A MONTHLY JOURNAL OF MEDICINE AND SURGERY.

Vol. X. HALIFAX, NOVA SCOTIA, SEPTEMBER, 1898. No. 9.

"Meat and bread together make the essentials of a healthful diet. Such are the facts of experience. The advancing science of later years explains them."

-Prof. Atwater.

PANOPEPTON

presents all the constituents of these two great types of food in a perfectly soluble, diffusible and absorbable form.

In sickness, the indications and necessities for a comprehensive nutrient are no less plain than in health. The expedient of pre-digesting or peptonising this food is one of the most rational, scientific and important advancements of modern medicine.

PANOPEPTON

conserves and imparts energy, sustains the system and enables it to resist the incursions of disease, quickly recruits the digestive functions to their normal power.
