LONDON, SATURDAY, AUG. 19.

CONSERVATIVE WITNESSES FOR RECIPROCITY—No. 3.

In the session of 1891, Mr. Foster, then finance minister, pronounced in favor of reciprocity on the basis of the treaty of 1854, which provided for the free exchange of natural products—practically the same as the Taft-Fielding agreement. Said he:

"On the invitation of the United States Government itself, we are to send delegates on the 12th day of October to Washington, to confer with Mr. Blaine and the President of the United States and see whether or not we can have framed or formed a reciprocity treaty on the basis which we have set forth in our order-in-council, and which is as plain as can be made."

"With this National Policy, with this development of our natural resources, with this development of interprovincial trade, there is also a desire to widen the boundary of commerce on every side. With the United States? Yes, and on the principles laid down in the order-in-council, taking the basis of the treaty of 1854, and adding to it, whatever may be agreed upon by both sides. That is the principle as plainly as can be laid down."

MR. McEVOY'S NOMINATION.

The nomination of Mr. McEvoy as Liberal candidate for London brings into the field a man of exceptional ability and fighting power. Even Mr. McEvoy's opponents will concede him a very high order of mental equipment, and in particular a capacity almost unique for judging economic questions.

A lawyer with large practice and high standing at the bar, he has had also a distinguished scholastic career. At Toronto University he was a brilliant scholar, and later a lecturer of note in the Political Science department; but the professorial work being too quiet for a stirring and militant disposition, his migration to law was the university's loss. It was said of him by Professor Ashley, professor of economics and political science, twenty years ago in Toronto University, later in Harvard and now in England, the greatest economist whom Canada has known:

"In my eleven years of teaching it has not been my good fortune to come across any student of as much original power as Mr. McEvoy, and I expect, if he shall be spared, the world will be the better for his thought and power of exposition."

Now it is just this sort of man that the present crisis calls for and wins to the platform. On the Liberal side at least the reciprocity pact is certain to be intelligently discussed in the coming campaign in London. Mr. McEvoy's remarkable mental acumen and platform abilities will have full scope. Both the broad principles and the detail intricacies of the pact require brains and especially economic insight for adequate exposition, and citizens of London of whatever politics should not miss any chance of hearing Mr. McEvoy in the next few weeks. It will be as good as going to college, a liberal education in political science. It will help men to vote independently of ordinary party ties, in accordance with reason.

The Liberals of London have a cause to fight for; and no one can fight for it more intelligently than John M. McEvoy.

BOURASSA PLEASED WITH BORDEN.

Every day the amalgamation of Nationalists with Conservatives becomes more manifest. Laurier's prediction on landing at Quebec that the "Blue" tiger would before long make a meal of the "White" sheep of Bourassaism is already fulfilled, however, it may appear to the Nationalists to be the other way. It is as his leader that Mr. Bourassa now quotes Mr. Borden, in his Le Devoir.

It was pointed out in these columns that in his manifesto and in his London address the Conservative leader pandered to the anti-navy sentiment of the Nationalists. Mr. Bourassa felt the appeal of his leader. His journal, Le Devoir, says:

"It is a sign of the times, the manner in which the leader of the Anglo-Conservative Opposition treats the subject. . . You could feel (in the manifesto) the politician who divines the unpopularity of the law, who wishes to take advantage of it without too much compromising himself. Likewise you could feel the man who has decided that the appeal to Imperialist sentiment carries little weight. Mr. Borden spoke no more of the 'erman peril, nor of direct contribution to the admiralty budget. He did not even venture to formulate any programme whatsoever for the future.

"In his London speech he went farther. He expected that the projected navy would cost enormous sums and would be of no practical use; he almost apologized for his offer of direct contribution, and then he declared that all plans for a navy will have to be submitted to the people for approval. So, you see, Mr. Borden subordinates to the referendum the adoption of any permanent policy destined to make us assume towards the Empire new obligations. Is it rash to suppose that the St. Hyacinthe meeting has something to do with this evolution, from the manifesto to the (more explicit) deliverance at London? . . .

