"Goodness knows," said one broker this morning, "that we know little enough about the stock market game without us attempting to guess how many bushels of wheat farmers have sown or grown here and in every other exporting country. If a man wants to trade in wheat, I'll let him, but I won't give him any encouragment." This mental attitude of the stock broker no doubt has a big influence on the mind of the client, who, as a rule, pays some attention at least to what his broker Still, some local men beautiful and the client when the control of the client, who are rule, pays some attention at least to what his broker Still, some local men beautiful and the control of the client who are rule.
