

GRIDIRON GOSSIP

Despairing of getting police protection for their game with the Tigers on Saturday, the Argonauts are thinking of engaging a squad of soldiers from the Fort to patrol the Rosedale grounds. In the last two or three matches the players have been greatly troubled by the spectators crowding on to the field. In fact, in the game with Ottawa two weeks ago, the game had to be stopped on several occasions while the crowd was forced back from the side lines.

Of course, the management of the club would rather have a detachment of police if possible, but so far their efforts along that line have not been very great success. The only satisfaction they could get at police headquarters was that there would be a number of "bluecoats" on duty at the grounds, and they would interfere if any disturbance took place. This is all right as far as it goes, but what the club wants most is to have the crowd kept in its proper place, and the only way to do it seems to be to engage a squad of soldiers.

The Argonauts had two hard practices yesterday afternoon in preparation for the game with the Tigers on Saturday. The practice division worked out at 1:45, and at 4:30 the whole team assembled at Bayside Park and went through a good drill. The feature of the last practice was the re-appearance of Art Kent on the field in uniform. Kent has been out of the game for a week or ten days, suffering from the effects of a dislocated shoulder. The hurt is still troubling him, and although he did some good work in the practice, it is hardly likely that he will play for a few days yet. Norcross, the star outside wing of the team, is still on the sick list.

Dr. Rush Rhees, of the University of Rochester, prompted by the heart-rending football fatalities of the last few weeks, issued the following statement yesterday:

"The general popularity of football throughout the country should not blind intelligent men to the fact that, if not greater popularity was enjoyed by the gladiatorial contests of Rome, and equal, if not greater, popularity is enjoyed by the bull fights of Spain to-day. If the present popularity of football is to commend the game permanently as a feature of our civilization, it must demand the elimination from the sport of all features which justify its classification with gladiatorial contests."

"The tragedies connected with the game of football during the present season place an obligation upon everyone who believes that the game ought not to be put in the same class with the gladiatorial contests of ancient Rome or the bull fights of Spain to-day. That obligation is to lift a clear voice for the creation of a public sentiment which shall demand and secure the elimination from the game of those features of brutality and danger to human life which, in spite of recent modifications, it still seems to retain."

As regards to the Ottawa challenge to Dundas for the intermediate honors, and the request that the game be played in Ottawa on Nov. 20, it might be said that the Dundas team is ready to meet the Ottawa club, but not in Ottawa, as this year the eastern winners must come west. Last year the western winners should have gone east, but the game was transferred to Hamilton by mutual agreement between Hamilton and the Grand Trunk team of Montreal. Dundas and Ottawa will likely get together on the matter.

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—The Ottawa football team held its first practice of the week at Varsity Oval yesterday afternoon, all the players being present, with the exception of Bert Stronach. The practice was a light one, and the players will not get down to real hard work for a day or two, as some of them are still feeling the effects of the Tiger match. They will all be in fair shape for the saw-off game against Hamilton, should such be necessary.

An anonymous letter was published conspicuously in a local paper last night recommending changes in the management of the team, and that Martin Kilt, George Kennedy, and Pete Ferguson be dropped in favor of Wilkinson, Kilmartin and Roberts, of the intermediates. The letter was evidently penned by some one who wishes to stir up trouble, however, and is unworthy of attention, despite the fact that the writer claims to be voicing the sentiments of a number of supporters. Coach Clancy announces that he is perfectly satisfied with his team.

The Great Sandow When a Boy.

When Sandow, the world's greatest athlete, was a boy, his father took him on a visit to Rosedale grounds, and there those fine beautiful pieces of staturay and he asked his father why men and women were not developed like that in these days. His father said owing to the way they lived the race had degenerated.

Young Sandow determined to be like these statues, and he began to develop himself with light dumb bells and wands. His statue now stands in the British museum to be handed down to future generations as the best developed man physically of our time.

D. M. Barton studied with Sandow and received a handsome gold medal from him, and at his illustrated musical and music entertainment in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, Friday, November 9th, will illustrate the Sandow method of acquiring a strong physique. He will be assisted by K. W. Barton, one of Canada's leading violinists, and the clever Y. M. C. A. gymnastic team.

