpa hugely. Yesterday grandpa took me down to the docks to see the ocean liners. Gee! they're whoppers! I bought me my third box of Moir's Chocolates. They are the sweetest candies ever. The chocolate outside is awfully smooth and rich, and in the inside are cream, jellies and nuts. Those called Moir's Chocolate Chips taste like honey dipped in chocolate. Another kind called Moir's Nougatines are so good that I teased grandma into promising me another box tomorrow. ***** not a bit homesick.

PLAIN TALK FROM THE DOCTOR

A prominent physician, famous for his success in the treatment of kidney and bladder troubles, stated that to the following prescription is due a great deal of his success:

One ounce fluid extract dandelion;

One ounce compound salutarin;

Four ounces compound syrup sarsaparilla.

Mix and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime, drinking plenty of water.

This mixture will, he says, positively cure any diseases arising from weak, clogged or inactive kidneys, and will assist these organs to cleanse the blood of the poisonous waste matter and acids, which if allowed to remain, cause lumbago, lame back, rheumatism and sciatica, and at the same time will restore the kidneys to healthy normal action. The ingredients, which are purely vegetable and entirely harmless, can be procured from any good druggist and mixed at home at very little cost. This advice will undoubtedly be much appreciated by many readers.

Women Suffer Agonies from Kidney Trouble

GIN PILLS CURE THEM

There is Mrs. Ripley, for instance. She suffered terribly with her back. It ached, ached, ached—all the time. Even in bed, it seemed as if she could not get easy. It finally became so bad that housework was impossible.

Williamdale East, May 9th. I cannot refrain from writing you the benefits I have received from GIN PILLS. Before I had taken GIN PILLS I suffered dreadfully with my back, and had suffered for twenty years. I have tried almost everything but got no relief until I got "GIN PILLS."

I have taken six boxes and now I have not the sign of a pain or an ache in my back. I am now 48 and feel as well as I ever did in my life. There is nothing can hold a place with GIN PILLS for pains in the back to which women are subject. Yours truly,

Mrs. WILLIAM F. RIPLEY.

Mrs. Ripley had serious Kidney Trouble. And the sick kidneys were making her back ache—were giving her those spitting headaches—were sapping her strength—and dragging her down. ## SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST.

Homestead Regulations.

Any enumerated section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situated. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1). At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2). A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3). If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased), of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of the homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father (or mother).

(4). The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line, exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5). A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY, Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.
