IMMURED IN THE DUNGEON. A Nun Chained and Imprisoned Nineteen Years for Disobedience. Sister Barbara Urbay, the Carmelite nun, who in the year 1870 was the innocent cause of the riot at Crocus, says a woman in the New York Tribune, died in the lunatic asylum of that city, where she spent the last twenty-two years of her unhappy life. Sister Barbara belonged to a noble family who had forced her to enter religious orders, for the purpose of preventing her from marrying a young officer of lanciers with whom she was violently in love, but who unfortunately had neither rank, title or fortune.

After a long search, the archbishop and his party descended into the dungeons, fifteen feet under the ground, where they heard low groans and moans which sounded more bestial than human proceeding from a half brick-cup cell in a narrow passage and in this living tomb, seven paces long by six paces wide, they discovered by the light of the torches they carried, a naked woman, with long dishevelled hair, crouching in a corner of her filthy prison.

A MILITARY CIRCUUS. The Extraordinary Drill of the Russian Cossacks. Gen. Kostanda, governor of Moscow, permitted the representative of some Paris Journals to visit the barracks of Chiryskoi, which are occupied by a regiment of Cossacks of the Don, and died in the lunatic asylum of that city, where she spent the last twenty-two years of her unhappy life.

The drill of the Cossacks is something marvellous. We came to witness it just at least as they live in the barracks in line. In this country the commander of a regiment never appears before his troops without saluting them and pronouncing the following words: "Good morning, my fine fellows!" To this salutation the entire regiment responds: "We wish your lordship good health!"

The following day I went out to hunt with Alukty. During that day he explained to me the meaning of the signal I found it very interesting at the time and later on its usefulness was demonstrated almost daily during my residence with these people. Alukty described that when an Esquimaux would talk to him as a distance he would take a position on an eminence where the body could be plainly seen against the sky or a snow covered hillside. With his body placed so as to directly face those with whom he wishes to communicate, he extends his right arm and moves it up and down like a piston.

A TRICK OF A LAWYER. A few days ago a famous lawyer sat in his shirt sleeves in his study in New York, with his feet on a window sill and a cigar in the corner of his mouth, at 10.30 in the morning. People came to see him at short intervals, and they would be at the office between two and one. At twelve o'clock the lawyer finished his cigars, got through with the papers and narrowly escaped falling asleep a dozen times.

Some very interesting recollections of the empress Eugenie and the court of the Tuileries comprise the leading article in the July number of Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly. It was written especially for this magazine by Mme. Carotte, nee Bouvet, author of "Souvenirs de la Cour des Tuileries," "Madame Campan," etc., and translated by Mrs. Frank Leslie. The article is charmingly written, and is accompanied by many fine illustrations, including a new portrait of the empress. This number of the magazine also contains the following illustrated articles: "Some distinguished literary women of France," by Mrs. Van Etten Mack; "On a Chilian Hacienda," by J. S. Whitman; "A summer among the icebergs," by Herbert Pierson; and "The national story of wealth," by Scott Campbell, is given; and there are five interesting short stories.

There is a negro woman living out in the country, one of those who have queer ideas as to the naming of children. Instead of bestowing upon them Biblical names so popular with the Afro-American citizen, she has developed a nomenclature from their physical peculiarities. For instance, one has very thick lips, and his name is Lips; another has very big feet and he is called Feet; another is blessed with a pair of very bowed legs, and he is known as Crooks. She gives as a reason that she could not remember the ordinary names, but as they are, she has only to look at them and she knows what to call them.

SAFE, SURE, AND PAINLESS. What a world of meaning this statement embodies. Just what you are looking for, is it not? Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor—the great sure-pop corn cure—acts in this way. It makes no sore spots; safe, acts speedily and with certainty; sure, and mild, without irritating the parts; painless. Do not be imposed upon by imitations or substitutes.

SIGNALS OF SAVAGES. How They Communicate with Each Other by Signs. With two Esquimaux hunters I was one standing upon the top of a rocky hill, about two days journey inland from the north shore of Hudson's Bay. We had been looking for reindeer, but had seen none. I heard the faint sound of a human voice borne upon the still wind that was blowing from the northward. I called the attention of my companions to this sound, and, brushing their long black locks from under their ears, they threw themselves down in the lee of a great rock and listened. They, too, heard the voice, and said the person calling was so far off that they could not understand what he said. In the meantime I swept the crest of a range of hills in the direction of the voice with my field glass, and finally made out the figure of some one who was waving what looked like a huge piece of cloth.

The following day I went out to hunt with Alukty. During that day he explained to me the meaning of the signal I found it very interesting at the time and later on its usefulness was demonstrated almost daily during my residence with these people. CHICKENS AS DIAMOND MINES. (From the Jeweler's Weekly.) A New York diamond dealer relates the following story: "A few days ago an unsophisticated cock, hailing from one of the flourishing villages of Long Island, made their way into my office, and after fishing out a small paper from the depths of an exaggerated hand-bag asked me to examine a stone it contained."

SIR JOHN MACDONALD'S WILL. The late premier's will was entered in probate on Friday of last week. The body of the will, which is valued at about $120,000, is and is bequeathed to his widow and children.

WORDS THAT SAIL UNDER FALSE COLORS. Suppose we take up a few of the words that seem to be sailing under false colors. The antelope is not akin to the industrious ant, nor is he given to eloping except when the hunter is after him with a gun. He is partly a deer and partly a goat, and received his name from two Greek words—ant, thus, beaute; ope, eyes. Antelope means the animal with the beautiful eye.