"In spite of his attitude of last year, Mr. Borden seems to think that he can advantageously appeal not to imperialist sentiment, but to the instinct of revolt which animates the multitude, to its desire to be consulted before the regime is modified under which we have lived for half a century. Is this not a fact particularly significant, confirming the testimony of Mr. Biggar, who declares that the voice of Drummond-Arthabaska translated the unexpressed sentiment of the majority of Canadians in all the provinces? And does not this attitude prove also that if opinion will declare itself, we can crush the imperialist movement?"

Whatever may be thought of Mr. Bourassa's logic, as when, for example, he says: "Mr. Borden seems to think," and then, in the next breath, calls this "a fact," or of his insight or sincerity when he represents Canadians of Ontario as dying to be consulted on the navy question and Mr. Borden's pandering to the Nationalists of St. Hyacinthe as an attitude adapted to a growing anti-Imperialism in the English provinces generally; there can nevertheless be no doubt that Mr. Bourassa fully appreciates the appeal to the Nationalist vote, and amidst all the flag-waving the deliberate volte face of Mr. Borden on the navy question.

It is not only the Nationalists and Liberals who perceive this new tack of the elastic dodger. The imperialist Hamilton Herald comments as follows:

"While the Government's (navy) policy is certainly open to criticism, still it has a policy. The Opposition policy seems to be simply 'agin the Government.' In his manifesto this morning, Mr. Borden makes a general attack on the Government's policy, but carefully conceals his own intentions."

The Conservative Montreal Star is annoyed and a little sullen:

"Mr. Borden's paragraph on the navy is hardly so satisfactory. It is magnificent on its negative side; but it leaves the question in the air."

As a rule, however, even the jingoes will say nothing, letting the Nationalists hook themselves on election bait, and trusting to do as they please later if only they can win somehow. The tiger winks her eye at the cubs while she pretends to yield politely to the sheep.

McLean and More Markets should be a winning combination in South Huron.

Mr. Borden is not receding from an imperialist position on the navy; he never occupied such a position except as a bluff.

Opposition candidates in the prairie provinces are stealing the Government's policy as the only hope of stealing back to Ottawa.

Sir Wilfrid's welcome in his own province is another proof that Bourassa's ambition will never be realized while Laurier is in the flesh.

The Liberal manufacturers are standing almost to a man by reciprocity. Where does the Opposition expect to gain ground? Certainly not among the farmers.

"Now the mob that has been created by Lloyd George and Winston Churchill has got out of hand, it has taken the bit in its teeth, and it remains to be seen if its riders can get it under control again."—Toronto Mail and Empire.

Unhappily for the Mail's crazy theory the "mob" in Liverpool, where the strike started, is the most anti-Liberal outside of Birmingham. Liverpool is the one Unionist stronghold in Lancashire.

The death of Lord James of Hereford removes another of the Unionist giants who refused to accept the Birmingham trade policy. The late Duke of Devonshire and the late Lord Goschen were others of the same faith. The leadership of the free trade Unionists devolves now on Lord Cromer, Lord Balfour of Burleigh and Lord Courtney, all veterans. The younger Conservative leaders, with the exception of Lord Hugh Cecil, are tariff reformers, and it will not be long before the Chamberlain influence is unchallenged in the party.

President Taft has vetoed an extension of the free list which the Democrats and insurgent Republicans put through Congress. It would have opened the United States market to many Canadian products not covered by the reciprocity pact, and would have hastened the annexation of Canada, according to the logic of Canadian anti-reciprocists. As the United States can extend its free list at any time without Canada's consent, and will probably do so when the Democrats attain full power, how is Canada to be saved? Do the annexation bogey-raisers wish to push their cowardly theory to its logical conclusion?

THE LIMIT NOT ATTAINED.

[Louisville Courier-Journal.]

"How long can a man go without air?"

