"No tables of mortality having as yet been collated, and much doubt consequently existing as to the mean duration of life in the Province, a company established on mutual principles, would seem to be more especially adapted for us—where every one may have an opportanity of effecting assurance; and all the Profits are returned, the expenses of management being alone deducted from the excess of the receipts over the claims. And the best authorities allow that neither capital nor guarantee is necessary in the tormation of a Company safe enough to warrant the confidence of the public.

In order that the receipts of such a society may be sufficient to meet its claims, it is necessary that the party to whom its management is entrusted should not only possess the requisite qualifications as to character, but he should also have considerable mathematical knowledge, and that the published tables should be of as safe construction, as (for the present) can be vicamen, or which tables of long existing and well known companies in England. ACOIDENT.—A most extraordinary and fatal accident, reculting in the death of a highly estimable man, took place on the night of Samuel.

We are sorry to announce the death of Mr. William Rankin, Schoolmaster in this Township, which took place on Sabbath last, at Mr. Rutherford's, with whom he lodged, occasioned by the following very melancholy circumstances:—He had been at Galt on Seturday night, and on his return thought he saw a Racoon on a tree. He immediately went home and informed Mr. Rutherford's son. They armed themselves with a gun, and set out in pursuit of the animal, but had not proceeded far until Mr. Rankin ran against the stump of a tree, which hit him a violent blow in the abdomen, and caused such severe inhim a violent blow in the abdomen, and caused such severe internal injury that, although everything was done which human agenuity could invent to alleviate his bodily sufferings, they eminated in death within a few hours. The deceased came o reside near Middleton, (late Dawson's Bridge) in this Townahip, three months since, an entire stranger, and we understand he has no relations in Canada, but he has a mother in Scotland. (in what part is not yet known, but supposed to be near Aberdeen,) whom it is supposed he had greatly endeavoured to assist.

AWRUL GALE. - WRECK OF THE SPLENDID STEAMER AT-LANTIC .- MANY LIVES LOST. (From the New York Tribune, Nov. 28.)

The fears entertained yesterday in this city for the safety of boats on Long Island sound, were but too well founded. We have the melancholy duty this morning to announce the loss of that new and magnificent steamer, the Atlantic, one of lost costly and elegant boats which ever floated on the But what is still more appalling and melancholy, we have also

These Tracts are admirably adapted to that end by the soundness of the arguments which they contain, and by the charitable spirit in which those arguments are brought forward. A more ample treasury is now placed within the reach of the Clergy by Mr. Brogden's useful and well-timed publication, Catholic Safeguards, which contains a selection of the ablest discourses on the errors of the Church of Rome, chosen from the works of our own eminent divines who lived during the seventeenth cen-ury."—Bishop of London's late Charge.
