The well-known "drop game," recently tried with success on a Brooklyn bank deposi-tor, developed an anecdote that is told of Judge David Davis. The judge was making a deposit at a Washington bask, and stood comting a large pile of money at a desk. A well-dressed young man stepped up and, with bow and a smile, said : "Judge, you have dropped a bill." Sure enough, there lay a clean, crisp, genuine $2 bill at the de-positor's feet. On this occasion no less than one Prussian police councillor, one Bavarian com-missary of police, four Munich detectives, six Bavarian gendarmes, six Prussian police-men and two Wurzburg detectives were as-signed to take charge of him. One would think the question must arise in the presence of this great company, "Who shall guard the guards themselves ?" But these men are all supposed to be true as well as tried. They watched over the Chandellor when he took his prescribed three hours' promenades daily, and kept suspicious persons away from the villa. With so much security the Prince cer-tainly ought to have had peace of mind, and perhaps it is no wonder that the Kinsingen "cure" is reported to have banefited him greatly. greatly. ASIA. ASIA.