"I can't say. The longest Pullman trip I ever took occupied seven days."

THE FARMER'S CHANCES.

[Toronto Star.]

Mr. Borden says of the reciprocity agreement that it will discourage the higher and more progressive methods of agriculture, by which the product of the farm is turned out in finished form, and the fertility of the soil maintained and preserved. It would be interesting to know how he proves such a proposition. With a larger market, whose great cities afford a demand for extra high class products at top prices, the Canadian farmer will be encouraged to adopt better methods of cultivation.

A SIGNIFICANT ADMISSION.

[Toronto News, Conservative.]

The Washington Administration has conceded more to Canada than we have yielded to the neighboring country.

EATING THE LEEK.

[Calgary Albertan.]

The Calgary Herald says the Liberals do not like the idea of Clifford Sifton stumping the West against reciprocity. Wrong assumption, brother. The Liberals will take unlimited sport out of seeing the Calgary Herald and the others of the faithful prostrate at the feet of a man whom they painted a little less than three years ago as being the biggest crook outside of a penitentiary wall. By all means bring him to Calgary and let the men who cheered H. B. Ames three years ago cheer Clifford Sifton today. Time brings its revenges as well as its compensations.

COULDN'T HELP SEEING IT.

[Montreal Herald.]

A commercial traveller for a Montreal house is quoted as saying that he had been through Ontario from Sarnia to Brockville, and though he himself was a Conservative, he had been compelled to report to his house that the farmers of Ontario were never so united in anything as they are in the desire to have reciprocity.

BUSINESSLIKE.

[Pittsburg Post.]

"Father, the duke has proposed and we want to be married immediately."

"All right. Here's a check for your million. Tell the duke to step in and I'll give him a dollar to get the license."

A GRAMOPHONE.

[Toronto Globe.]

The Canadian - British Association, which recently proclaimed its hostility to reciprocity, is just one of the numerous channels through which the "clash" organizations exercise their propagandist energy. There is no more originality in it than there is in a gramophone. It gives out what is put into it.

WHERE CANADA GAINS.

[St. Thomas Journal.]

Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, minister of labor, put the whole matter in a nutshell, when, in addressing the meeting at Simcoe on Tuesday, he said:

"Under reciprocity the consumers of Canada will be saved three and a half millions of taxation every year."

HOW DO YOU LIKE IT?

[Victoria Times.]

A Briton may be loyal to his flag, king, country and institutions and still do business anywhere and everywhere. These great men, rolling in luxury, are afraid that a look-in upon prosperity will weaken the loyalty of the working class; they would resent any lessenment of their own loyalty; it is you they mean.

SIFTON PLACED.

[Victoria Times.]

Mr. Sifton's campaign will be, in the main, in Ontario, but his great wealth explains the alienation of his sympathies from the masses in favor of protected interests, contrary to his former views, which goes to show that what Mr. Smith said in the House of Commons, "that this question is big enough to drive men into their correct status, either for the rights of the people or the special interests of those profiting by tariffs."

NAMES, PLEASE!

[Hamilton Times.]

Come, Mr. Smye, give us the names of those twenty-five United States manufacturers whom you met recently in Canada getting pointers on "how best to make Canada a dumping-ground for American goods" under reciprocity. And you might also state what these "goods" are, and point out how they are affected by the reciprocity agreement. Don't you know, Mr. Smye—be honest, now—that the reciprocity agreement does not touch these manufacures? Leave such yarns to your friend, T. J. Stewart, to tell.

AN ELECTION PROPHECY.

[Canadian Collier's.]