Balzac and the Burglar.
A new story of Balzac is related by a contemporary. A burglar gained admission to the famous Frenchman's house and was soon at work, by the light of the moon, at the lock of the secretaire in the novelist's chamber. Balzac was asleep at the time, but the movements of the intruder aroused him. The burglar, who was working most industriously, paused. A sudden laugh arrested his operations, and he beheld by the moonlight the novelist sitting up in bed, his sides shaking with laughter. "What is it that makes you merry?" demanded the burglar. "I laugh," replied the author, "to think that you should come in the night without a lantern to search my secret treasure for money, when I can never find any there in broad day light!"

present team, and that no changes will be made. Clancy considers that the team has made a remarkably good showing, when the fact that it has been handicapped by so many accidents is taken into consideration. He will make only one change on the line, that being necessitated by Jim McCuaig's departure for the lumber camps. The players are not worrying over the abuse they have been getting as the result of Ben Simpson's adventures in the last match. Apparently the next match, however, will be cleaner, as Ottawa officers attribute their defeat to their penalties.

Bert Stronach makes the extraordinary declaration that he does not intend to play any more. Stronach feels keenly the accusations of roughness against him, and states that he will not risk losing any more of his reputation, which he apparently values higher than all the football honors available. He will likely be induced to play again. Stronach played on the Scotch International Rugby team against England several times, and was never penalized before last Saturday.

Ottawa 11. Have asked Secretary Davidson, of the Q. R. F. U., to forward to the Dundas team a challenge for the intermediate football honors.

Theory and hope will not win or lose for Hamilton or Varsity in the Canadian championship. Both are certainly capable of great Rugby and both may be relied upon to render an account of themselves that will not shame their fellows.

Varsity has advantages over Tigers and the latter are the better in other spots. That is the theory. The practice is different. In this modern game of Rugby the usual does not always hold and fumbles have been known to undo the brilliant work of an entire afternoon in a few seconds.

The two are evenly matched doubtless, but it is mistakes that win and lose games. Both have shown erratic work at times, and if there is anything of that in this game it will settle it. What each can do—as all good teams can—is to take advantage of errors and find and exploit the weak spots in the opposite team.

Saturday was the roughest day yet in the football season. Besides several broken necks, etc., in the U. S. A., there were quite a number of broken spines in the old burg. And in Montreal there were at least fourteen broken hearts. Such a roughness!

Hamilton papers drop a tear over poor Wallie Barron, of the Tigers, who had the misfortune to split his finger in snatching Dr. Sherriff in the face during the big game last Saturday. Barron that injury, the Tigers were unhurt. How rough these Ottawa players are! Barron might even have broken his arm.—Ottawa Journal.

Edwin Elliott, Queen's outside wing, is still in bad shape after Saturday's game in Toronto. One of his arms has a very bad sore, which has to be continually poulticed. His knee is also troubling him.

"This football can't be so bad a game after all," commented old Aunt Martha, "I saw where one of them great half-backs made five conversions in one afternoon."

The preparations for the next Ottawa-Hamilton football game indicate that only the color line stands in the way of Jack Johnson's appearance on one or other of the teams.

It is said that Wilbur Wright used to be a great half-back, but quit the game after he developed a habit of going up in the air.

Bill Grant, of the Argos, is suffering from a bad eye, but will likely be in the game on Saturday against Tigers.

The feeling in Ottawa is that the play-off will take place in Toronto. They may have some inside information.

When it comes to getting a herd of has-beens to stepping out like a troupe of two-year-olds, Jimmie Ollcott, trainer for the T. A. C. football outfit, is in a capital letters and black face type.

Cornwall is hot-foot after the probable saw-off between Hamilton and Ottawa in the Interprovincial Rugby Union. No chance.

D. M. Barton studied with Sandow and received a handsome gold medal from him, and at his illustrated musical and music entertainment in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, Friday, November 9th, will illustrate the Sandow method of acquiring a strong physique. He will be assisted by K. W. Barton, one of Canada's leading violinists, and the clever Y. M. C. RUGBY

Mr. Fred Skerrett requests the representatives from the Ascensions and First Methodist teams to attend a meeting at his store this evening. This will be the only opportunity the teams will have of settling their differences, and completing arrangements for the final game on Saturday.

