Cornering Kruger.

British Government Will Leave It to Him to Commence Hostilities.

But Send Large Reinforcements to the Garrisons of the Cape and Natal.

Hostile Declaration by Orange Free State Would Simplify Matters.

By Associated Press.

Loadon, Sept. 23.—Never, at any stage of the Transvaal crisis, has the question of peace or war rested so entirely in the hands of President Kruger. The longer he delays his decision, the better are the chances for peace. He knows to what extent he can rely on sections of South Africa to uphold him. He realizes that the British will, if possible, avoid a conflict until the last transport lands her men, and he is too will a leader not to know the military advantage that comes to the aggressor. His appeals to the foreign powers to intervene have appearently, been hopeless, but his efforts to drag in the Orange Free early have been successful, and if he honestly intends to defy Great British, he will mever have a better opportunity than at present.
