Takew you drew all hearts to you
To hold them in disdain,
And, teaching men the way to woo,
You let them woo in vein.
I knew to worship at your feet
More prudence would forbid,
And yet I sought and found you sweet
And loved, as others did.

In matchless style with many a wile
You played a charmer's part
Till, witless of your craft and guile,
I showed you all my heart;
Then, lightly meeting love with scorn,
Of me you soon were rid
And left me, hopeless and forlorn,
To sigh, as others did.

Now well I know one may outgrow
Full many a greater care,
But then I thought no human woe
Could equal my despain.
My hopes foregone, my life undone,
The cruel fates I chid,
Then—met my own, loved, woeed and won,
And wed, as others did!

LYNN'S FLOATING BRIDGE

In Use For a Century and Growing

A new set of three inch planks is required every third year in replanking the floating bridge on Glenmere pond. Few people of the hundreds who cross the bridge daily have any idea of its great thickness, which has been proved by recent soundings to be as much as IT feet in some places. Although so much thicker and heavier than when first built, it seems to have lost none of its flexibility and always adapts itself instantly to any changes in the level of the water. ways analysis the water.

Floating bridge is one of the curlosities of Lynn, and it is claimed to be the only structure of its kind in the world. In 1808 a bridge of somewhat similar design structure of its kind in the world. In 1808 a bridge of somewhat similar design was built across Lake Quinsigamond, near Worcester, but it was constructed simply, of two tiers of logs covered with planks and was never satisfactory. The Lynn bridge, on the other hand, has been in constant use for nearly a century and is stronger now than ever, as the wood does not rot under water, and the pine logs which form the foundation are as firm as an the day when they were hewel and put together.

Captain Moses Brown was the originator of the idea of thus bridging Collins pond, as it was then called. In March, 1802, a charter was granted to the Salem Turnpike and Chelsea Bridge corporation, and the bridge was completed in 1804 at a cost of $55,409. A diver has investigated the foundations of the structure and has found that the original bridge was made of five layers of pine, laid at right angles to each other. The first two layers of pine logs were on one side and the upper three of hewn timber one foot square, the whole secured together by three inch dowels and covered with planking 5½ feet thick.

The bridge is 511 feet long, 28 feet wide, and the pond which it crosses is about if laces in area and about '64 feet above the see level. The bed of the pond appears to be a bed of quicks; and, and it, would be very difficult to build a road around the pond without making a very long detour, owing to the boggy nature of the soil. The bridge is kept, from tipping over by being moored at the ends, imbedded in long trenches, dug in the shores of the pond at the approaches.—Boston Transcript.

I am a farmer located near Stony Bro districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times and leading to work, and was always very constituted as well a For so I could not work, and was always very of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never chained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I lad a most sectous attack of chills and then commonced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a been without them since. I take one Tables each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted. I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of hadria nor appring headachs since I commenced using them. Likeway and a short all the periods a since I nave not had the less touch of the land and state and wake ur more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complains Ripans Tabules well help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest priced medicine in the world, as
