JABOT IS FEATURE OF SMART OUTFIT

Worn For Latest Tea

BY AILEEN LAMONT.

New York, April 20.-Flowers have been utilized as trimmings for spring hats for years, but the latest spring creation from London places them not on the hat, but on the scarf. This to go hat is of pedal straw with a narrow turned-down brim of black satin. At back is attached a black satin with a line of large hand-made roses to contrasting colors. The right jabot for wear with the modern day costume is now more important in scoring a sartorial knockout than a left jab is to a boxer. The charmeen coats, the straight satin coats and frocks of printed silks which are now so popular, all feature the jabot. Ecru lace, georgette edged with lace and faille,

Lights Low, Colors High. Practically all the newer evening frocks shown here today are designed in the brighter colors such as viouet, blue, green and red. Some of them utilize heavily printed chiffons or georgettes, but practically all of them compensate for the loudness of the colors by the simplicity of the designs. Neck lines are only reasonably low, but the skirts are flared or rippled so as to give a swing to the

Not only much of the favorite teal consumed by English society comes from China and India, but some of Miss Winifred Taylor, Princes the latest tea gowns as well. These consist of a long coat of rich brocade fastening at one side and trousers of black satin with brocade turn-ups at the bottom. The coat falls well below the knee.

Variegated Shoes.
Nothing is more swanky right now than the shoes which combine leather f different colors and different sorts. Some designs have the toe of one leather and the counter and heel of and the counter and neet of another, while others stripe the shoes horizontally in different colors. The spike heel and the low broad heel seem almost equally popular on Park Browne, in New York city.
