Go to Japan if You Really Want to See Model Children.

Without doubt, the little Japanese boys and girls may be termed "model children" in every sense of the expression. The little girls, especially, are used to obeying everybody, beginning with their own mothers. As soon as they are dressed in the morning the children go to their parents, bow reverently, touching the ground with their foreheads, and say, "How is your honorable health?"

Before they begin to eat their breakfast they raise their spoon or fork to their foreheads and bow their heads in sign of gratitude, and they do not start for school without having kneeled in front of their mother. If their father goes out they follow him to the porch, bow their heads and murmur, "May God be with you! Come back soon!" The great annual festival of the little girls takes place on the third of March. It is the festival of the dolls, which dates back to the reign of the Emperor Hidatsu, 572 years before Christ. It is an exhibition of dolls representing the Emperor and Empress in magnificent robes and surrounded by their Ministers and court and great historical personages. Looking at these miniature exhibitions, the little girls learn the rules of etiquette, and looking at all the objects that surround the dolls, they also learn what things are necessary in a household.

The state compels parents to send their children to school for six years, and during these six years two hours every week are devoted to the moral instruction of the young. The books are chosen by the secretary of education. The lessons change every few weeks, and the principal subjects to be mentioned—devotion to parents, respect of ancestor, loyalty to the Emperor and Empress, charity, honesty, gratitude, economy, kindness

BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA.

Information for Depositors.

The following certificate is attached to the 70th Annual Statement, published January 16th, 1911:

to old people and servants, etiquette to your neighbor, love of God and country and courage. During recent years lessons are given in the duties of citizenship, the duties of the soldier, election of Parliamentary and municipal representatives, the duties of man toward woman, etc.

This boys and girls are taught their respective duties at an early age. The boys are also taught athletics and learn fencing, boxing and baseball. The girls are invariably expected to marry sooner or later, and this why every girl is taught at school not only to sew, but to cut and make her own garments, and, unless she belongs to the aristocracy, she is also taught to cook. Needlework is the principal occupation of the young girl after she has married, when she is responsible for the condition of all the clothes of the members of her household.

The mothers teach their daughters to look upon marriage not as a romantic paradise of happiness but as a period of self-sacrifice and devotedness, when they will need all their best qualities and virtues to fulfill their destinies in life.

This is the reason why the Japanese wife, in contrast to her western married sisters, who are often dissatisfied with married life, is always calm and contented, and performs her noble always pleasant duties with her own resignation.

Overcrowding Canada.

(By Frederick George Scott, in the Canadian Churchman.)
Lord God, rise up in Zion, rise up at Thy people's cry.
For blindness has fallen upon us and the doom of our land draws near.
Lord God, rise up and save us; they have put a strange song in our mouth.
For our rulers would barter our birthright for the gold of the Kings of the South.

Thou hast given us long dim forests to guard with their music and dreams.
The milk-white breasts of the Winter which water our land with their streams.
Thou hast given us prairie empires, whose boundaries pillow the stars.
Thou hast given us mountain ranges, with our hands we have broken their bars.

Thou hast crowned us with might and domain, we have girded the sea to the sea.
As a potter would fashion a vessel, we are moulding the nation to be. The centuries open before us, East and West are the doors for our feet.
And the smile of Thy favor is on us, and the name of our country is sweet.

Begotten of free-born peoples, the lords of the land and the flood, We have mingled our blood in battles, and sealed up the past in our blood;
Who are we, then, to squander our kingship in the hire of an alien land?
To bring them our loaves and our fishes, and bow ourselves under their hand?
Lord God of our fathers, be with us, rise up at Thy people's cry.
For blindness hath stricken the nation, and the doom of our land draws near.
Rise up, ere it falls, Lord, and save us, and blast with the fire of Thy mouth
The treason that barter our birthright for the gold of the Kings of the South.

The Fresh Air Cure For Pneumonia.

