

OPTION 2: The federal government would continue to fund the health care system with the provinces and territories. This option would require the development of a national policy on health care, providing the basis for a national health care system.

OPTION 3: This option would require the development of a national policy on health care, providing the basis for a national health care system. It would also require the development of a national health care system, providing the basis for a national health care system. This option would require the development of a national policy on health care, providing the basis for a national health care system.

OPTION 4: This option would require the development of a national policy on health care, providing the basis for a national health care system. It would also require the development of a national health care system, providing the basis for a national health care system. This option would require the development of a national policy on health care, providing the basis for a national health care system.

OPTION 5: This option would require the development of a national policy on health care, providing the basis for a national health care system. It would also require the development of a national health care system, providing the basis for a national health care system. This option would require the development of a national policy on health care, providing the basis for a national health care system.

RECOMMENDATION

The Commission recommends that the federal government should continue to fund the health care system with the provinces and territories. This option would require the development of a national policy on health care, providing the basis for a national health care system. It would also require the development of a national health care system, providing the basis for a national health care system.