Canada will probably remain 52 per cent Liberal and 45 per cent Conservative in the country at large, and 60 per cent Liberal and 40 per cent Conservative in the House of Commons. Ontario will go Conservative, as always in Dominion elections. Not all the barley Yankee breweries may buy can bribe her from her true ideals. Quebec will go as Laurier goes—which is to say Liberal. The idea in Quebec is the man, not the party. The game is follow the leader. Reciprocity may double the price of Quebec hay, but what is all the hay in the world compared to Laurier le bien aimee? Bourassa, who has started a small sheol of his own down there, can make nothing but a smell. If the Nationalists drag out three or four seats, Laurier will pick them up again in Manitoba. The Maritime Provinces will stand 26 Liberals and 9 Conservatives, as at present. If there is any defection it will be to the stronger battalions, for the Maritime Provinces remember that their golden age was when they had an opportunity to trade with the United States on a fair basis. Reciprocity ought to put them back in the swim again. Hope talks of four Liberal seats out of seven in British Columbia, but if the Government holds the two it has in Dick McBride's bailiwick it will be doing well. The Prairie West is nearly solid for reciprocity. It is the West that harbors the new voter and the open mind. It is in the West that considerable Liberal gains will be made.

SEAFORTH.

Seaforth, Aug. 19.—Rev. Neil Shaw, who was taken ill while on his vacation at Rodney, has returned home feeling very much better.

Miss Abbie Snyder returned to her home in Joliet, Ill., on Friday after a pleasant holiday with friends here.

Mrs. Geo. Duncan, of Woodstock, is visiting her sisters, Miss Margaret Sutherland, Centre street, and Mrs. Wm. McMichael, James street.

Mr. James L. Yule, of Owen Sound, formerly organist of the Presbyterian Church, is spending his vacation with friends in town. He arrived in time for the choir's annual picnic to Bayfield, and was the life of the party.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. L. Chesney have returned from a trip to Calgary.

Dr. John McGinnis, for a number of years medical health officer for the town and also for the Township of McKillop, has decided to take a general post-graduate course in medicine and surgery at New York and will leave for that city on Sept. 1. He will spend a year in the hospitals there after finishing his course, and during his absence his practice will be looked after by the other town doctors. Since coming to Seaforth he has worked up a very large practice. He has also served some four years on the Collegiate Institute board, and is a leading spirit in bowling, curling and other sports. Mrs. McGinnis and Hubert will remain in town during the doctor's absence.

Mr. John A. Sutherland, of Lucknow, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Sutherland, John street.

The band intend holding a big celebration on Labor Day — automobile, motorcycle, horse, whippet and foot races and other athletic sports are on the bill of fare. A string committee have now charge of the programme, which will be out in a few days and which promises to be the biggest event in Huron County.

Charles Hohlbein, market gardener, has been missing corn for some time and decided to watch for them "fellers" with a trap. He got them in the shape of two fine raccoons. The trap did not injure them, and they are now on exhibition at his place.

Miss Annie Habkirk is visiting friends in Exeter.

INGERSOLL PREPARES FOR BALLOT BATTLE

Both the Parties Have Started Active Campaign.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ingersoll, Aug. 19.—Ingersoll's market today is one of the best of the season a great many farmers being in with their produce, and the citizens are much in evidence with their market baskets buying supplies for their Sunday dinners. The prices were as follows: Eggs 18 to 20 per dozen, butter, dairy, 25 cents per pound, creamery, 28 cents per pound. Chickens $1 10 per pair. Ducks, $1 25 per pair. Apples, 15 cents per peck. Beets, carrots and onions, three bunches for 10 cents.

The Liberal Association has secured the Christopher store, lately occupied by the Ingersoll Steam Laundry, for committee rooms. The rooms are now being prepared and will be ready for tonight. All supporters of Malcolm S. Schell are requested to assemble at the rooms, which will be open day and night until election day. A rally will be held at the rooms at 8 o'clock Monday night, where an excellent programme will be furnished.

Miss Winnifred Williams, who has been visiting in London, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Seldon, who have been spending the summer at their cottage at Port Keewaydin, Muskoka, have returned home.

Miss Kathleen Ryan is spending a few days with friends in St. Thomas.

The Conservatives and Liberals of Ingersoll are getting busy fixing up their committee rooms in preparation for the coming election which promises to be one of the keenest ever held.