There is some talk about the deciding game between the Ascensions and First Methodist for the championship for the Senior Church League, being played at the cricket grounds. This seems to be the only available place, in view of the fact that the First Church refuses to play on the Aylm ground. Britannia park was also mentioned, but it has been leased for the day. It is likely, however, that the matter will be settled definitely this evening.

All members of the Y. M. C. A. senior football team are requested to be in attendance at the Y. M. C. A. this evening at 7:30 o'clock. A meeting will be held after the practice and the team chosen to play Dundas on Saturday. All players are requested to be on hand.

SHOT DOWN.

Tong War Raging Among Chinese at the Coast.

Two Men Killed and One Fatally Wounded by the Gang.

San Francisco, Nov. 11.—The fifth victim of the On Yick Yee Tong war was fatally wounded early to-day in Oakland by a Yee man. Jin Kung Fook was just going to work from a Chinese gambling house on Harrison street, which is kept by Gee On, president of the On Yicks, when he was shot.

The Tong war, growing out of the elopement several days ago of Be Gue, wife of an On Yick Tong man, with a member of the Yee family, claimed its third victim last night when On Yang Yung, of the On Yick Tong, and a cousin of the acting Chinese consul, was shot as he was leaving the headquarters of his Tong, Yee Yung, said by the police to be one of the gun men of the Yees, was arrested.

Five men, said to be of the Yee family, lay in wait for On Yang Yung. When he was within ten feet of them, although a policeman was standing in the narrow street but a few yards away, one of the men fired point blank, killing the On Yick Tong man instantly.

The murder of a Chinese at Mountainview last night also is believed to be connected with the present Tong war. Two members of the Yee family were killed recently by the On Yicks, and it is asserted by the police that a meeting of the Yees early this week it was voted to take triple toll for their dead. The police fear that the war will spread throughout the coast cities.

AT THE VATICAN.

How Pope Pius X. Has Done Away With Marriage Ceremony.

The extraordinary personal charm of Pope Pius X., says the Boston Transcript, and the democratic manners which obtain at the Vatican today are revealed in an interesting interview in the August. Fortnightly. Pope Pius X., unlike his predecessor, Leo XIII., is a man of the people. When he donned the tiara he declared that he intended to be "the poor man's Pope." The inaccessibility that was a feature of those who reigned before him was, as far as possible, to be relaxed, while much of the severity and the strict and complicated forms of etiquette observed by the Holy See since the period of the Renaissance was to be maintained no longer.

"Formerly," says the writer, who, with his wife, was granted an "audience privata," "the etiquette was that those who had the honor of being admitted to an audience with the Pope should make three genuflections as he entered the room, and then, at the second a little further, the third at the feet of the Pope, whose slipper, moreover, he was obliged to kiss. Leo XIII. made only the rarest exceptions to this rule. Pius X. has abolished it. He does not wish you to talk to him on your knees, and the gesture of my devotee's separation from space and liberty. It has banished all the sad and all the joyous, all the solemn moments of my life. What jewel could be more precious to me?"

THE FARM

COW TESTING ASSOCIATION—A COW'S ACCOUNT.

Dominion Department of Agriculture, Dairy Division.
Farmers do you keep records? It is doubtful if there is anyone thing that will add more to the interest of farm labor, or make its usefulness more apparent in shorter time than one simple method of figuring. For instance, supposing that mixed farming is followed, an answer is desired to the query, which pays best, sheep, poultry, fruit, cows, steers or grain? It may be found after a year's record that the farm is best adapted for dairying. Then will naturally follow the investigation, which cow pays best? This phase of the question has not yet appealed to all owners of dairy herds, but is in truth at the very foundation of profitable dairying. Every farmer is interested in cutting out all unprofitable features of his business, he wants to produce plenty of good milk at the least cost, and to this end dairy records are indispensable. Why? Simply because they enable the watchful owner to detect those cows that give the most milk and fat in proportion to the feed consumed. Which cow will respond to a little extra grain? The dairyman needs to know such points definitely, hence he must keep records of feed and milk. Forms are supplied free on application to the Dairy Commissioner, Ottawa.

—C. F. W.
Ottawa, November, 1909.

COW TESTING ASSOCIATIONS—COWS AND CASH.

Dominion Department of Agriculture, branch of the Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner.

Is it not true that all dairy farmers in Canada came to thing seriously of what might easily be accomplished by a little, a very little, extra effort? Very few would pass by the opportunity of picking up five or six dollar bills if the conditions were not difficult. There is a huge sum of money waiting for owners of dairy cows.