In talking of pneumonia to people in general, it is necessary to say and repeat many times that pneumonia is not a bad cold run mad, for this conviction appears to be invariably lodged in the lay mind.
Pneumonia is first, last and all the time an acute local disease of the lungs, which according to the gravity of the case, become more or less consolidated or choked up. The more of the lung tissue that is thus choked, the less the lungs are able to breathe.
The first consequence of this helplessness on the part of the lungs is that the heart—that gallant organ—labors to get enough blood to keep things going, and this is why we see the distressing rapid and shallow breathing so characteristic of the disease.
With all the heart can do it can only pump blood, it cannot oxygenate it—that is the function of the lungs. Presently, therefore, the blood stream becomes more and more impure, owing to lack of oxygen, and in those cases ending in death one of two things happens—either the heart gives out entirely, unable to stand the strain put upon it, or else the system is overcome by toxins, that is to say, by the impurity induced by the lack of oxygenation.
It has long been recognized that what the pneumonia patient needs is oxygen, and we are now surer that this is best supplied by a direct current of fresh air from outside, and that this fresh air should be the basis of all treatment from the very beginning.
Too often has life been lost by a failure to recognize this truth, or by a belief that rushing in canned oxygen at the last moment would effect a cure. There is less pneumonia among country dwellers than among city people. There is less pneumonia among people who ventilate well than among the stuffy. And there is less pneumonia in the summer than in the winter, because in the summer there is a free circulation of air through all our houses. The ideal treatment of pneumonia is to carry the patient into the open air and keep him there with proper precautions against wind and weather. But as this cannot always be done, the patient can at least be placed in the largest, sunniest and best ventilated room in the house. If possible a room with windows on two sides is much to be preferred to one which can be opened only to one point of the compass. By a system of screening, it can always be managed that a direct current of very cold air shall not blow right on the bed, but the air of the room should be constantly renewed and always cool.
Of all "cranks" the "fresh-air crank" is the sanest, and his reward in the pneumonia sick-room is a rich one.—Youth's Companion.

B. I. S. Meeting.

Rev. Father Clarke, P.P., of Torbay, Honored.

At the annual meeting of the Benevolent Irish Society held yesterday at noon a resolution was carried unanimously to present a purse and address to Rev. M. J. Clarke, P.P., of Torbay, who is about to leave Newfoundland for good. Hon. J. D. Ryan, the President, occupied the chair, and after adding two new members to the roll and receiving the report from the committee in charge of the parade on St. Patrick's Day, the principal subject of the meeting was taken up by Mr. Higgins, who made a complimentary speech to Father Clarke in moving that an address be presented to him. He referred to all the good work that Father Clarke had done in the cause of education and temperance at Torbay and the general moral uplifting of the people. The work was so well known that it was needless to speak of it. His departure will be generally regretted. As Fr. Clarke is a member of the Society and a worthy son of the Emerald Isle, it was only fitting that the B.I.S. should present him with an address. Mr. P. J. Laracy, Chairman of the L. & A. Committee, who seconded the resolution, paid a glowing tribute to the rev. pastor, speeches appropriate to the subject before the chair were made by Messrs. J. M. Devine, V. P. Burke, J. P. Croarty, J. C. Pippy and E. L. Carter. Mr. Burke's remarks were particularly interesting, as he had been associated with the reverent gentleman for many years as Superintendent of Education and was able to speak from personal experience of the zeal that the rev. pastor of Torbay had always shown in the cause of education. Mr. Burke had an opportunity of observing the standard of education in Canada, but he had never seen anything to equal that of Torbay. The President said a few words in support of the resolution which, on being put to the meeting, was carried unanimously. The President then announced that he had received an invitation from the Charitable Irish Society of Boston to attend their annual celebration, after which the meeting adjourned till next Sunday.

OBITUARY.

It is with deepest sympathy for the bereaved husband and family that we chronicle the death recently at Open Hall, B. B., of Mrs. James Long. A fatal termination to an illness that at first did not appear serious was not anticipated till a sudden change gave warning of danger. Dr. Levisconte and Father Scully were summoned, but alas! all that medical skill and loving care could do proved futile to avert the end, and fortified with all the consolations of religion, an excellent life was crowned with a happy death. Deceased was one of those rare characters who illustrate in their daily lives the capabilities that the human heart holds for good. Kindly, generous, courteous, and hospitable to a degree. We shall not look upon her like again. Her loss is irreparable to her husband, Mr. James Long, the leading Catholic of the district, her children and grandchildren who will have the fullest and deepest sympathy of all who like the writer enjoyed the open-hearted hospitality of the Long family.—Com.
