

between those working in the same sections of the field; in matters of design, construction and operation of large scale plants information is exchanged only when such exchange will hasten the completion of weapons for use in the present war. All these arrangements are subject to the approval of the Combined Policy Committee. The United States members have had as their scientific adviser Dr. Richard C. Tolman; the British members, Sir James Chadwick; and the Canadian members, Dean C. J. Mackenzie."

c) Joint Patent Control, (Page 103)

"It was early recognized that in order to make certain that this tremendous weapon would not fall into the hands of the enemy prompt action should be taken to control patents in the field and to secure control over the ore which is indispensable to the process. Substantial patent control has been accomplished in the United States, the United Kingdom, and Canada..."

President Roosevelt Proposes Co-operation and the Results Thereof (Pages 4-5)

"On October 11, 1941, President Roosevelt sent me a letter suggesting that any extended efforts on this important matter (atomic research) might usefully be co-ordinated or even jointly conducted. Accordingly all British and American efforts were joined and a number of British scientists concerned proceeded to the United States....

"The Canadian Government, whose contribution was most valuable, provided both indispensable raw material for the project as a whole and also necessary facilities for the work of one section of the project which has been carried out in Canada by the three Governments in partnership.

"The smoothness with which the arrangements for co-operation which were made in 1943 have been carried into effect is a happy augury for our future relations and reflects great credit on all concerned -- on the members of the Combined Policy Committee which we set up; on the enthusiasm with which our scientists and technicians gave of their best --...; and not least, on the generous spirit with which the whole United States organization welcomed our men and made it possible for them to make their contribution..."