Not only is present cash value assured for the application of a little brain power, but solid and permanent improvement of dairy conditions, a distinct raising of the whole status of dairy farming, a measurable gain in contentment and self-respect, a notable and enviable addition to our reputation among the nations of the world as high-class dairymen would quickly result. Unfortunately we have to go on record in these days of widespread and easily available raidy knowledge as owning lots of cows that produce only 2,800 or 2,500 lbs. milk during their best six or seven months. Such cows are no credit to their owners, and such owners scarcely do credit to the dignified title of dairymen. As Canadian dairy farmers we should be proud to have a reputation of affairs being possible. It is easy to detect those poor cows by recording weights of milk, and it is injurious to any district to retain such wretched specimens, mongrels, not real dairy cows. The queen of the dairy, the select cow, will do infinitely better if handled right by men who put dairy intelligence into daily operation.

Banking concerns, first rate concerns at any rate, in this country are more or less debarrd by etiquette from seeking business through the ordinary medium of advertisement, and they have, therefore, to fall back on less obvious ways of enlarging their undertakings. One of these methods is the employment of a tout, whose work it is to introduce business to the bank by whom he is employed. I should, however, explain that no bank of any repute officially employs a tout or recognizes his existence, but privately his services are readily accepted, and what is more to the point, well paid for—that is, of course, if he is able to prove that he can be of use in enlarging the business of the bank for which he works.

I began my career as a tout by introducing a healthy young fellow who had, at least in Vermont, the reputation of being a good business man, to the manager of the city branch of a well-known and long-established banking concern.

The account was an excellent one, and I suggested to the manager that I should be paid for introducing it, and after some bargaining got £25 out of him. This was, of course, an absurdly low commission. It should have been about £200, at least. I was now in the business then and did not know how to make good terms. Afterwards, when I began to do regular business for the bank in question, I was paid on a far more generous scale.

A tout is always held responsible for the character of the people he introduces to a bank; of course, the bank may see fit to make inquiries about customers introduced to them by a tout. I believe, indeed, this is frequently done, but a tout is supposed to make the most careful inquiries himself and to ascertain beyond doubt that the business he is paid for introducing is of a thoroughly respectable character. Let him introduce a person of shady or doubtful character to a bank but once, and his business as a tout is gone forever, for no banking concern will have anything to do with him. Cassell's Saturday Journal.

The Conclusion.
Sir Walter Raleigh was accused of treason and imprisoned in the Tower, where he was beheaded in 1618. While lying in prison he wrote a "History of the World." He also wrote several poems, of which we give here a short specimen; the melancholy tone of which points to its having been composed within the shadow of death. But Sir Walter's high courage does not desert him, and his faith in God is supreme. Even such a time that takes in trust.

Our youth, our joys, our all we have,
And pays us but with earth and dust;
Who in the dark and silent grave,
When we have wandered all our ways,
Shuts up the story of our days;
But from this earth, this grave, this dust,
My God shall raise me up, I trust.

MARKETS AND FINANCE

Thursday, Nov. 10.—Turkeys and chickens were entering Central Market this morning by baskets and crates full, but other poultry was not quite so plentiful. The prices remained steady, however, with the exception of turkeys, which could be procured for 12 to 20 cents a pound. A number of fine loads of turkeys were offered cheap this morning, and an overflow is expected unless the farmers stop bringing them in. Meats held steady, with the exception of live hogs, which declined 25 cents per hundred. No noticeable change was reported in dairy produce, the demand being fair at prevailing prices. Grain and feed at prevailing prices. Quantities, and the prices held up to the figure that has ruled for the last week. Hay was about the same, except that the top prices were quoted more frequently. All other produce was steady at prices quoted last week.

The current prices this morning were:

Dairy Produce.

Small Girl—Why doesn't baby talk, father? Father—He can't talk—yet. Young babies never do. Small Girl—Oh, yes, they do. John did. Nurse read to me out of the Bible how Job cursed the day he was born.—Tit Bits.

Want of thought often leads to the gallow. —Florida Times-Union.

Mr. Newsworthy (looking up from his paper)—I see there is a slump in the market. Mrs. Newsworthy—Thank you, dear, I shall try and get a nice one for dinner.</