HOW TO BOIL AN EGG. "Isn't it strange," said a short, foregone-looking man, the other day to some companions while lunching together at one of the restaurants, "that not one cook in fifty, nor housekeeper either, knows how to boil an egg? And yet most people think they know this simple matter. They will tell you to drop it into boiling water and let it remain three minutes, and to be sure the water is boiling. Here is where the mistake is made. An egg so prepared is indigestible and hardly fit for a well person; but also one who is sick, to eat. The moment it is plunged into boiling water the white hardens and toughens. To boil an egg properly put it in a vessel, cover with cold water, place over the fire, and the second the water begins to boil your egg is done. The white is as delicate as a jelly and as easily digested, and nutritious as it should be." The information is worthy of consideration, since the speaker has occupied the position of chief at several of the largest hotels of the country, and is now proprietor of a restaurant in Denver—Chicago Tribune.

The average ages attained by birds are shown in the following: Blackbird, 12 years; blackcap, 15; among 20; crane, 24; crow, 10; eagle, 10; fowl, common, 10; goldfinch, 15; goose, 50; heron, 10; lark, 18; linnet, 23; nightingale, 18; parrot, 60; partridge, 15; peacock, 21; pigeon, 50; pheasant, 15; pigeon, 20; raven, 100; robin, 12; skylark, 30; sparrow hawk, 40; swan, 100; thrush, 10; wren, 3.—London Tit-Bits.

SCOTLAND'S PUDDING. The Famous "Scottish Haggis" Sung in Scottish Verse. The dish of "Scottish Haggis" which is so highly esteemed in Scotland, and which was mentioned by her national bard as the "great chieftain of the pudding race," is made with the tongue, liver, kidneys and liver of a sheep, and sometimes, when a very large liver is required, the meat from the sheep's head is added also. The various ingredients, when properly prepared, are boiled in the paunch or stomach-bag of the sheep, which latter must of course, be thoroughly cleansed previous to using. This is best accomplished in the following manner: Wash the paunch well, soak it for two or three hours in cold, salted water, then turn it inside out, and scrape it, rinse again in clean, cold, salted water, and dry carefully by pressing it gently, and if there are any thin places or holes in it, repair these with a fine needle and thread before filling. The following is very reliable and well-tested method of preparing the haggis, which are to form the "haggis": Weigh the meat, then mix it finely with fat in a bowl, and mix it with two large table-spoons of finely minced onion, a plentiful seasoning of salt and pepper, a pinch of cayenne, one tablespoonful of mixed herb powder and an ordinary sized breakfast-cupful of "medium" oatmeal. When thoroughly mixed, moisten well with good, brown stock or gravy, and turn the preparation into the paunch which has been made ready for it. Sew it up securely, being careful to leave the neck open, and the haggis to swell during the process of cooking—then plunge it into plenty of boiling water and boil gently and evenly for three hours. During the first hour prick the skin here and there with a needle several times in order to let the steam escape, and so prevent the haggis from bursting—a very annoying accident which sometimes happens when the dish is being prepared by inexperienced cooks. When done enough, serve the haggis just as it is on a very hot plate, with a simple sauce of scraps of parsley and sliced lemon placed round about. Good brown sauce or gravy in a hot tureen, may accompany this dish if desired, but in Scotland it is generally served quite dry.

Sometimes a haggis is served as a sweet dish, and when this is the case, bread-crumbs and beaten eggs should be substituted for the oatmeal and gravy, while chopped raisins, well-cleaned currants, lemon-juice and grated nutmeg should be used in place of the cayenne pepper and herb powder. Sprinkle with white sugar and white sauce may then, if desired, be served as accompaniments. When parboiled, a well-made haggis will keep good for two or three weeks; one is often sent, therefore, in this state from Scotland as a present to friends at a distance.

ADVANTAGES OF VOICE CULTURE. Study of the voice embraces study of the entire human system. In order to have a musical voice there must be physical strength; hence cultivation of the body is of primary consideration to the vocal student. The organs of sound are the lungs and vocal chords. Correct standing position is, therefore, the first thing the voice instructor will teach his pupil. If the chest is held erect the other organs of the body are brought into correct position, and the lungs are enabled to do their proper work. Upon the control of the breath depends the quality of the voice; hence exercises which strengthen the diaphragmatic muscles are of the greatest value in one desiring a musical voice. To know how to breathe correctly is to know after all, the secret of perfect health. Singers and orators illustrate constantly the value of this knowledge. As a rule, people do not breathe deeply enough, the lungs never get filled with air, and as air is the only means of correct position, hence, when deprived of it, diseased. It is claimed by wise physicians that there is no disease in the vocabulary of human lungs which cannot be cured by a natural process of respiratory exercises. Hence it happens that people take my voice work oftentimes simply as a means of gaining health and strength. In diaphragmatic gymnastics breathing exercises are followed by tone producing exercises, in which the diaphragm on the one side, the abdominal muscles on the other, come together like the lips of a vise, stimulating the stomach, liver and whole alimentary canal. If the voice is improperly used nature's laws are defied and numerous diseases ensue. Various bronchial and catarrhal troubles can be directly traced to wrong vocal practices. From the physiological standpoint alone the knowledge of the voice is indispensable to every one desiring perfect health.—Jennings-Miller Magazine.

A MISSIONARY'S PREDICAMENT. A missionary in Borneo is wrestling with a question relating to the evolution of species that would have puzzled the late Mr. Darwin himself. Among his converts is a native, who in spite of his rather exemplary conduct in other directions persists in an old habit of running down and killing the dwarfs that form a low tribe of beings in the vicinity of the mission. He does it merely for sport; it is his way of hunting; and when remonstrated with by the missionary he claims that the dwarfs are not human beings, but animals that a Christian savage has a right to hunt. The missionary admits that they exhibit few traces of the human being, and is in considerable perplexity as to whether convert is right or wrong. To the wisest philosopher it would probably be a pretty difficult matter to say at what point the animal ceases and the man begins.—Chicago Herald.
